NO CASH FOR BONDS BEFORE NEXT JUNE

Veterans Talk Freely of Plans for Spending Money—21,000 Here to Get About $600 Each.

World War veterans, anxious to be among the first to apply for payment of their bonus, were on hand early today when the Veterans' Administration Facility opened an office in Room 104 of the New Federal Building, Twelfth boulevard and Market street, to receive applications.

Some had arrived before the doors of the building were opened at 7 o'clock. It had been announced that the application office would open at 9, and at that hour about 200 were in line. There was delay, however, in delivering application blanks to the office from Jefferson Barracks, and it was nearly 11 before the office was opened. About 600 veterans stood waiting then in the north corridor of the first floor.

Payment of the bonus will be made in bonds which may be redeemed for cash in June, or later. E. J. Wieland, regional manager of the Veterans' Administration Facility here, has estimated that at least $13,000,000 would be paid to 21,000 St. Louis veterans, possibly as much as $20,000,000 to 37,000 veterans, with the average payment being about $600 each.

Plans for Spending Money.

Many of those who were first in line were roughly dressed. They were looking forward eagerly to cashing in on their adjustment compensation certificates, and freely discussed with a Post-Dispatch reporter their plans for spending the money.

There was Hubert Rockwell Jr., [illegible] LaSalle street, who is unemployed and who planned to buy an Arkansas farm and raise strawberries. James A. Ruckendrod, 1033 Lafayette avenue, a hauler, said he would repair his truck, buy some furniture and clothes, and put any money he had left in a bank. Floyd Mabe, 1221 South Broadway, said he thought he could make no better use of the money than to go to Hot Springs, Ark., and seek a cure for his rheumatism.

Leo Witt, 1318 Grattan street, a cook and a former pugilist, intended to set himself up in the restaurant business. Paul Stephansky, a carpenter's helper of Pine Lawn, said he had worked but five months in the last five years and had acquired a lot of debts which he would pay.

Two to Keep Bonds.

Two of those whom the reporter approached said they intended to take President Roosevelt's advice and not cash the bonds, but put them away for "nest eggs." They were Fred Hamman, a carpenter, 2117 North Fifteenth street, and J. B. Roe, 4316A DeSoto avenue.

William Roberts, 4471 Bessie street, a carpenter employed by the PWA, said his money would go to pay up four years of back installments on the mortgage on his home. He said that "last time"—meaning 1931 when he and many other veterans borrowed half of the face value of their certificates—he had bought an automobile, but would not do that again.

A few feet from him in the line was Peter Gatza, 3442 Sidney street, who had other ideas about automobiles. "I've got a new 1936 car coming to me just like everybody else," Gatza said.

Blanks Arrive by Plane.

The first batch of 2000 application blanks was received from Washington by air mail last night and the first ones issued went to disabled former soldiers at the Veterans' Hospital at Jefferson Barracks. There Robert J. Callahan, [illegible]82 Enright avenue, was the first to sign.

Most of those who received application blanks this morning took them away to be filled out elsewhere and will return with them later. It will be necessary for each veteran to file with his application his adjustment service cetrificate, unless he has borrowed on the certificate, as most have. In that event veterans were advised that they can facilitate consideration of their applications by filing with them the pink slips which were given as receipts for the certificates when the certificates were taken up at the time the loans were made.

Instructions Given.

When the first blanks were issued this morning, several groups of 50 applicants were taken into the office and received instructions on

Robinson Lashes Al Smith, Quoting His Own Speeches, as Traitor to Himself and Party

Arkansas Senator Declares New Yorker Has Personally Advocated Everything for Which He Now Condemns Roosevelt.

SMITH WANTS 'ONLY ONE MAN' TO ANSWER HIM

He Won't Reply to Robinson Speech but Will Say a Few Words About 'Old Friend Joe.'

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Commenting sarcastically on Senator Joseph T. Robinson's address last night, Alfred E. Smith said today "poor Joe" tried to "cloud the issue." He remarked he felt "sorry for him." Smith said he would not reply to Robinson's speech, "but I will say a few words about my old friend Joe."

"I was an Unhappy Warrior to hear him read off a speech over which he stumbled so that I felt sure it was canned and did not come from the heart of the Joe Robinson that I had known," Smith said.

Robinson's speech was the Roosevelt administration's reply to Smith's address at the Liberty League dinner Saturday night.

Text of Statement.

"Poor Joe—I am sorry for him. They put him on a tough spot. He did the best he knew how but it was no answer. As I said in my speech, at the Liberty League dinner, there is only one man who should try to answer me.

"No, I won't make any reply to what Senator Robinson said, but I will say a few words about my old friend Joe. I was an Unhappy Warrior to hear him read off his speech over which he stumbled so that I felt sure it was canned and did not come from the heart of the Joe Robinson that I have known.

"Its purpose was to becloud the issue and while I won't reply to him I want the issue kept clear. Of course, I said I was for farm relief—I still am. In my Omaha speech in 1928, I proposed a constitutional and effective method. That doesn't keep the American people from rising up to protest against a silly and unconstitutional plan.

"Of course I said that in wartimes, we wrapped up the Constitution and went under wartime powers. That doesn't keep the American people from demanding obedience to the Constitution in times of peace.

As to Public Works.

"Of course I said that I thought there should be a dictator of Federal public works with full power. Federal public works are the proper concern of the Federal Government. That doesn't keep the American people from protesting against Federal interference with the individual lives of our citizens.

"Of course I said Government should lend money for relief to the states that needed it. That is what the Democratic platform said. That doesn't keep the American people from denouncing the creation of the greatest Federal bureaucracy this country has ever seen, and denouncing a New Deal which has created a payroll for the Federal Government that has gone close to a billion and a half dollars a year, not including the Army, the Navy, the CCC and the people on relief and the legislative and judicial branches of the Government—just regular expenses and as Joe tried to cloud these issues so he tried to cloud others and when he calls the roll of who was at the Liberty League dinner I happened to see the great Democratic Governor of the State of Maryland, Albert C. Ritchie, the candidate (in 1924) of the Democratic party for the presidency, John W. Davis; the great Democratic Governor of the State of Massachusetts, Joseph B. Ely, and hundreds of other upstanding leaders of Democracy, Northern and Southern alike, who are unlike some of my old friends who feel forced to give lip service to the New Deal and seem unable to put country above party."

Smith is making preparations for a two weeks' vacation in Florida. He will leave with Mrs. Smith for Palm Beach tomorrow night.

All Missouri Highways Open.

All Missouri highways are open for traffic, it was reported today by the Missouri State Highway Department. Snow of one-half to three inches, which fell generally over the State, and icy conditions on certain highways make careful driving necessary, the report said.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Senate Majority Leader Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, in a radio speech last night, gave the Roosevelt administration's answer to the anti-Roosevelt attack of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith at the recent Liberty League dinner. Robinson was Smith's running mate in the 1928 presidential campaign.

The theme of Robinson's speech, the text of which was given to the press in advance, was that Smith had gone "high hat," that he had traded his plebeian brown derby for the aristocratic "top hat, white tie and tails." The inference was that he had made the exchange for an unnamed "mess of pottage." The title or text of Robinson's reply was "The Hands of Esau."

Says Smith Has Changed Sides.

"Gov. Smith," Robinson declared, "not only has changed sides in the great battle but his whole outlook seems to have undergone a transformation. He has forgotten apparently the issues upon which he ran for the presidency. The brown derby has been discarded for the high hat; he has turned away from the East Side with those little shops and fish markets, and now his gaze rests lovingly upon the gilded towers and palaces of Park avenue.'

Robinson, a ready rough-and-tumble debater of almost a quarter of a century in the Senate, used Smith's own phrase, "Let's look at the record," as an introduction to his declaration that he could prove that Smith had advocated every basic principle of the New Deal.

Case of "Second-Guessing."

Taking up Smith's accusation that the New Deal had fostered an unconstitutional farm relief program in the AAA, Robinson retorted that Smith, in 1928, had advocated the principles of the McNary-Haugen bill, which was far more drastic in its use of the taxing power than the AAA. Smith's present attitude, he said, was "just a case of second-guessing."

Robinson used the same phrase when he recounted Smith's former stand on the National Industrial Recovery Act, which, like the AAA, the Supreme Court found unconstitutional. Smith, in a radio address in August, 1933, declared that it was better to pay the unemployment bill by the NRA than by a dole or work relief.

Smith's own attack on former President Hoover was used by Robinson to answer the charge that the Roosevelt administration had increased Federal expenditures. Smith, at a Jackson day dinner in 1932, said:

"Now if it is all right to put the credit of the Government behind business, let the credit of the Government be used to keep the wolf of hunger away from the doormat of millions of people."

Recall's Hoover Charge.

Robinson used what was for him a new rhetorical device when he addressed these remarks directly to his former running mate:

"Oh, my, Gov. Smith, what a short memory you have. Your charge that the Roosevelt administration is fostering Socialism and Communism is so ridiculous, it's actually funny. Honestly, Governor, I think you've been seeing things under the bed, you know those Communist spies that our good friend Ham Fish is always talking about. Where have I heard that charge of Socialism and Communism before? Oh, now I recall; that's the identical charge that Herbert Hoover made against you in 1928.

"Remember, Governor, after you fearlessly advocated the public ownership, public control, and public development of water power sites, poor old Herbert whimpered that it was State Socialism because he lacked any adequate or statesmanlike reply to the position you took. And how you nailed poor Herbert on that one. You reminded him that the same old cry had been raised against Theodore Roosevelt, Charles Evans Hughes, Woodrow Wilson and every other public servant who ever attempted to perform a public duty on behalf of the whole people. Very properly you said that silly charges of that kind did more to promote Socialism in this country than any other cause."

Change of Allegiance.

In conclusion, the Senate majority leader came to the defense of President Roosevelt and in effect charged that Smith was not only a deserter but had gone over to the enemy.

"Perhaps," he concluded, "in the heat of battle sometimes our commanding officer, President Roosevelt, has employed the wrong tactics. Perhaps there has been confusion and loss of energy. Those things always happen when human beings attempt mass operations in hurried formation under the pressure of adverse fate. But those things never yet have justified a

INQUEST VERDICT OF HOMICIDE IN KILLING OF LOEB

DOESN'T TESTIFY AT CORONER'S INQUIRY

After Hostility of Months, Two Prisoners Fight It Out in Locked Bathroom at Prison.

By the Associated Press.

JOLIET, Ill., Jan. 29.—A Coroner's jury investigating the killing of Richard Loeb in Stateville Penitentiary yesterday returned a verdict today accusing James Day, 23-year-old convict, of homicide.

The jury recommended that Day be held to the county grand jury. The verdict was the usual one in such cases. It found that Loeb, partner of Nathan Leopold Jr., in the murder of 14-year-old Bobby Franks in Chicago 11 years ago, died from razor cuts suffered in a fight with Day.

An official statement as to what preceded yesterday afternoon's fight in a prison bathroom was given out by A. L. Bowen, State Director of Public Welfare. It said there was hostility of long standing between Loeb and Day. It was Day who made the appointment which put them together in the shower room.

Tells of Loeb's Threat.

"Loeb had bothered Day since June," said Bowen. "Last Friday, Loeb threatened Day in the offices of the prison chaplain." Then the report set out Day's story of the fight, given to prison authorities shortly after Loeb died.

Day was quoted as saying:

"This morning after breakfast, I asked Loeb if I could talk to him. Loeb was eating breakfast in his cell with Leopold. He said 'surely.' After dinner he came to my cell and said he was on his way to take a bath and I could see him in the bathroom.

"I went to the bathroom and waited. Loeb came in in five minutes and locked the door. He said: 'What is on your mind? Get it off quick. I'm warning you it won't do any good as far as my attitude toward you is concerned.'

"He started taking off his clothes. I was leaning against the wash basin, his back was to me and he bundled the clothes he had wrapped in a towel.

"He got between me and the door and I noticed he had a razor in his hand. He had taken it out of the bundle. He said: 'Keep your mouth shut. Get your clothes off.'

Says Loeb Had Razor.

"I knew the door was locked. Loeb said: 'Get your clothes off before I start in on you.' I started undressing. . . . He took two steps and stepped over the sill of the shower. I kicked him in the groin. He grabbed for his groin, with his free hand and slashed at my face with the razor as he fell. He missed me by inches.

"I hit him on the neck with my fist. The hand in which he had the razor hit the sill and the razor fell. He grabbed for it as I jumped over his body and as he turned around at me, I caught him by the wrist and throat and we fell to the floor together. He dropped the razor again.

"I grabbed the razor and jumped over him. He got up and swung his fist at me. It caught me on the left side of the face. I slashed at him."

Testimony of Psychiatrist.

Dr. John A. Larson, prison psychiatrist, testified: "Day is sane, but emotionally unstable. He has been apprehensive for several weeks."

Dr. Larson said Day, apparently hysterical, was screaming "give me air—give me air!" when examined yesterday. The doctor referred to the fight in the showerroom, as an "episode." "This episode seemed in the nature of panic reaction, on Day's part," he said. He added that Day was "an egocentric personality," who had been treated in 1932 "for hysteria."

Warden Joseph E. Ragen testified the razor with which Loeb was killed had not been stolen from a cellhouse barber shop as was first believed. There was no indication where it came from.

Ragen said Loeb's prison record "was perfect." Day's, he said, showed "small violations of rules—no gross offenses."

Day chose not to testify at the inquest after he was informed that it was his constitutional right to remain silent. Before making this decision, he cried out: "My life has been miserable here ever since I entered the place."

Loeb's body was removed to a

WPA FUNDS FIX UP PHILADELPHIA FOR DEMOCRATS

$1,900,000 for Convention Hall—Cleveland, Where G. O. P. Meets, Similarly Helped

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Mayor S. Davis Wilson of Philadelphia said today that funds to prepare Philadelphia's Convention Hall for the Democratic national convention were included in a WPA allotment by Harry L. Hopkins of nearly $1,900,000 to Philadelphia. He made the statement to reporters after an hour's conference with the Works Progress Administrator.

Wilson was accompanied by Senator Guffey (Dem.), Representatives Dorsey and Daly, both Philadelphia Democrats, and several Philadelphia city officials.

The Mayor said the program was not chiefly to prepare Philadelphia for the Democratic convention, but was one of "permanent public improvements."

The WPA already has allotted funds for renovating the convention hall in Cleveland, where the Republican national convention is to be held, and Hopkins commented on recent Mid-Western tour that this really was "boondoggling."

The two largest items in the Philadelphia program are dredging of the Schuylkill River and paving a number of streets.

The WPA items for the Philadelphia Convention Hall included $10,547 for work on the parking area, $69,662 for widening the plaza and Vintage avenue, and $65,288 for entrance improvements to the commercial museum and painting floors of the Convention Hall. The city will put up $4641, $11,226 and $20,840, respectively, on each item.

MANY VETERANS LIKELY TO BE DELAYED IN GETTING BONUSES

Distribution of Bonds Not Expected to Be Completed Until Last of August.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The word went out today that many war veterans may have to wait until mid-summer to receive the bonds with which Congress decided to pay the bonus.

So gigantic is the task of distribution, said President Roosevelt at a press conference yesterday, that the first bonds may not go out much before July 1, although Congress made them cashable on June 15. The President estimated the distribution would be completed some six or eight weeks later.

The President said that the question of whether new taxes are necessary to meet the obligation was being studied and indicated that a final decision would not be made for some time.

FOUR KILLED IN SCHOOL BUS UPSET; 12 CHILDREN HURT

COALGATE, Ok., Jan. 29. — A school bus driver and three children were killed near Tupelo early today when the bus turned over on an icy highway.

The dead: Roy Harbor, 45 years old, Tupelo; Alma Drennan, 16; Billie Purgent, 14, and Allene Haggar, 12.

Twelve other school children in the bus were injured. One of the 12, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Burleson, was said to be seriously injured. Five children in the bus were not injured.

MARINE BANDSMEN WALK OUT ON RALLY OF DEFENSE SOCIETY

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The Navy Department's boycott of the Women's Patriotic Conference on National Defense was complete today after United States Marine bandsmen walked out on the organization last night. A few hours before, three Navy officers canceled speeches on orders from Henry Latrobe Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy. A fourth speech was canceled today by Representative Jenckes (Dem.), Indiana. Her place was taken by another speaker.

The bandsmen's walkout apparently was ordered as another protest over the anti-New Deal speech which Bainbridge Colby, former Secretary of State, delivered to the women Monday night. Orchestral members of the band received marching orders as they were about to play in the Mayflower Hotel ballroom during the women's dinner. The instruments were put back into their cases and the scarlet uniformed bandsmen departed.

After the Marine players left, Mrs. Harriet Vaughn Rigdon, national president of the Dames of the Loyal Legion and chairman of the conference, hired four hotel musicians and there was music.

When Capt. Taylor Branson, band leader, was asked who had ordered the musicians back to their barracks, he replied: "I'm too good a Marine to tell that."

Major-General J. H. Russell, commandant of the Marine Corps, said he knew "nothing about it."

"Nothing to say," said Assistant Secretary Roosevelt.

CAPT. WARMS TO APPEAL MORRO CASTLE VERDICT

Under Two-Year Sentence, He Says He Will Take Case to Supreme Court if Necessary.

By the Associated Press.

GREEN VILLAGE, N. J., Jan. 29. Capt. William Warms, under a two-year prison sentence for criminal negligence in the Morro Castle ship disaster, said today that if necessary, he would take his case to the United States Supreme Court.

"I am taking it on the chin and still smiling," he said. "My conscience is clear."

Warms was convicted by a Federal jury in New York, with Chief Engineer Eben S. Abbott and Henry E. Cabaud, executive vice-president of the New York and Cuba Mail Steamship Co., which operated the Morro Castle. Abbott was sentenced yesterday to four years and Cabaud was given a suspended sentence of a year and was fined.

WOMAN SENTENCED TO DIE

By the Associated Press.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., Jan. 29.—Mrs. Dorothy Sherwood, 27 years old, was sentenced by County Judge Jonathan D. Wilson today to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing the week of March 16 for drowning of her two-year-old son, Jimmy. Mrs. Sherwood, widow, received the sentence with no show of emotion.

Judge Wilson, eyes cast down, pronounced the sentence after declaring: "I must do my duty as I see it." Mrs. Sherwood, former Salvation Army worker and burlesque dancer, was convicted of first-degree murder by a jury, which recommended mercy. The death sentence is mandatory, but the jury's recommendation will be sent to Gov. Herbert H. Lehman along with the sentence.

10,000 HURT IN CRUSH AT FUNERAL OF KING

London Newspapers Criticise Handling of Crowd, Estimated at 2,000,000.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—Hundreds of persons returned to work today bearing bruises as a result of the press yesterday during the funeral procession of King George. A checkup showed 10,000 persons had received ambulance treatment, the largest number of casualties in any procession through London.

Estimates that 1,500,000 persons would line the funeral procession route from Westminster Hall, where the body lay in state for four days, to Paddington Station, where the body was placed on a train for Windsor, were exceeded by at least 500,000, resulting in scenes of tumult at some points.

Mounted police and cavalry were forced to drive lanes through the throngs in an attempt to clear the route.

The crush was so great that in several places troops were unable to present arms in salute as the procession passed.

Even the sailors drawing the gun carriage on which the coffin was borne were forced to change their eight-deep formation to pass through the narrow lane.

Newspapers recalled that 35,000 troops lined the streets for the funeral of King Edward VII, father of King George, in 1910, and pointed out that only 10,000 were employed yesterday to maintain order.

"The arrangements made over the greater part of the route were utterly inadequate, and the margin of safety left, dangerously narrow," criticised the News Chronicle.

"This is not a time for harsh judgment . . . but yesterday's scenes have their lesson which should not be forgotten, for the cost of another failure may be serious."

The Telegraph also commented on the preparations for the procession, asserting:

"Perhaps it was not sufficiently realized that in the years since Edward's funeral in 1910 the population of outer London and the home counties has been enormously increased, and the transport facilities for bringing them to the center have grown correspondingly."

ITALIANS PUSH ON; 50-MILE GAIN MADE IN DOLO REGION

Gen. Bergonoli's Troops Move Overnight From Neghelli and Capture Wadara After Fight—50 of Enemy Dead.

ETHIOPIANS UNABLE TO RALLY FORCES

Native Defenders Lose Positions, It Is Reported, Which Were to Be Used for Last Stand on Ganale Dorya.

(Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press.)

WITH THE ITALIAN SOUTHERN ARMY AT DOLO, Jan. 26. (By way of Mogadiscio, Italian Somaliland, Jan. 29.)—The Italians have taken Wadara and with it the positions which Ras Desta Demtu prepared for a last stand in the event of the fall of Neghelli.

The Ethiopian commander's efforts to reassemble his center column, retreating along the Ganale Dorya before Gen. Rodolfo Graziani's motorized column, thus far appear to have been useless.

Gen. Bergonoli's troops, moving overnight from Neghelli, about 260 miles northwest of Dolo, advanced 50 miles farther inland, taking Wadara at dawn in fighting that caused the death of 50 Ethiopians.

As the Italian line moved up the Ganale Dorya, the Italian command announced that Blackshirt foresters were advancing the Fascist front much farther along the Dawa Parma toward the Kenya border, cutting off a possible Ethiopian source of supplies from the British colony.

The Italians pushed past Sadei, capturing Malca Ghersi and Malca Murri, a water oasis on the fringe of the jungle.

The Ethiopian casualties were extremely heavy before machine gunfire. Hundreds of camels and cattle were captured from the Ethiopians, many of whom fled to the Dawa Parma after the Italians captured all Ganale Dorya water supplies.

Mussa Sawa, Greek soldier of fortune and commander of the Ethiopians on the Dawa Parma, already had orders to retreat, the Italian command announced, but Fascist armored cars carried out a raid before he could move.

A member of the Italian high command told this correspondent that two planes were seen flying across the Kenya border, alleged to be signaling Italian troop movements to the Ethiopians.

Italians Dig in for Rainy Season on Takkaze Front.

By the Associated Press.

WITH THE RIGHT WING OF THE NORTHERN ITALIAN ARMY ON THE TAKKAZE FRONT—(By air mail to Paris, Jan. 29.)—A thorough inspection of Italy's forces north of the Takkaze River, where Ethiopians precipitated serious fighting recently, has given every indication that Premier Mussolini's men have dug in here to hold this line until after the end of the coming rainy season.

Through barbed wire, stretched across the plain before the Holy City of Aksum, a regiment marches each day to penetrate as far into the wild region to the south as possible, never staying more than one night in the field. Patrols slip off into the hills in other directions.

All of them, however, are under orders to meet the enemy, start a fight, keep it up for a few hours and then draw back slowly. Nowhere is there any indication that the Italians intend to leave behind them the immense trench lines, mountain fortresses and wire barriers that they have been building here, together with roads, for the last two months.

Patrol Bases Near Aksum.

Nowhere is there any indication that they desire at present to press back toward the Takkaze, except by means of patrols which have their bases near Aksum.

Everywhere, one gets the impression that the Italians on this front have made up their minds to keep up this kind of warfare until the rainy season, starting in March, and the downpours following incessantly until near the end of September, have been endured.

There seems no question that the campaign will be one of years' dur-

'MIDDLE GROUND' TAKEN IN HOUSE NEUTRALITY BILL

ARMS EMBARGO IS MANDATORY

Tinkham Says 'Discrimination' Between Classes of Exports Is 'Indefensible and Illogical.'

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—In the formal report of the House Foreign Affairs Committee recommending the administration's permanent neutrality bill, Chairman McReynolds said yesterday that the committee had taken a "middle ground" between making the bill mandatory and giving the President some discretion.

"If you undertake to put our chief executive in a strait-jacket on matter of this kind," he said, "you have to a great extent tied up our country so that it could not use its good offices for the prevention of war."

The bill places mandatory embargoes on shipments of actual implements of war and allows the President to use his judgment in restricting war materials, such as cotton, oil and iron, to a normal peacetime trade volume.

Tinkham Attacks Bill.

Representative Tinkham (Rep.), Massachusetts, a committee member, asserted in a statement that "discrimination" between arms, ammunition and implements of war and articles and materials used in the conduct of wars was "indefensible and illogical." "It is also hostile to the peaceful aspirations of the American people," he added.

The entire bill, he said, is more likely to involve the United States in war than to keep it out.

Tinkham's statement, apparently foreshadowing a fight when the bill reaches the floor, branded the legislation as "unneutral" and making the United States "a puppet state of Great Britain and a subsidiary of the League of Nations."

The discretion to be granted under the bill, he said, "is an expansion of Russian dictatorship in this country."

Majority View.

McReynolds said the committee had given the bill "great study" and that a majority of members feel that it "is a step in the proper direction and if passed and it becomes a law will aid us in maintaining our neutrality."

He spoke of difficulties in formulating a neutrality bill and asserted that ideas advocated by some proponents of neutrality actually were "dangerous."

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which expects to report out the administration measure within 10 days, will question Prof. Edwin Borchard of Yale University, who opposed the bill before the House committee.

The Senate committee is expected to consider a proposal by Chairman Nye (Rep.), North Dakota, of the Munitions Committee, that warring nations be compelled to carry on any trade with the United States on a cash-and-carry plan, with American vessels forbidden to enter hostile waters.

AMERICAN FLYERS SEARCHING FOR REDFERN FORCED DOWN

Art Williams and Harry Wendt Safe in South American Village; Out of Gasoline.

By the Associated Press.

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, Jan. 29.—Forced down by a rainstorm, two American flyers, Art Williams and Harry Wendt, waited in a Corntyn River town today for ae supply of gasoline to enable them to continue their search for Paul Redfern.

Word of their safety reached Georgetown yesterday in a wireless message from Springlands, where they arrived by motor launch after landing at Hepsiba, a small village 30 miles up the river.

The message relieved anxiety aroused here when they failed to reach Armatau, where they were to have picked up George Sill, British Guiana timber merchant, and a guide who had promised to lead them to an Indian village where, some reports said, Redfern was being held captive. He disappeared on a flight in August, 1927.

Murderer, Convict Who Killed Him

South Side Chicago undertaking establishment, guarded from the curious. There was to be no funeral service. The body was to be cremated late today.

Loeb Slashed 56 Times.

Loeb's body was slashed with 56 razor wounds, one of which almost severed the jugular vein. He died within two hours, despite efforts of eight physicians who resorted to blood transfusion. Death was attributed to shock and loss of blood by Dr. Lester E. Frankenthal, the Loeb family physician. Loeb was 30 years old.

Nathan Leopold, Loeb's partner in what they planned and executed as "the perfect crime"—the murder of Franks, 14—refused to discuss the case, answering all questions of prison authorities with, "I decline to answer."

Warden Ragen said, "I don't think Leopold knows anything about the killing, as he was in a cell 100 feet away at the time."

Bowen aided State's Attorney William R. McCabe and Warden Ragen in questioning six convicts.

Capt. Austin Humphrey of the prison staff, who heard Loeb's screams and rushed into the corridor, reported Day handed him a razor, saying, "Here's a razor. I killed in self-defense. That man (Loeb) tried to attack me."

Day Has Black Eye.

Bowen declared Day's story did "not seem very reasonable." He pointed out that Loeb suffered virtually all the wounds, although Day had a black eye.

Warden Ragen said convicts reported Day got his black eye in a fight with Loeb Monday night. Other convicts, however, told him the two men were on friendly terms. Bowen said he obtained another statement to the effect that Day got the black eye last Friday in a fight with another convict.

After Loeb was wounded he fled from the room and staggered 60 feet down a corridor, where a convict helped him to the prison hospital.

Although Loeb was of the Jewish faith, the warden said he called for the Catholic prison chaplain, the Rev. Eligius Wier. Before the chaplain arrived, Warden Ragen said, Loeb gasped "I think I'll make it" and sank into a coma. With him at the time of his death was his brother, Ernest, a real estate dealer of Chicago, and Dr. Frankenthal. They had been notified by telephone of Loeb's critical condition.

The uncle and aunt of Day said in Chicago that Day was "always hard to handle." Day has a police record dating back to 1928, when he was sent to a school for incorrigible boys.

Sons of wealthy and respected Chicago families, Loeb and Leopold, had exceptional educational advantages. Before the Franks murder, Leopold already had won note as an ornithologist, and Loeb was regarded as headed toward a successful legal career.

Accused of Killing His Baby.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 29.—Samuel Belanger, 30 years old, was indicted by an Albany County grand jury yesterday for second-degree murder in the death of his seven-month-old son, Clarence. Chief of Police Smurl charged the baby was thrown to the floor and kicked when it cried. It died from its injuries last Friday.

NEW UTILITY LOBBYING RULES, ONLY FEW AFFECTED

Most of Holding Companies Have Refused to Register Pending Test of Validity.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—New lobbying rules requiring registration of those seeking to influence Government public utility policies were issued yesterday by the Securities Commission.

The rules apply only to persons working for holding companies. Since most major companies have refused to register pending a test of the Holding Company Act's validity, only a few are affected.

The commission's rules require those employes of registered holding companies seeking "to influence the exercise of discretionary powers" by members of Congress or the Securities and Federal Power commissions, to report their activities.

This report should include statements of what the employe may do, his compensation and expenses. The rules exempt employes whose duties are largely routine.

EDWARD VIII CONFERS WITH FOREIGN ENVOYS

Talks With Austrian and German Representatives; Cabinet Takes Up Defense.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—King Edward VIII gave his attention to European relations today as the Cabinet met to consider expansion of home defenses.

The King conferred separately with Prince Ernest von Starhemberg, Vice-Chancellor of Austria, and Baron Konstantin von Neurath, Foreign Minister of Germany. Official information from the Buckingham Palace conferences was lacking.

The King arose early to receive Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden before his foreign callers. Eden went from the palace to a Cabinet session lasting nearly two hours at which debate centered around budget estimates for expansion of national defenses. The Ministers adjourned without announcement of the result of their deliberations.

Defense Loan Predicted.

Informed quarters predicted the flotation of a huge defense loan, possibly as high as £200,000,000 ($1,000,000,000) to increase and recondition the nation's armed forces. Budget estimates are to be laid before Parliament next Tuesday.

Eden has been busy since Monday conferring with Kings and Foreign Ministers in London for the funeral of King George V.

The Foreign Office announced that Eden called on King Boris of Bulgaria and is dining with King Carol of Rumania tonight. Yesterday he saw Pierre-Etienne Flandin, French Foreign Minister, and Paul Van Zeeland, Belgian Foreign Minister.

Hitler's Intentions.

Reports from Paris that Eden and Flandin had discussed French fears that Reichsfuehrer Hitler was planning an early coup in the demilitarized Rhineland were not denied in authoritative quarters.

King Edward received Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Russia's Foreign Commissar. The nature of their conversation was not disclosed.

Persistent rumors said Prince von Starhemberg and Baron von Neurath had conferred, and that the former might visit Archduke Otto of Hapsburg, for whose enthronement Austrian monarchists have been campaigning, before returning to Vienna.

Several of the visiting Kings and other guests began their homeward trek today, among them King Leopold of the Belgians, President Albert Lebrun of France, the Greek Princes, King Christian of Denmark, Crown Prince Humbert of Italy and some of the German representatives.

change of allegiance in the face of the enemy.

"It rests with no soldier who approaches the battlefield under the flag of his leader to retire while the war continues. Above all things, he must never go over to the enemy.

"Yes, I agree with you, Gov. Smith, that the Democratic party belongs to no individual and no group. It cannot be purchased by the 'American Liberty League.' The financial angels of the League will discover they cannot buy a monopoly over the name of freedom in the same way they have purchased monopolies over oil, coal and water-power.

"Gov. Smith, I've read you the record. You approved NRA, you approved farm relief, you urged Federal spending and public works, you urged Congress to cut red tape and confer power on the executive, you urged autocratic power for the President, and you exposed with merciless logic the false cry of Communism and Socialism. The New Deal was the platform of the 'happy warrior.'

"The policies of the Liberty League have become the platform of the unhappy warrior."

NYE COMMITTEE SEEKS FUNDS TO WIND UP

United Again, Senator George Says: Investigators Promise to Be Careful.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Senator George (Dem.), Georgia, who, with Senator Pope (Dem.), Idaho, bolted the Nye munitions investigation in protest against the way Chairman Nye (Rep.), North Dakota, was conducting it, asked the Senate Contingent Funds Committee today for $7369 with which to continue and complete the investigation.

He promised that the investigators would wind up hearings speedily and be careful about making public matters that "might affect foreign countries or arouse animosity."

The request was taken under advisement.

George said the Nye committee, united again, would conclude hearings in "about 10 days" after getting the money, and would submit its report and wind up its affairs "late in February or early in March." He submitted a statement showing the investigation was "in the red" $2754 as of Jan. 16.

He promised any matter "that might affect foreign countries, or arouse animosity" would be scrutinized by the whole committee before being made public.

MARINE BAND'S ACTION DENOUNCED IN HOUSE

G. O. P. Leader Snell Asks If It Is Start of "Dirtiest Campaign" Predicted by Farley.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The United States Marine Band's walkout on the Women's Patriotic Conference for National Defense was assailed today by Representative Snell, the Republican leader, as "smacking of something un-American." He spoke in the House a few minutes after Secretary of the Navy Swanson had given full approval of the action of two naval officers and one marine officer in canceling scheduled speeches before the conference.

"Is this a forerunner of what Mr. Farley has said would be the dirtiest campaign in history?" Snell stormed. "It certainly looks like it. I wonder if the time has come when free speech, freedom of the press and freedom of assemblage is going to be suppressed. To me this smacks of something un-American. The whole procedure was foreign to the American people and was not in accord with American ideals."

ITALIANS ADVANCE 50 MILES FARTHER IN DOLO REGION

ation, that barring peace developments in Europe or a tremendous shift in the tide of war fortunes, Italy is prepared to fight along this line, fair season after fair season, year after year, until the final goal of conquest of Ethiopia is reached.

Now, the Italian fighting forces on all Ethiopian fronts total more than 300,000 men.

A Typical Downpour.

While moving along the front line and visiting the troops, this correspondent had an opportunity to see, during a sudden unseasonable rain, just what effect a downpour has on this country.

The storm lasted 20 minutes. Afterward, the road across Aksum's fertile plain was a sea of black mud. Automobiles sloshed and slid, with no traction for the wheels on the slightest grades.

It became obvious what a month of such downpours would do, despite the progress the Italians have made in building roads through this precipitous country.

It was obvious why Italy was entrenched today on this front, ready to wait out the rainy season before trying to push on.

CONFERENCE WANTS NAVY TERMS DEFINED

London Meeting Appoints Subcommittee to Classify Ships and Guns.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—The international naval conference appointed today a sub-committee charged with drawing up exact definitions of naval terms so that the delegates who seek a new naval limitations treaty may know exactly what they are arguing about.

The sub-committee now is to define various classes of ships and guns in order to establish a common basis for the discussion of limitation plans.

An authoritative source said a British compromise proposal had been accepted by the delegates as a basis for further discussions. Roughly, it is understood to correspond with present limitations under the treaties of Washington and London of 1922 and 1930, respectively.

These limitations were said to be:

Capital ships—35,000-ton maximum with 14-inch guns and the possibility of reducing tonnage by 2000 and 3000 tons. The present limitation is 35,000 tons with 16-inch guns.

Aircraft-carriers—maximum tonnage 22,000 with 6.1-inch guns compared to the present maximum of 27,000 tons and 8-inch guns.

Category A Cruisers—No further construction during the term of the agreement, but consideration for replacements to present ships.

Category B Cruisers and Armed Destroyers—Continuation of present limitation to maximums of 7500 to 8000 tons with 6.1-inch guns.

To prevent the possibility of the development of some new and sensational type of ships, the British suggested that any different types be limited to between 10,000 and 20,000 tons with a top speed of 20 knots.

At the 1932 disarmament conference in Geneva, the British suggested that the size of battleships be limited to 25,000 tons and that submarines be abolished.

GOV. LANDON SPEAKS TONIGHT AT KANSAS G. O. P. RALLY

75th Anniversary of State's Admission to Union Celebrated at Topeka.

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 29.—Kansas Republicans gathered in Topeka today for the celebration of Kansas day marking the seventy-fifth anniversary of the State's admission to the Union. Gov. Alf M. Landon, who has been mentioned as a presidential candidate, will close the meeting of the Kansas Day Club with an address at 9 p. m., St. Louis time. The address will be carried by the National Broadcasting Co.

The Republican State Committee at a meeting called to set machinery in motion for selection of the State's 18 delegates to the national convention at Cleveland June 9, unanimously indorsed Landon for the party nomination for President.

Gov. Landon's address will be carried in St. Louis by Station KSD.

NEWSPAPER GETS INJUNCTION AGAINST 4 MIAMI OFFICIALS

Court Order Restrains Them From "Interfering" With Reporters and Photographers.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 28.—Miami's City Manager and police officials were restrained from "interfering" with reporters and photographers of the Miami Tribune by a temporary injunction granted last night by Circuit Judge W. W. Trammell.

In its application for the order, the Beach Publishing Co., publisher of the Tribune, said police and detectives had interfered with the gathering of its news and pictures, and had illegally destroyed its photographic equipment. The proceedings were directed against L. L. Lee, City Manager; A. J. Kavanaugh, Safety Director; W. J. McCarty, Chief of Police, and L. O. Scarboro, Chief of Detectives.

Earlier in the day Scarboro was arrested on a charge of destroying a Tribune photographer's camera shortly after one of the newspaper reporters was given a 10-day suspended jail sentence on a disorderly conduct charge. Weston Haynes, the photographer, said the detective chief smashed his camera when he attempted to take Scarboro's picture in City Court. Earlier, in the same courtroom, Charles Davis Jr., 19-year-old Tribune reporter, was convicted of disorderly conduct in connection with a police station altercation Saturday.

INAUDIBLE WHISPER REASON FOR BARRING PLAY IN BOSTON

City Censor So Testifies in Suit to Enjoin His Action Against "Children's Hour."

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Jan. 29.—Herbert L. McNary, city censor, testified today that a child actress' whisper in the course of the play, "The Children's Hour," was the principal reason the play was barred in Boston. He was testifying in the suit of Herman Shumlin of New York, and the Children's Hour, Inc., who seek an injunction to prevent McNary, Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield and the Board of Censorship from barring the play.

McNary said he and Mansfield decided to bar the play because what the child whispered was not audible to the audience.

There is no law in Massachusetts which prevents whispering between characters in a stage production, but, he testified, they considered the incident, in view of the character of the play, sufficient ground for their action.

TREADWAY SAYS WALLACE OUGHT TO BE IMPEACHED

Massachusetts Republican Denounces, in House, Attacks on Supreme Court AAA Decision.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Representative Treadway (Rep.), Massachusetts, told the House today that Secretary of Agriculture Wallace "ought to be impeached" for his criticisms of the Supreme Court's decision refunding impounded AAA processing taxes. He attacked particularly Wallace's comment that the Court's order to return the processing taxes was "the greatest legalized steal in history."

"Any public official who makes a statement which calls a Supreme Court decision a legalized steal ought to be impeached," Treadway declared. He said Wallace should "take a sprint from the Cabinet—a walk would be too slow."

SENATE COMMITTEE FOR FARM BILL, 15-2

Revised Soil Conservation Measure Approved—Some Still Doubt Validity.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. — The Senate Agriculture Committee approved the revised administration soil conservation farm bill today by a vote of 15 to 2 and ordered the measure reported to the Senate. Senators leaving the meeting reported the vote and said very few new changes were made in the measure, which was introduced by Senator Bankhead (Dem.), Alabama, after White House conferences.

Although Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Solicitor-General Stanley Reed had expressed opinions that the bill is constitutional, some of the committee still were doubtful in view of the Supreme Court decision invalidating the Agricultural Adjustment Act.

The bill vests broad powers in the Secretary of Agriculture to make grants to farmers for economic use of their lands. It is a temporary two-year measures designed to serve as a stop-gap until a permanent program is enacted based on Federal grants to states.

The only last-minute change made in the bill was elimination of the title "to make further provision for the conservation and proper utilisation of the soil resources of the nation."

Retained was the sub-title: "To promote the conservation and profitable use of agricultural land resources by temporary Federal aid to farmers and by providing for a permanent policy of Federal aid to states for such purposes."

Before acting on the plan to pay farmers subsidies for soil rebuilding, the Senate committee discussed the advisability of including in its report to the Senate, but not in the bill, an argument by Senator Thomas (Dem.), Oklahoma, in support of cheaper money to hold up farm prices.

Louis B. Ward, adviser on money questions to Father Coughlin, was heard by the committee in this connection.

The House Agriculture Committee is in recess until the latter part of the week. Chairman Jones (Dem.), Texas, emphasized today, however, that "we are working." Jones leaves today to address the Illinois Farm Bureau Federation at Decatur tomorrow night, but expects to be back in time for a committee meeting Friday.

MAN WHO KILLED GIRL BRIDE OF 3 DAYS SENTENCED TO HANG

West Virginian Says He Shot 15-Year-Old Wife When She Prepared to Leave Him.

By the Associated Press.

LOGAN, W. Va., Jan. 29.—D. C. Cutshaw, 28-year-old coal miner, was sentenced today to be hanged for the murder of his 15-year-old bride of three days. Judge Naaman Jackson set the execution for Friday, March 13, in the State penitentiary at Moundsville.

Prosecutor Claude A. Joyce charged Cutshaw shot his bride when she prepared to leave his home after quarreling about a young girl friend living with her.

Cutshaw said: "I was so lonely that I could not live without her."

OPPOSITION OVER PROPOSED CAPITOL RENOVATION HEAD

L. F. Cochran, Kansas City Ex-Grocer, Backed by Park and Pendergast for $250-a-Month Job.

RECENTLY FIRED FROM CCC OFFICE

Three Appointments to Be Made by State Board for $200,000 WPA Project.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 29.—A move to have L. F. Cochran, a former grocer of Kansas City, appointed as supervisor of a $200,000 project for renovation of the State Capitol and its decorations, with the backing of Gov. Park and the Pendergast Democratic organization of Kansas City, has struck a snag in the State Board of Permanent Seat of Government, which will make the appointment.

Opposition has developed, it was learned today, due to Cochran's recent dismissal as senior clerk here in the procurement office for several CCC camps in Missouri, for alleged inefficiency, following a checkup of the office personnel by an agent of the National Park Service.

Members of the board, who are the Governor and four other elective State officials, have declined to comment, pending a further board meeting on the matter, but it is known that considerable pressure is being brought to bear to put the appointment through.

Fund Already Allotted.

The $200,000 for renovation of the Capitol has been allotted by the Federal Works Progress Administration, but the appointment of the supervisor of the project, and two assistants, is to be made by the Board of Permanent Seat of Government because these appointees are to be paid from a $25,000 appropriation, for a like purpose of cleaning up the Capitol, made by the last Legislature.

Gov. Park now is in Florida, on a vacation, and in his absence the campaign for the appointment of Cochran is being handled by Allen M. Thompson, State Old Age Assistance Commissioner, and other close friends and advisers of the Governor. Thompson formerly was the Governor's secretary. Cochran, since being dropped from the procurement office payroll last Jan. 13, temporarily has been working in Thompson's office as an old age pension investigator.

No Experience as Engineer.

Thompson appeared before the Board of Permanent Seat of Government Monday in Cochran's behalf, and said the Governor desired the appointment. Today he said Cochran had the indorsement of the Kansas City organization.

Thompson said Cochran had no experience as an engineer or builder, but that he had done good work in the old-age pension department, and that he had confidence in Cochran's business ability.

The Capitol is somewhat run down, due to failure to keep the building clean throughout, and considerable renovation work and repairs are necessary. The basement recently received its first thorough cleaning in three years, after newspaper reporters protested to State officials about its condition.

The proposed appointment was brought before the board for the first time about a week ago, when the Governor's wishes were made known and it was indicated a salary of $350 a month was desired for Cochran. Board members present voted to cut the salary to $250, but deferred action on the appointment.

Supported by U. S. Funds.

Dropping of Cochran from the payroll of the procurement office here was recommended by a Federal agent of the National Park Service, Department of the Interior, it was learned, in a report after checking the work of the office and its personnel. The office is supported by Federal funds. State Game and Fish Commissioner Wilbur C. Buford, whose department works in conjunction with this service, did not concur in this recommendation, it is understood, but Cochran was dropped from the roll Jan. 13. Department employes declined to comment, in the absence of Buford.

In his application for the procurement office appointment, on file in the Game and Fish Department, Cochran said he had been in the grocery and meat business in Kansas City for many years, had done all the buying for his store, had experience in lumber buying, and had been connected with two banks as a director.

Members of the Board of Permanent Seat of Government, in addition to the Governor, are Secretary of State Dwight H. Brown, State Auditor Forrest Smith, State Treasurer R. R. Nacy and Attorney-General Roy McKittrick. All of them are Democrats.

MARK GUMBERT'S ESTATE IS $284,000

Inventory Lists Stocks; Does Not Appraise Home in Brentwood.

Mark Gumberts, for many years operator of gambling resorts in St. Louis and the county, left an estate of $284,474, according to an inventory filed today in Probate Court at Clayton.

The estate included 6647 shares of common stock of the North American Co. valued at $135,432, and 1060 shares of that company's preferred issue, valued at $53,662. Total stock holdings, at current market values, were $275,284.

Other items in the inventory were bonds, $5150; cash, $3278, and goods and chattels, $762. The Gumberts home and three acres of ground on Manchester road in Brentwood were mentioned in the inventory, but not appraised.

Gumberts died last Oct. 9. His will bequeathed the bulk of his estate to his widow.

HEALTH BOARD MEETING ON MUENCH PROCEDURE

Members of State Board to Confer at Kansas City Tonight on Action Against Physician.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 29. — Members of the State Board of Health will confer in Kansas City tonight on procedure to follow in revocation proceedings against Dr. Ludwig O. Muench, St. Louis physician.

The board early this month voted to cite Dr. Muench for signing a birth certificate declaring his wife, Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench, was the mother of the baby which the St. Louis Court of Appeals later held to be the son of Miss Anna Ware.

Attorney-General Roy McKittrick, in an opinion issued yesterday, advised Dr. E. T. McGaugh, secretary of the board, that the board "should proceed as in any other case."

In addition to Dr. McGaugh, members who will attend the meeting are Dr. T. S. Burke, president, and Dr. P. T. Bohan, both of Kansas City, and Dr. W. T. Elam of St. Joseph.

PLEADS GUILTY OF ROBBING YOUNG WOMAN OF JEWELRY

George Borich Sentenced to Five Years; Arranged Holdup With Victim's Escort.

George Borich, 25 years old, pleaded guilty of robbery today and was sentenced by Circuit Judge Eugene Padberg to five years in the penitentiary. He was charged with robbing Miss Marie Nealey of $140 in diamond rings after previously arranging the holdup with her escort, Frank Hirt.

Hirt had pleaded guilty and received a similar sentence last March. The robbery occurred last Feb. 7 on Virginia avenue, near Chouteau, where Miss Mealey and Hirt had parked after going for a ride. She knew him only as "Joe," but her mother, Mrs. Della Dean, took the license number of his car after they told of the robbery on returning to her home. The arresst followed. Miss Nealey, 21 years old, resides at 2307 Park avenue.

3 CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH

Victims When Fire Destroys Home of Whitesburg (Ky.) Miner.

By the Associated Press.

WHITESBURG, Ky., Jan. 29.—Three children, ranging in age from 10 months to 5 years, were burned to death today when fire destroyed the home of John Green, a coal miner, near Seco in Lechter County.

Mrs. Green, who had been away, was severely burned trying to save the children.

how to fill them out. They were told to go to any post of the American Legion, to the Red Cross, 1706 Olive street; the Veterans' Welfare Association office in the Municipal Auditorium, or the headquarters of the Disabled American Veterans, 3737 West Pine boulevard, for assistance needed in completing their applications.

Later blanks were distributed from four grilled windows opening on the corridor, and each man received instructions as he got his blank. Some obtained extra copies for other veterans, friends or relatives. The line dwindled away quickly when distribution through the windows began.

Fingerprints Compared.

On each application blank there is a space for fingerprints of the applicant, which will be compared with those taken at the time he entered the service. In addition there is space for a certificate of identification. Persons qualified to fill out this certificate include postmasters or ther assistants, commissioned officers, officers of veterans' organizations, or any persons legally authorized to administer oaths, such as notaries public.

Veterans who have not borrowed on their certificates were instructed to forward the certificates and their applications to the nearest regional office of the Veterans' Administration Facility. The St. Louis office serves Eastern Missouri and some of the nearby Illinois counties.

Those who have borrowed were told that applications must be made at the office where the loan was made.

Mass Meeting Tonight.

A mass meeting of veterans under auspices of the American Legion Conference of Post Commanders will be held tonight at the Municipal Auditorium to explain the steps required for payment of the bonus. Application blanks will be distributed at the meeting. F. Whitney Godwin, national vice-commander of the legion, and Earl W. Shackelford, State Legion commander, will be the principal speakers.

PROTEST MEETING ON RELIEF CALLED BY WORKERS' UNION

Session Next Wednesday to Consider Charge That Payments Are Inadequate.

A protest meeting against alleged inadequate relief will be held at Vashon High School, Garrison and Laclede avenues, next Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock under auspices of the American Workers' Union.

In a statement announcing the meeting, Joseph Hoffman, secretary of the union's city committee, said the committee was opposed to consideration by the Board of Aldermen of the suggestion that the city spend $750,000 to buy the Arena for an Armory while funds for relief are inadequate.

"The American Workers' Union," he said, "demands that all funds with which the Board of Aldermen considers purchase of an armory be used to better the miserable conditions of the suffering unemployed and WPA workers; that these funds be used to feed, clothe and shelter the unemployed and to provide supplementary relief for WPA families, including medical attention."

FIVE HURT IN AUTO CRASH

S. C. Martin, St. Louis, Suffers Injuries in Arkansas.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 29.—Sidney C. Martin, 3141A Lackland avenue, St. Louis, suffered fractures of the spine and right shoulder yesterday when a car in which he and four others were riding collided with another and turned over near St. Vincent Infirmary. His wife suffered minor injuries. Others injured were: Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hopkins of Marshalltown, Ia., and Mrs. H. G. Boilinger of Columbus City, Ind.

Martin, who retired as a contractor because of a back injury received a year ago in a fall, had left St. Louis with his wife three weeks ago for Hot Springs, where he planned to stay a month for his health. He was riding in the car of friends when the accident occurred.

MEDIATOR HOLDS UP M. & O. STRIKE CALL

Persuades Union Not to Set Date Until After He Talks to Receiver.

Efforts to avert a strike of employes of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad were continued today by James W. Carmolt of the National Mediation Board who said he would confer with C. E. Ervin, one of the receivers of the company.

At Carmolt's request, the Employes' Joint Committee, which was to have met at the York Hotel today to set a date for a strike, postponed the meeting until tomorrow to permit time for any further negotiations.

The strike was authorized by a vote of employes, results of which were announced yesterday by J. H. McQuaid of Chicago, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and chairman of the joint committee representing all employes who have demanded restoration of wage scales in effect prior to Feb. 1, 1932.

McQuaid said 93 per cent of the ballots cast were for authorization of a strike. Of the railroad's 4000 employes, he said, 3200 were members of unions, but non-union members were permitted to vote also. He estimated ballots were cast by 86 per cent of all employes.

Unions involved in the proposed strike are those of locomotive engineers, firemen, conductors, machinists, maintenance-of-way employes and clerical workers.

In a letter to the National Mediation Board at Washington, McQuaid, acting for the committee, yesterday declined to submit the controversy to arbitration. This followed similar action by Ervin, who said that present revenues would not permit any raise in wages.

McQuaid, reviewing the dispute, pointed out that only half of a 20-per cent wage cut made in 1932 had been restored and complained that although the Federal Court had authorized a 5 per cent restoration effective March 1, 1934, the receivers had not made it effective until June 16 of that year, thereby, he claimed, depriving employes of $50,000.

"The Mobile & Ohio receives standard rates for passengers and freight handled," he wrote, "pays list prices for supplies purchased and in every respect is on a standard basis with all other Class 1 railroads with one exception—employes' wages."

TWO INJURED IN FALLS ON ICE

Woman, 75, and Man, 70, Suffer Hip Fractures.

Mrs. Elizabeth Du Ponte, 75-year-old widow, 3520 Page boulevard, suffered a fracture of the right hip last night, when she slipped on ice while crossing Grand boulevard at Page.

GIRL, 4, SERIOUSLY BURNED

Dress Ignited When She Falls Against Stove in Home.

Juanita, 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cavello, 4005A North Broadway, suffered serious body burns yesterday when her dress caught fire after she accidentally fell against a stove in her home.

New Racket in St. Louis.

A wealthy physician, residing in the West End, reported he was solicited by telephone yesterday to enroll as a life member of the "Editorial Writers' and Reporters' Press Club of Missouri," for a fee of $100. The caller represented himself as "George Edwards of the Post-Dispatch staff." There is no one of that name on Post-Dispatch staff. St. Louis newspaper men have not been solicited and none ever heard of such an organization.

TRIAL OF MEMPHIS WIDOW NEAR END

Prosecutor Calls Killing of Brenton Root "Cold-Blooded Murder."

By the Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 29.—The shooting of Brenton Root, 32-year-old son of a Chicago clergyman, was denounced as a "cold-blooded murder" today by the prosecution in demanding the conviction of Root's widow, Mrs. Daisy Alexander Root.

Sam Campbell, Assistant District Attorney-General, confined his argument largely to an outline of the events that led up to the shooting at Root's country home here, Nov. 3, after a night club "reconciliation party" at which he quarreled with his estranged wife over attentions to Lucile Underwood, 19-year-old, red-haired cigarette girl.

Attorney-General W. T. McLain will deliver the closing argument for the State. The prosecution is not asking for the death penalty. Testimony was concluded before noon.

Mrs. Root's lawyers contend she fired in self-defense during a "brainstorm of jealousy.

Supporting Mrs. Root's assertion that she was afraid of her husband, defense witnesses have testified Root threatened her life on several occasions and declared he did not love her.

Even at the night club party, according to Mrs. E. W. Maddox, Root pointed to the cigarette girl, and said, "there's my heart."

Mr. and Mrs. Root quarreled over the girl and, after the party broke up, Mrs. Root went to her husband's bedroom. She said she a roused him from sleep to get his assurance that he would not see Miss Underwood again and shot him only after he reached for a pistol lying on the floor beside the bed. The State alleged, however, that his pistol was not beside the bed, but in another room.

Several witnesses testified they had heard Root threaten Mrs. Root.

"I'll shoot your brains out!" Mrs. G. M. Fry, a neighbor, said she once heard Root shout at his wife.

Both Mrs. Root and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Benjamin F. Root, took the stand for the second time for rebuttal testimony.

The elder Mrs. Root testified she saw one "fight" between her son and his wife.

"Once while they were arguing, Daisy slapped Brenton," she testified. "He slapped her back and I immediately stepped between them."

She said, also, that the pistol which Mrs. Daisy Root testified her husband reached for when she shot him, was "usually kept under the bed" in the room where the killing occurred.

LAW LISTS A 'RACKET,' BAR COMMITTEE SAYS

Declares Subscribing to Directories Amounts to Soliciting Business.

Law lists and directories, to which many lawyers subscribe and which solicit legal business for the subscirbers, were termed "a major racket in the United States" in a report made today by a special committee of the Missouri Bar Committees to the Advisory Committee in session at Hotel Jefferson.

Publishers of the lists and directories, through traveling agents and representatives, solicit all kinds of concerns to send their legal business to their lawyer-subscribers, the report stated.

"This is no more or less than the lawyer soliciting business, which is prohibited," said the report.

"The Sin of It."

"The publishers of many law lists and directories, by virtue of their power to direct the flow of legal business to their subscribers, place the cost of subscriptions to their list or representation of their list by lawyers upon the basis of volume of business directed to the lawyer.

"The result of this is, of course, that the lawyer finally begins to work for the list, and the sin of it is that the lawyer pays for the privilege of working for the list. The list could not survive over night without the lawyer paying for the privilege of having his name inserted in the list."

The report estimated that Missouri lawyers pay from $150,000 to $300,000 annually for representation in these lists and directories.

The committee recommended publication of one comprehensive list of lawyers in the United States for the use of all to take the place of the large number of private lists and directories now in circulation.

Insurance Investigation.

The Advisory Committee, after receiving the report, began an investigation of the practices of the casualty insurance business affecting the integrity of the bar.

About 40 lawyers of St. Louis, Kansas City and outside cities, including committees from New York and Chicago, attended. They represented different insurance groups. Boyle G. Clark of Columbia, general chairman, presided.

There are 27 questions dealing with the unauthorized practice of law in Missouri and the interpretation of Supreme Court rules to be considered by the committee at this and subsequent hearings.

After the roll of lawyers present had been called, the committee decided to go into executive session until 4 p. m. to hear bar committees from other cities, after which the session will be thrown open for questioning of lawyers and representatives of individual casualty companies.

EVANSTON MAN INDICTED IN ST. LOUIS AUTO DEATH

A. G. Hester Named as Driver of Car Which Killed Jesse B. Everingham.

Indictments charging manslaughter and leaving the scene of injury to a person were voted by the grand jury yesterday against A. G. Hester of Evanston, Ill., in connection with the death of Jesse B. Everingham, who was run down by an automobile in a safety zone on the Twelfth boulevard viaduct Aug. 1, 1934.

Hester, a salesman, was arrested in Evanston last month and released on a fugitive bond after police here were told by Miss Irene Sommer, 3724 Fairview avenue, that Hester was the driver of the car which struck Everingham and sped away.

Miss Sommer said she, Hester and two other men were on their way to the Biltomore Club on Gravois road when the accident occured. They decided not to report the incident and the next day Hester left the city, she said. When arrested Hester admitted he was in St. Louis at the time, but denied knowledge of the accident.

Everingham, 42 years old, was a Terminal Railroad switchman and resided at 3401 Magnolia avenue.

MARRIED AGAIN, ISN'T SURE FIRST WIFE DIVORCED HIM

Harry Parker, Chauffeur, Held While Police Look Into His Matrimonial Affairs.

Harry Parker, 23-year-old chauffeur, 3302A Lemp avenue, was held at the Wyoming Street Police Station today while police investigate his marital status at the request of his wife, Mrs. Marge Waters Parker. They were married last March.

Parker, police reported, said he did not know whether he had been divorced by his first wife, whom he married in 1930. He was quoted as saying he destroyed papers sent to him for his signature in connection with a divorce action.

Parker and his wife were arrested on a peace disturbance charge last night when his mother, Mrs. Rose Parker, complained that they locked her out of the house.

Maplewood Woman, 64, Missing.

Police have been asked to assist in a search for Mrs. Katherine Middleton, 64 years old, who failed to return after leaving the home of her son, Carl Leonhardt, 7128 Drury lane, Maplewood, yesterday morning. She is 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighs 165 pounds, has dark gray hair and brown eyes. She was wearing spectacles with heavy lenses, a long dark coat and small dark hat.

GRAND JURY INQUIRY ON PLASTER CONTRACTS

Federal Body Investigates Letting on City Jobs for Which PWA Allotted Funds.

The Federal grand jury today began an investigation of plastering contracts recently let on several city construction jobs for which Federal Public Works Administration funds were allocated.

Investigation, begun by special PWA agents and subsequently presented to United States Attorney Harry C. Blanton, was based on reports that certain contractors conferred with men who represented themselves as spokesmen for the lathers' and plasterers' unions, resulting in high bids.

One of the jobs so investigated was the plastering of the arena section of the Municipal Auditorium, recently completed, in which the bid accepted by the general contractor was 45 per cent higher than the low bid in 1932, which was rejected.

The general contract for completion of the arena section of the auditorium was awarded last April on a low bid of $481,933. The contractor sublet the plastering contract on another bid of $152,500. Several other bids for plastering were near the same bid, or lower.

Among the low bidders was the Keystone Co., whose figure was $133,333. Its bid was ignored because the union would not furnish workmen to the company, which had been placed on the "unfair list" by the union. Officers of the company said that it paid union wages, but a union officer said the company had violated union rules. The rules said to have been violated were the subject of a special phase of the investigation made by PWA agents.

It was understood that some persons questioned by the special agents were reluctant to discuss the situation. The District Attorney declined to say whether these had been subpenaed and refused to make public the list of witnesses summoned for the inquiry.

It was learned, however, that among the witnesses scheduled for hearing today was Baxter L. Brown, president of the Board of Public Service. The board has jurisdiction over all municipal construction work.

Sues Bert Wheeler for Divorce.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 29.—Charging desertion, Mrs. Bernice Wheeler sued Bert Wheeler, movie comedian, for divorce yesterday and asked for custody of their daughter, Patricia Dolores, 7 years old. Mrs. Wheeler said they separated Dec. 1, 1931. They were married in Jersey City, N. J., April 15, 1928.

MOVIE SUIT DISMISSED WITHOUT PREJUDICE

Action on Government's Motion Leaves It Free to Renew Plea for Injunction.

The Government's suit to enjoin Warner Bros., Paramount and R-K-O movie interests from withholding films from Fanchon & Marco's Ambassador, Missouri and Grand Central theaters was dismissed by the plaintiff, without prejudice, today, by leave of Federal Judge Joseph W. Molyneaux.

By this action the way was left open to reinstitute the litigation but whether a new suit would be filed in the Fanchon & Marco case or in a similar case elsewhere was not determined. Special Assistant Attorney-General Russell Hardy, in charge for the Government, told reporters the difficulties between major film producers and certain independent exhibitors all over the country were about the same as they were here. He declared the Government would continue its efforts to remedy the situation, but did not know where, when or how the litigation would be resumed.

The defense was willing to have the local case dismissed on its merits, but objected to the dismissal without prejudice. Judge Molyneaux, however, sustained the Government's motion, holding the Court lacked the power of discretion in the matter, and that the Government had the "absolute right" to dismiss in this way.

Hardy, offering the motion yesterday, told the Court he did so in view of the rulings the Judge had made against the admissibility of various matters of evidence which the Government considered important to its case. He said he desired the opportunity to bring a new suit, naming as defendants, in addition to corporations, "the principal actors in the drama," meaning some of the executives of the corporations.

Today, Frederick H. Wood of New York, of counsel for Warners, offered to permit the Government to amend its petition, to bring in individuals as defendants. Hardy refused, asserting this woudl not meet the situation.

"We came here," Hardy continued, "to try to stop a practice long indulged in by great producers, which is driving smaller concerns out of business all over the country. The local case is only a small segment of a great conspiracy. We find that, under the Court's rulings, we are unable to make the desired showing of this situation we complain of, which is of great public importance."

Louis Phillips of New York, of counsel for Paramount, objected that the Government made "villainous charges" against the defendants, but "ran to cover" when given opportunity to prove them. Wood asked the Court to exercise discretion by overruling the Government's motion, in fairness to the defenses because of the difficulties and expense for them in connection with the suit.

Judge Molyneaux, who was assigned to the trial by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals after Federal Judge George H. Moore disqualified himself, prepared to return today to his home at Minneapolis, Minn. He complimented the lawyers for their calm and dispassionate manner during the trial, which began Jan. 6. and they expressed thanks for his patience. The Government had nearly completed presentation of its case in chief when the suit was dropped.

In a trial before Judge Moore last autumn the same general corporate interests and a group of their executives were acquitted by a jury of a criminal charge of conspiracy to withhold films from the three theaters. Both cases were based on actions of the three producing groups since Fanchon & Marco obtained the three houses from a bondholders' committee in August, 1934. Warners had sought to get the leases. Defendants in the injunction suit were Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., and five subsidiaries; two Paramount distributing concerns and the R-K-O Distributing Corporation.

STAVISKY'S WIDOW ARRIVES TO JOIN REVUE IN NEW YORK

Acquitted After 16 Months in French Prison, She Takes Job at $50 a Week in Cabaret.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Mme. Arlette Stavisky, widow of the pawnbroker, Alexandre Stavisky, whose financial operations caused a political crisis in France, arrived in New York yesterday to become a $50-a-week show girl in the cabaret revue, "Folies de Femmes."

"I have come here to work for my two children," said Mme. Stavisky, who recently was acquitted of complicity in her late husband's operations, after spending 16 months in prison.

All she has left of the Stavisky estate are remnants of her personal wardrobe. She said her jewelry had gone to her husband shortly before his pawnship business collapsed.

A.F.L. TO CONCENTRATE ON METAL WORKERS

Counicl Prepares Campaign to Enroll All 300,000 as Members.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 29.—The American Federation of Labor's executive council, after two weeks of sessions here, adjourned shortly afternoon today, to meet again in Washington on May 5.

A campaign to get the 300,000 or more steel, iron and tin workers into the A. F. of L. was mapped by the council yesterday.

The council also: Urged Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska not to carry out his "distressing and disconcerting" intention to retire "so that the masses of the people of this country will be the continuing beneficiaries of his broad and sympathetic statesmanship."

Voted to grant an international union charter to the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters and Maids, numbering 6000 members, the 111th international to be chartered by the A. F. of L. and the first of all-Negro membership.

Decided to press forward with organizing campaigns among cement, aluminum, gas and by-products, coke and gasoline filling station workers.

Agreed to extend support and cooperation to the new Automobile Workers' Union in such organizing efforts as it might originate and launch.

Asked President William Green to confer with D. W. Tracy, president of the International Union of Electric Workers, and James B. Carey, president o fthe Radio Workers' Council, concerning the latter group's proposed affiliation with the federation-chartered electrical workers.

BUSSES ON 3 ST. JOSEPH LINES

Street Car Co. Authorized to Make Change.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 29.—The State Public Service Commission yesterday authorized the St. Joseph Railway, Light, Heat and Power Co. to substitute trolley and motor coaches for street car service on three of its lines.

The change was authorized on application of the company, which asserted it was now operating the lines at a loss.

CUT IN NEW DEAL SPENDING FAVORED IN BUSINESS POLL

Members of U. S. Chamber of Commerce Want Balanced Budget Without Increased Taxes.

'RELIEF UNDER STATE CONTROL'

Federal Government Activities, It Is Decided, Should Not Compete With Private Industry.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Wide sentiment for revision of the Federal Government's spending, taxing and relief policies was reported by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States today after a poll of its member organizations.

Voting on 17 questions based on a committee report on Federal finance, the chamber membership—local chambers and trade associations—called for a reduction in spending and a balanced budget without increased taxes.

The membership also said that combined expenditures of Federal, state and local governments demanded so great a proportion of the national income that they "discourage business, threaten the security of wages and savings, and retard employment."

Approval was given a proposal that relief expenditures be "provided by and under the control of the states" with "reimbursable advances" from the Federal Government only on application of states and cities unable to obtain funds.

Chamber officers said they had received no indication that any of the member organizations had objected to the poll. In a previous poll on "recent trends" in Federal legislation, some local chambers charged the questions had a political bias, and declined to participate in the referendum.

Details of Voting.

A 1714½ to 3 vote proposed that the Federal Government adopt a fiscal plan including a provision that "after the budget is balanced, expenditures will be further decreased at the earliest practicable date in order that taxes may be reduced."

The widest divergence was the 1277 to 383 vote proposing that "capital gains and capital losses alike be disregarded for income tax purposes."

Other specific questions voted on and the ballots cast:

"Do the combined expenditures of Federal, State and local governments now demand so great a proportion of the total national income that they discourage business, threaten the security of wages and savings, and retard employment? Yes—1598½. No—79.

"Should a well-co-ordinated fiscal plan be adopted for reduction of Federal expenditures to bring about in the near future a balanced budget without increased taxes in order to create that confidence necessary for recovery and increased employment? Yes—1700. No—7.

"Should emergency expenditures necessary for the relief of the destitute unemployed be provided by and under the control of the states of their residence, with reimbursable advances from the Federal Government only on application of those states or municipalities which are unable to obtain the needed funds for that purpose? Yes—1613½. No—62½.

Government in Business.

"Should Federal expenditures, through the use of the taxpayers' money or by means of advances or loans, for the purpose of developing or extending governmental activities which compete with private business be discontinued? Yes—1683½. No—22.

"Is the use of Federal taxing power primarily to compel states or individuals to conform to social or economic readjustments, with revenue only incidental, contrary to sound public policy? Yes—1587½. No—79½.

"Will mounting tax rates tend to destroy incentive to invest funds in private enterprise and thereby diminish the sources on which the Government must rely for future revenues? Yes—1631. No.—50.

"Should Federal revenue policies be such as to protect established tax revenue sources of the states and their subdivisions? Yes—1661. No—22.

"Should determination of income for tax purposes conform with actual income as identified by approved accounting practices applicable to business? Yes—1693. No—8.

"Should taxation be applied at a flat rate to earnings of a corporoate enterprise, irrespective of size, whether composed of one corporation or a consolidated group of af-

COMMITTEE AGAINST RETIRING MITCHELL ON COLONEL'S PAY

Blocks Bill Which Would Have Put Him on Officers' Ex-Service List.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. — The House Military Affairs Committee declined yesterday to place William Mitchell on the list of retired army officers.

Mitchell was a Brigadier-General when he clashed with the army and navy high commands over his opinion that the aviation branches of the two services should be unified into a third and entirely separated defense agency. He was courtmartialed as a result of the controversy and resigned in 1926.

The committee voted against reporting a bill which would have put Mitchell on the retired list with the rank of Colonel, receiving a Colonel's retirement pay. Several members, it was learned, contended passage of th bill would be detrimental to military discipline.

THIRD REPUBLICAN SKIT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The Republican National Committee presented the third of its broadcast series, "Liberty at the Crossroads," last night. Actors dramatizing political events here for transmission by a telephone line to Station WGN in Chicago, which puts the acts on the air.

The skit treated of currency inflation, the administration's attitude on the gold standard and the size of the public debt. The policies of George Washington and Alexander Hamilton were contrasted with those of President Roosevelt.

WHITE HOUSE DINNER FOR SUPREME COURT

Six Justices Guests of President and Mrs. Roosevelt at Annual Affair.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Six Justices of the Sureme Court attended the annual dinner given in their honor last night by President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

Chief Justice Hughes headed the honor guests. Justice Roberts, who delivered the opinion invalidating the AAA, was there, as was Justice Stone, who presented the minority views supporting the administration farm plan. Justice Cardozo, who seldom attends large social affairs, was present. Justice Brandeis, eldest Justice, stayed away. He and Mrs. Brandeis have constantly avoided formal society in recent years.

Other Justices who sent regrets were Van Devanter and McReynolds. Both have bad colds.

Justice Sutherland attended, accompanied by Mrs. Sutherland. Justice and Mrs. Butler also were present.

The list of guests included many notables. Attorney-General Cummings and Solicitor-General Reed were there with their wives. Gov. McNutt of Indiana and Mrs. McNutt and Mayor Hague of Jersey City and Mrs. Hague were among guests from out of town.

Donald Richberg, former NRA head, and William Stanley, who quit as chief Assistant Attorney-General, also were guests, as were ranking members of the Senate and House Judiciary committees.

Jessica Dragonette, radio soprano, sang in an after-dinner program in the east room, to which 400 guests were invited.

FOR PAYING DILLINGER REWARD

Michigan to Ask Other States About Keeping Agreement.

By the Associated Press.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 29.—The Governor's office conceded today that Mrs. Anna Sage, known as the "woman in red," had a valid claim for $1000 against the State of Michigan for pointing out John Dillinger to Federal agents in Chicago.

R. Glenn Dunn, legal adviser to Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald, said former Gov. William A. Comstock had joined the Governors of four other states in guaranteeing a $5000 reward for the capture or death of Dillinger. Dunn said he would ask the Governors of the other states when they would pay Mrs. Sage the reward.

BORAH ADVISES REPUBLICANS TO AVOID BOSS RULE

DECLARES AGAINST BUSINESS CONTROL

Townsend Plan 'Impracticable' but He Favors Pension—Refers to Smith's 'Funeral Oration.'

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Spurred on by Senator William E. Borah's denunciation of the "selfish and sordid interests pulling the strings" in the Republican party, a faction opposed to the "old guard" in New York State opened its campaign today for delegates pledged to the Idahoan.

Addressing a "Borah-for-President" rally last night in Brooklyn, the Senator charged the voters of New York and of many other states "have been disfranchised" in the selection of a presidential nominee by a "self-appointed and self-annointed" group meeting in "secret conclave, behind closed doors, long after midnight."

It would be playing into the hands of this group, he said if uninstructed delegations were sent to the Cleveland convention.

Contrary to the expectations of some of those sponsoring the rally, Senator Borah did not announce his candidacy for the nomination. His words, however, were generally interpreted as authorizing his friends to enter his name in New York's preferential primary.

"Never in Doubt."

Senator Borah prefaced his discussion of some current issues with the remark: "I may be wrong, but I'm never in doubt."

"We ought to devote ourselves as a party," he said, "to keeping the channels of interstate trade open to all business men who desire to engage in any kind of business.

"We will go into this campaign against regimentation. We are opposed to controlling production. We are opposed to controlling business. That in all probability will be the position of the party."

The Senator said the Republican party must at the same time declare against "that monopolistic power which can fix prices for the people."

Those leaders "who think the American people are going to return to many of the old practices of past years," he continued, "and are leading the Republican party in that direction are leading it to defeat. . . .

"We cannot go back. We must move forward."

"Party ties rest rather lightly upon the shoulders of the people at this time, as we unfortunately know," Borah said, "and a system which permits a few self-appointed and self-anointed gentlemen to select a candidate for the presidency without consultation or advice of the voters will not satisfy the millions of voters in this campaign who are wrestling with the problem."

Townsend Plan Impracticable.

Senator Borah was handed an inquiry, before the meeting, as to his stand on the Townsend plan. In answering it, he declared his belief the plan is impracticable.

"But I do think," he added, "that we must provide an old-age pension of $50 or $60 a month." He reminded his audience he had striven in Congress to insert such a provision in the administration's social security program, which provides pensions of $30.

Borah made sarcastic reference to the address of Alfred E. Smith before the American Liberty League.

"Last Saturday night over the radio I listened to the most eloquent and the most pathetic funeral oration that I have ever heard," he said.

Like Marc Antony.

"It was your brilliant and distinguished ex-Governor, speaking over the dead body of the Chicago platform.

"Nothing like it since Marc Antony stood over the body of Julius Caesar. And as the adroit orator of the evening drew back the shroud from the dead platform and pointed to the numerous wounds inflicted by those whom he called traitors, you could hear the anti-Roosevelt Democrats and the regular Republicans cheering to the echo.

"How they do love an insurgent when he is in the other party."

For a 'Living Platform.'

"It was fine, but, Republican friends, let us not make the fatal mistake—the fatal mistake of assuming that this election will turn upon the question of a dead platform. It must turn upon the question of a living platform. And if the Republican party does not give the people a living platform, you may be assured that the election will not be gratifying in its result.

"And if you are going to give them a living platform, a platform which represents the aspirations and the ideals of the American people, and the men and women who have suffered in recent years, if you are going to give them that kind of a platform, then I say to you: Get just as close to the voters as you can when you are selecting the delegates to select the candidate for the presidency of the United States."

Republicans' Problem.

Senator Borah declared the Republican party approached 1936 with less power and with less influence in national affairs than any time in its history.

"There must be a reason. In my opinion, the reason is within the party and not outside the party."

The reasons, he asserted, must be ascertained before the 1936 convention.

"Unless we do," he said, "I am of the opinion we will not find them from uninstructed delegates to the Cleveland convention.

"It is my opinion the country is predominantly Republican."

It is necessary, he said, "to ascertain if we can, the policies and principles necessary to take care of the people as a whole."

To Remain Out of Europe.

Borah switched abruptly to the United States' foreign policy and the question of neutrality.

"Every one, it seems," he said, "wants to be neutral. But you can't be neutral and try to stop a foreign war.

"You can't be neutral and interfere with other wars.

"The thought of our foreign policy should be complete divorcement from the political embroilments of other nations.

Arbitrary as Mussolini.

Turning next to the Constitution, Borah declared that laws promulgated under unlawful delegation of power were just as arbitrary as "decrees of Mussolini."

He continued:

"The question is constantly asked: Shall we amend the Constitution? The forefathers very wisely provided a system of amending the Constitution of the United States and I do not think we need to be uneasy about any amendment which the people themselves approve of. If they make a mistake, they will correct it.

"But the dangers which we encounter are not amendments which may be proposed and made by the people themselves, but amendments to the Constitution through the usurpation of Congress or the usurpation of the executive department of the United States."

Lynching Bill Lacking.

In discussing the lynching bill, the Senator said: "I believe in state rights."

"And let me add," he said, "no one should be more interested in preservation of the Constitution than the colored man, to whom it is his charter of liberty."

The audience again cheered and the cry rose, "what about the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments."

"Is W. E. Borah the only one to be placed on the carpet?' he asked, smiling.

"But let me tell those who disagree with me to take their program to Philadelphia—yes, and Cleveland—and see how far they get."

In Light of New Conditions.

In conclusion, Borah said:

"I do not know—perhaps no man knows all the details of how we are to deal with the problems that we have been confronted with, but we must recognize the problems; we must demonstrate to the American people that we propose to deal with them in the light of these new conditions which have been presented.

"We cannot go back. We cannot compromise. We must move forward; and the political party which does not move forward, which does not advance, which does not accept responsibility, will drop out, and some other party will take its place."

After the rally, Senator Borah conferred with W. Kingsland Macy, former chairman of the Republican State Committee and leader of the "Republican Progressive Committee" organized after the "old guard" ousted Macy.

Borah's Campaign Song.

The supporters of Borah brought forth a "campaign song" at his appearance. Set to the tune of "U. S. That Means Us," it went:

"Borah, Rah, Rah, Rah,
Ring out his name far and wide,
Borah, Rah, Rah, Rah,
Join the cheer that swells the countryside,
Let all the nation hear his call,
A 'fair deal,' a 'square deal' for all,
Borah, Rah, Rah, Rah,
The choice of Americans all."

FINED AS CARELESS DRIVER

Man Charged With Running Down Two in Safety Zone to Appeal.

Yost Zweifel, 49-year-old machinist, 6020 Carlsbad avenue, was fined $200 by Police Judge Joseph L. Simpson yesterday on a charge of careless driving.

The case resulted from an accident Dec. 21 at Gravois and Taft avenues, in which, it was charged, Zweifel's automobile knocked down Mr. and Mrs. Ora Williamson, 3022A Ohio avenue. Witnesses testified that the Williamsons were standing in a safety zone. Zweifel, who gave notice he would appeal from the fine, denied the charge, asserting he did not drive into the safety zone, but that the Williamsons became frightened and fell down.

Mrs. Corbett, Missionary, Dies.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church received word today of the death in Shanghai of Mrs. Hunter Corbett, widow of one of the pioneer missionaries in the Far East. Mrs. Corbett, with her husband, the late Dr. Hunter Corbett, served at Chefoo, Shantung Province. Dr. Corbett died in 1920.

COUNTY COURT CUTS JAIL FOOD ALLOWANCE

30 Cents, Instead of 75, to Be Maximum for Prisoners' Daily Meals.

The County Court of St. Louis County, approving the budget of County Auditor Edwin O. Harper today, reduced the allowance to Sheriff Philip G. Deuser for feeding prisoners in the county jail from 75 cents a day for each prisoner to 30 cents.

Learning of the order before the court adjourned, Sheriff Deuser appeared to protest that the amount was insufficient to feed prisoners properly and said the Court would have to assume responsibility for their welfare.

The Sheriff claims as his own, in addition to his fees, limited to $10,000 a year, any profits from feeding prisoners. The maximum allowance fixed by law is 75 cents a day.

Asked to Submit Evidence.

After a lengthy discussion, Sheriff Deuser was asked to confer with Harper and offer evidence, in the form of bills and invoices to support his contention that 30 cents was insufficient, at the next meeting of the court Friday. The court term, during which the budget must be finally approved, ends Saturday

A recent audit of Sheriff Deuser's accounts showed that it cost $3576 more to feed fewer prisoners from July to November, inclusive, last year, than from February to June. Today the Sheriff told the court that cash purchases of supplies made by him during the February to June period were not shown in the audit.

Harper estimated that the reduction to 30 cents a day would reduce the county's bill for feeding prisoners to $8500 a year as compared to $20,500 last year.

To State Minimum Friday.

The audit showed the cost of feeding prisoners to have been 61¾ cents a day while the cost of feeding patients at St. Louis County Hospital was only 59 cents. Sheriff Deuser said he was not prepared to state the minimum required by him but would do so Friday.

Prosecuting Attorney C. Arthur Anderson, who was in court with Associate Prosecutor John J. Wolfe to ask the Court to make better provisions for juvenile delinquents, now kept in cells in the courthouse basement, said he thought it would be impossible to feed prisoners properly on 30 cents a day.

FAMOUS KING RANCH OF TEXAS PARTITIONED AMONG HEIRS

Property Appraised at $5,000,000 in in 1925, Comprised 1,400,000 Acres.

By the Associated Press.

McALLEN, Tex., Jan. 29. — The King ranch, greatest of the cattle ranges, will be known hereafter only by the songs it inspired. E. M. Card, official surveyor of the ranch for 25 years, says partition of its 1,400,000 acres among the King heirs is almost completed. The property was appraised in 1925 at $5,000,000.

Capt. Richard King began accumulating land after the war with Mexico. He died in 1885, leaving his acres and herds to his wife. Until her death March 31, 1925, Mrs. King managed the big estate, maintaining her residence at Santa Gertrudis, three miles from Kingsville.

Woman Fatally Burned by Stove.

By the Associated Press.

ELDON, Mo., Jan. 29.—Mrs. Martha Tracy, 84 years old, died last night of burns suffered yesterday morning when her clothing caught fire as she stood near a stove. Her son, James Tracy, with whom she lived, had gone to the barn and she and her aged husband were alone.

For Bad Winter Coughs, Mix This Remedy Yourself

Saves Good Money! No Cooking!

If you want the best cough remedy that money can buy, mix it at home. It costs very little, yet it's the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of distressing coughs due to colds, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. To make syrup, use 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money—a real family supply. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, helps clear the air passages, and thus ends a bad cough in a hurry.

Pinex is a compound of Norway Pine, in concentrated form, famous for its quick effect in stopping coughs due to colds. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

PERMANENT PWA SETUP URGED BY COL. H. B. HACKETT

Assistant Administrator Addreses Mineral Aggregates Institute in Convention.

WOULD PREPARE FOR FUTURE DEPRESSIONS

Says Skeleton Organization Would Have Plans Prepared for Emergency Like That in 1933.

A permanent public works program, as a safeguard against another depression, was advocated by Col. Horatio B. Hackett, Assistant Administrator of the Public Works Administration, in an address before the Mineral Aggregates Institute at Hotel Jefferson today.

The institute is composed of delegates to the joint convention of the National Sand and Gravel Association, National Crushed Stone Association, and National Slag Association, which opened Monday at the hotel.

Pointing out that "direct relief has been imperative due to our failure to plan in advance any program to check the disasters caused by uncontrolled economic panic," Col. Hackett asserted that with careful advance planning and the maintenance of a skeleton public works organization "the idling engine can be thrown into high gear instantly" if another depression comes.

Nucleus Available.

"At the present time," he said, "we have applications for thousands of meritorious projects for which funds are not now available. They must not be considered as abandoned. Congress has wisely afforded PWA the nucleus of a permanent public works program by providing that the proceeds from the sale of obligations taken as security for loans may be used for making additional loans for public works projects. We have at least 3500 excellent projects which could be undertaken immediately.

The National Resources Committee has set up planning committees in 46 states and Alaska so that a carefully considered national plan will be ready in the event another huge public works program is necessary, Col. Hackett continued.

"I go so far as to express the hope that henceforth no public work will be undertaken anywhere by the Federal Government until it has been approved by this national planning body, not only as to necessity and social importance, but as to priority," he said. "The days of the discredited pork barrel in the United States ought to be at an end forever.

Experience of 1933.

"We must not repeat the experience of 1933, when, without a single plan, mature or immature, and without an organization, the na-

WOULD PREPARE FOR FUTURE DEPRESSIONS

Says Skeleton Organization Would Have Plans Prepared for Emergency Like That in 1933.

A permanent public works program, as a safeguard against another depression, was advocated by Col. Horatio B. Hackett, Assistant Administrator of the Public Works Administration, in an address before the Mineral Aggregates Institute at Hotel Jefferson today.

The institute is composed of delegates to the joint convention of the National Sand and Gravel Association, National Crushed Stone Association, and National Slag Association, which opened Monday at the hotel.

Pointing out that "direct relief has been imperative due to our failure to plan in advance any program to check the disasters caused by uncontrolled economic panic," Col. Hackett asserted that with careful advance planning and the maintenance of a skeleton public works organization "the idling engine can be thrown into high gear instantly" if another depression comes.

Nucleus Available.

"At the present time," he said, "we have applications for thousands of meritorious projects for which funds are not now available. They must not be considered as abandoned. Congress has wisely afforded PWA the nucleus of a permanent public works program by providing that the proceeds from the sale of obligations taken as security for loans may be used for making additional loans for public works projects. We have at least 3500 excellent projects which could be undertaken immediately.

The National Resources Committee has set up planning committees in 46 states and Alaska so that a carefully considered national plan will be ready in the event another huge public works program is necessary, Col. Hackett continued.

"I go so far as to express the hope that henceforth no public work will be undertaken anywhere by the Federal Government until it has been approved by this national planning body, not only as to necessity and social importance, but as to priority," he said. "The days of the discredited pork barrel in the United States ought to be at an end forever.

Experience of 1933.

"We must not repeat the experience of 1933, when, without a single plan, mature or immature, and without an organization, the national administration was suddenly called on to undertake a program of public works practically overnight.

"There is hardly any limit to the amount of money than can legitimately and wisely be spent on public works in this country over a period of years. But, if we are to make any program effective, whether in depression or prosperity, it must be founded on three cardinal principles: it must be prepared and comprehensively planned in advance; it must contemplate expenditures adequate to the need; it must be free from politics, both in conception and in administration. Probably we cannot prevent the storms of future depression, but when they come we can to a great extent mitigate their fury by providing a sound roof over our heads."

He declared that a dollar put into construction work probably has the greatest effect of any in industry as, according to statistics he quoted, production of construction materials employs every tenth industrial worker, fabrication of them is carried on in 25 per cent of the country's factories and mills, and one carload in every five of freight moved carries construction materials. Of the total funds allotted PWA, $1,742,000,000 is devoted to the purchase of materials, he pointed out.

"Out of the $750,000,000 worth of securities accepted by the PWA we have already sold through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation about $303,000,000 worth of local bonds upon which we have made a profit for the Government of more than $4,750,000," he said.

Would Revive NRA Idea.

Abram F. Myers, former chairman of the Federal Trades Commission, was scheduled to speak, but was unable to leave his home in Washington because of illness, and his address was read for him. In it he asserted that the industries of the United States "will deserve whatever befalls them" if they do not unite and present to Congress a program for future co-operation among themselves to supplant the NRA.

There is a "danger," he wrote, that congressional committees given the task of drafting legislation to supplant the NRA "may feel called upon to report legislation based on academic and one-sided reports" of the former personnel of the NRA that "will entirely ignore the industry point of view."

A speech by Col. Lawrence Westbrook, assistant administrator of the Works Progress Administrator, on the WPA construction program also was delivered by proxy as he was unable to attend. Other speakers were John C. Gall, counsel for the National Association of Manufacturers, on "The Significance of Social Security and Labor Legislation," and Willard T. Chevalier, vice-president of the McGraw-Hill Publishing Co., on construction revival.

Committee Report.

In a report submitted to the institute, the Committee on Resolutions declared that any Government regulation of industry should be based on an amendment to the Constitution. It expressed the belief that a voluntary code for the industries represented at the convention could be successful only if compliance were made mandatory, urged that mass purchasing of materials for WPA projects be discontinued and that the programs be carried out through fixed price contracts awarded by competitive bidding, and asserted that the number of Government agencies concerned with housing—about 40—should be reduced and the Government should withdraw "from fields of industry in which private effort will be more conducive to permanent recovery."

An effort to halt "the alarming trend toward production of crushed stone, sand and gravel by divisions of Government," was recommended In 1929 only 7.5 per cent of these materials were produced by the Government agencies, but it rose to 17 per cent in 1934.

OHIO PAIR BREAK MARITAL TIES IN NINTH ATTEMPT

Couldn't Agree on Possessions; Wife Finally Gets Property, Husband Installments.

By the Associated Press.

AKRON, O., Jan. 28.—Eight times since 1929 Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kovach tried to break their marital ties, and on the ninth the knot broke, dropping a coal shovel into Mrs. Kovach's hands.

Six times Mrs. Kovach sued for divorce. Twice Koovach petitioned the court. On seven of those attempts, they couldn't agree on how to divide their property. The only solution was to resume their domestic life.

On the eighth attempt they had their differences over a coal shovel. Judge Oscar Hunsicker told them to separate. That was in December, 1934. Mrs. Kovach filed another suit, her seventh. Monday Judge Hunsicker awarded her a divorce. Under the property settlement, she gets the shovel, all the other property and her freedom. Kovach gts his freedom and $500 from Mrs. Kovach, on the installment plan.

GRAIN SCATTERED FOR BIRDS

Sportsmen at Fulton Provide 1000 Pounds of Seed.

By the Associated Press.

FULTON, Mo., Jan. 29.—Quail and other game birds, threatened with death because of seven-inch snow blanket covering this region, were provided with 1000 pounds of seed scattered Tuesday by Callaway County sportsmen and CCC camp workers.

Hunters pooled funds for the bird-food purchase and despite suz-zero temperatures six CCC trucks toured through a 25-mile area distributing the seed. Sportsmen said they intended to continue the practice until melting snows uncover the natural food sources.

Text of Senator Robinson's Reply to Ex-Gov. Smith

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.

FOLLOWING is the text of Senator Joe T. Robinson's reply to the recent speech here of Ex-Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

Ladies and Gentleman of the Radio Audience: I shall take for my text tonight, Genesis, the twenty-seventh chapter, verse 22: "The voice is Jacob's voice, but the hands are the hands of Esau."

Alfred E. Smith sought the presidency in 1928, when a man who raised his voice on behalf of the great causes of social justice and democratic principles was regarded by the stock ticker patriots with smug toleration or as a potential enemy of his country.

Gov. Smith in 1928 waged a clean and honorable campaign in behalf of common men and women, but he was swept down to defeat by greed and privilege, hiding behind a murky and malodorous smoke screen. Greed supplied the 30 pieces of silver and passion brought about the base betrayal of fundamental American principles.

Likens Smith to Janizary.

Now we are on the threshold of another national campaign with the same armies facing each other along the battle line. The preliminary skirmishing is under way, and what is our amazement to find Gov. Smith enthroned in the camp of the enemy, warring like one of the Janizaries of old against his own people and against the men and women with whom he fought shoulder to shoulder in the past!

A few nights ago there was held in the city of Washington a banquet by the miscalled "American Liberty League" and the main attraction on that occasion was none other than our old friend, the "Happy Warrior," who won his spurs battling for the rights of the plain people.

Let me read to you a description of that occasion from a Washington newspaper:

"Jammed elbow to elbow, tailcoat to tailcoat, fluttery bouffant dress to sleek black velvet dress, the tables set so closely together in the main ballroom that the ushers in the confederate gray mess coats and black pants scarcely could wiggle between the anti-New Dealers, Democrats and Republicans alike gathered to hear the magic rasping voice of Alfred E. Smith belabor the present administration."

"Du Ponts' Swellest Party."

Another writer in the same paper described it as a billion-dollar audience that glanced up with eyes of worship and love at the new champion who had come amongst them. It was the swellest party ever given by the du Ponts.

Yes, Gov. Smith not only has changed sides in the great battle, but his whole outlook seems to have undergone a transformation. He has forgotten apparently the issues upon which he ran for the presidency. The brown derby has been discarded for the high hat; he has turned away from the East Side with those little shops and fish markets, and now his gaze rests lovingly upon the gilded towers and palaces of Park avenue.

But now what a change; his hour-long harangue before the miscalled Liberty League was barren and sterile without a single constructive suggestion for meeting the great social and economic problems confronting this Government. He laid down a six-point program in which he proposed somewhat childishly that the Democrats should forget about the election, resurrect the platform of 1932, cease compromising with fundamental principles, discontinue efforts to change the fundamental principles of Government, remember oaths of office and regard the Constitution as a Bible.

Challenges "No Program" Charge.

Why, the "Happy Warrior" even went further than that. He boldly asserted that our great offensive to overcome the depression and adjust the nation's economic life had accomplished nothing and brought us nowhere. Is that a serious declaration or does it come under the heading of oratorical license? I challenge the accuracy of that assertion. Why, a table recently compiled shows that in the three years of the New Deal, as compared to the last three years of the Old Deal, unemployment has declined 30 per cent, cotton, wheat and corn have increased 100 per cent or more in value, industrial production has gone up 51 per cent, listed stocks have increased 134 per cent in value and listed bonds 22 per cent.

The progress of our recovery is apparent to every man who looks about him and the story of its onward march fairly leaps at you every day from the pages of the daily press. Bear in mind that when the Roosevelt administration came into power, hungry and abandoned men in the cities were searching the garbage pails for waste scraps and the American farmers were halting court foreclosures by physical force—which borders little short of revolution. And Gov. Smith says there has been no progress.

Roosevelt and Business.

President Roosevelt had not been in the White House 24 hours before bankers and other big business men now grouped in the Liberty League, appealed to him to "do something," to "do anything," to relieve the paralysis of business and to save them.

The President and the Congress responded to their appeals, saved the banks and in saving them also saved the insurance companies; saved the railroads, the farms and the homes. No sooner had these suppliants been made secure, than they began to complain of the very processes by which their fortunes had been preserved against bankruptcy. They did not, when they needed help, brand Government aid to private enterprises as Socialistic or Communistic; nor did they complain of the Government's engaging in what is normally private enterprise. Now, being secure, they regard it as violate of sound principle to accord the same assistance to others which they themselves have enjoyed.

Senate Leader Replying to Smith

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

SENATOR JOE T. ROBINSON.

So much for what the Roosevelt administration has accomplished.

Criticism and Smith's Record.

Now let's look at Mr. Smith's other criticism of the present Democratic administration. You recall that before the Liberty Leaguers, he started to read the Democratic platform of 1932 but for some strange reason he never finished it. I wonder why? Was there something further along, condemning stock market manipulations that he didn't like to read before his wealthy friends?

In any event, he charged that the New Deal was fostering and promoting class hatred; second, that it enacted an unconstitutional farm program and an unconstitutional NRA; third, that public money was being wasted; fourth, that Congress had abdicated its powers to the Executive, and fifth, in a flag-waving, soul-stirring crescendo, he charged the New Deal with trying to undermine the Constitution and Supreme Court while it fastened a Socialistic and Communistic dictatorship upon this country.

Let's look at the record. Why, Gov. Smith, from your own lips, with your own words, with your own matchless talent for illuminating the dark places of public discussion, I shall prove that you have advocated and championed every basic principle that has been written into law by the Roosevelt administration.

Smith's Speech in 1933.

In his speech on Saturday night, Mr. Smith made the ugly charge that the New Deal is fomenting class hatred. Let me read you what he said when he was addressing the Alumni Association of Harvard University on June 22, 1933:

"I remember, when we first spoke about the Workmen's Compensation Act, the Court of Appeals of our own State set aside the first enactment as being contrary to the Constitution. I remember when we enacted the Child Welfare Act it was referred to as paternalism and as Socialism.

"Our whole democracy at that time seemed to be devoted to the part that constitutional law and statute law was intended only for the protection of property and of money, and the human element did not seem to enter into it.

"The same has to do with the factory code; the same has to do with the provision for modern, up-to-date housing for our small-income group; the same has to do with the development of state-owned water power and the ownership by the state of the power at the site. Twenty years ago those were regarded as Socialistic. I was referred to many times by my political opponents as a Socialist. But, in the light of our present-day legislation, Mr. President, I claim I am one of the ultra-conservatives.

"We have nothing to fear in this country from a dictatorship. There can be nothing of that kind in this country. It cannot live here. We are not organized to carry it on. We have no desire for it. Great as may be the grant of temporary power in an emergency that Congress may by congressional enactment put into the hands of a President the thing we have to fear in this country, to my way of thinking, is the influence of the organized minorities, because somehow or other the great majority does not seem to organize."

"Two Al Smiths."

Yes, those were Mr. Smith's own words. Somehow, I think there must be two Al Smiths. One is the happy, carefree fellow behnd whom we marched and shouted in 1928, proud of his principles and eager to place him in the White House. Now we have this other Al Smith, this grim-visaged fellow in the high hat and tails, who warns us that we are going straight to Moscow. If I recall correctly, he came before the Senate Finance Committee in 1933 and urged us to recognize Soviet Russia and give it a five-year moratorium on debt payments.

Throughout his 1928 campaign Gov. Smith hammered at the Power Trust, denounced greed and special privilege and faithfully promised the people that if he were elected he would establish a new order of things and bring about what he called a "more equal distribution of prosperity." Now he talks about stirring up class hatred, but what he said then sounded a great deal more like "share the wealth" than it does like the comparatively mild statements of President Roosevelt.

Farm Relief.

I pass on to his next accusation. He charged the New Deal with fostering an unconstitutional farm relief program. He forgets that in 1928 he advocated the principles of the McNary-Haugen bill, which in many respects was far more drastic in its use of the taxing power than the AAA ever was. That's just a case of second-guessing. Let me quote you from his Jefferson day speech on April 13, 1932. He said:

"It is a perfectly easy thing to say we must restore the purchasing power of the farmer. Fine! Of course we must. But how are we going to do it? I would sooner have a short shake-hands with the fellow that knows how to do it than listen for a week to the fellow who knows how to tell you what the trouble is."

Well, Gov. Smith, you should have stepped out of that Liberty League banquet and gone four blocks to the White House to shake the hand of the man who raised the purchasing power of the farmers more than two billion dollars in one year.

Two Views on the NRA.

In his speech on Saturday night, Mr. Smith denounced the NRA as a giant octopus that entangled itself around all business, big and small, and tried to smother it to death. Another second guess. He made a radio speech on Aug. 22, 1933, in which he called attention to the fact that NRA was largely voluntary and he added, I quote:

"The slightest reflection on these facts should dispose of the claim, from whatever source it came, that the National Industrial Recovery Act shakes the firm foundations of our Constitution, or marks revolution in our government and in the conduct of our every-day life.

"Let us see whether, by shorter hours, higher wages and increased employment, we can avoid the dole, called home relief, and the disguised dole popularly known as relief work, the evil consequences of which we all know. It is infinitely better to pay the bill by the methods proposed in the National Industrial Recovery Act than to pay it in the form of public or private charitable relief."

These words of Gov. Smith constitute an unqualified indorsement of the act he so bitterly condemned last Saturday night.

Public Money for Relief.

The next charge was that public money was being wasted and that the party had failed to fulfil its pledge of a 25 per cent reduction in Government expenditures. He neglected entirely to state that no President ever could have refused the call of suffering humanity that existed during the crisis of 1933. He knows very well that any chief executive too cowardly to use the national credit to save human life would have been consumed in the burning hatred of his own people.

I'll go further than that. Gov. Smith himself was urging appropriations for public relief at the very time that platform plank about which he boasts so loudly was being drafted. He made speech after speech urging a public bond issue to provide employment. He appeared before a committee of Congress for that purpose. Here is what he said at the Jackson day dinner in Washington on Jan. 8, 1932:

"Now if it is all right to put the credit of the Government behind business, let the credit of the Government be used to keep the wolf of hunger away from the doormat of millions of people."

In that same speech, Mr. Smith declared that the conduct of the Hoover administration was "indefensible" because States, cities and private charities were out of funds and unable to cope with the relief situation. He forgot to mention that speech to his Liberty League friends. Once again he was second-guessing.

On Use of Powers of Congress.

Let's pass on to his fourth charge that Congress has abdicated its legislative powers and, as he said, the country is now run by bureaucrats. Why, what Congress did is the very thing he advocated. In that Jackson day speech from which I just quoted, Smith said:

"I would therefore suggest that Congress empower the President of the United States to appoint a Federal administrator of public works and put the President in such a position as he can clothe him with plenary power to cut, slash, dig into, and run through all the red tape, and through all the statutory restrictions that are placed upon the Government in the progress of public works.

"In other words, invoke the tactics of war, instead of dotting all the I's and the T's and going through all the cumbersome labor of the peace-time performance when it comes to public works construction."

Oh my, Gov. Smith, what a short memory you have. Your charge that the Roosevelt administration is fostering Socialism and Communism is so ridiculous, its actually funny. Honestly, Governor, I think you've been seeing things under the bed, you know those Communist spies that our good friend Ham Fish is always talking about. Where have I heard that charge of Socialism and Communism before? Oh, now I recall, that's the identical charge that Herbert Hoover made against you in 1928.

Socialism Then and Now.

Remember, Governor, after you fearlessly advocated the public ownership, public control and public development of water power sites. Poor old Herbert whimpered that it was state socialism because he lacked any adequate or statesman-like reply to the position you took. And how you nailed poor Herbert on that one; You reminded him that the same old cry had been raised against Theodore Roosevelt, Charles Evans Hughes, Woodrow Wilson and every other public servant who ever attempted to perform a public duty on behalf of the whole people. Very properly you said that silly charges of that kind did more to promote Socialism in this country than any other cause.

Let me quote just two short paragraphs from the Boston speech of yours on Oct. 24, 1928. You said:

"The cry of socialism has been patented by the powerful interests that desire to put a damper on progressive legislation.

"Failing to meet the arguments fairly and squarely, special interest falls back on the old stock argument of Socialism. The people of New York State are tired of the stock argument, have discovered that it means nothing, that it is simply subterfuge and camouflage, and I am satisfied that the people of the nation in their wisdom will so appraise it."

Yes, Gov. Smith, you very properly reminded Mr. Hoover that under his definition even Charles Evans Hughes, the present Chief Justice of the United States, was a Socialist.

"Blow Below the Belt."

Now then, Gov. Smith, I wish to comment on one more portion of your speech. You quoted from President Roosevelt's message to Congress and then, by straining and distorting his meaning, you charged the President with saying, "If you are going to have an autocrat, take me; be very careful about the other fellow." Now the Chief Executive never said that, and he never hinted at any such thing. That looks just a little bit like a blow below the belt. Now suppose I read the record on you—not what someone else said, but what you yourself said. I am now going to read you verbatim a news dispatch which appeared in the usually reliable New York Times, in the issue of Feb. 8, 1933, just before Mr. Roosevelt entered the White House. I quote:

"Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith told 400 guests at a dinner of the Catholic Conference on Industrial Problems at the Hotel Astor last night that the nation needs a director of public works with power to cut through red tape if appropriations of public funds are to count in the war against the depression.

"The former Governor asserted that the economic crisis had caused more domestic damage than participation by the United States in the World War, and he declared it must be fought as a democracy traditionally fights, by arrogating to itself the powers of 'a tyrant, a despot or a monarch.'

"'Let us look back a few years to 1917 and 1918," Mr. Smith proposed. "What did we do then? Why, we took the Constitution, wrapped it up and put it on the shelf and forgot it until it was over.'"

Just think of that! Alfred E. Smith proposed in 1933 that we wrap up the Constitution and put it on the shelf until the depression was defeated and then coming down here in 1936 to lecture Democratic leaders on constitutional government!

Issue of Constitutionality.

Now let me say something about the Constitution. In the whole United States, there is not a single individual who can honestly and truthfully charge Franklin D. Roosevelt with advocating the suppression of freedom of speech, freedom of the press, freedom of assemblage, freedom of worship, or any of those other basic rights guaranteed us in the immortal bill of rights.

The idea that Gov. Smith wished to convey in 1933 is the idea we all had, namely, that in a time of stress and torment, when every moment demanded action to preserve human life and prevent human suffering, it was imperative to cease wasteful quibbling. He meant the time had passed for legal hairsplitting and pompous phraseology.

Gov. Smith meant he was tired of boresome self-styled constitutional authorities like James M. Beck, the chief justice of the Liberty League, who has appeared 10 times before the Supreme Court on constitutional questions and been turned down eight times.

History will show and the record now will show that President Roosevelt has never advocated the adoption of a single measure designed to curb in any way the just liberties of any man.

Judges Differed on AAA.

Of course President Roosevelt was unable to say definitely and finally in the great emergency of 1933 just where state power ended and Federal power began. Of course Congress was unable to say flatly and finally that the measures adopted would come within the framework of the Constitution as interpreted by the Supreme Court. Who could say conclusively the AAA was constitutional or unconstitutional? Why even the court itself differed on that issue, and three of its keenest members gave their unqualified opinion that it was constitutional.

We anticipate unprincipled men, engaged only in promoting their own interests, to join the hypocritical and pharisaical chorus, to join the hue and cry of those who falsely accuse the President of the United States of trying to undermine the organic law of this country. But we don't expect it from high-minded individuals who know better, from men who themselves have advocated far more drastic policies and programs than Mr. Roosevelt has pursued. If you condemn the President, Gov. Smith, you condemn yourself one hundred fold.

Roll Call of Liberty League.

The list of directors and officers of the American Liberty League reads like a roll call of the men who have despoiled the oil, coal and water power resources of this country. With notable exceptions they were lined up against you in 1928, supplying the money with which Herbert Hoover went about the country denouncing you as a Communist and a Socialist.

It was strange to see you in such company, Gov. Smith. Over here marches the same army with whom you fought for social justice for a quarter of a century—Senator Wagner, Franklin Roosevelt, Miss Perkins, Senator Norris and those other comrades of your earlier and better days. The glamour of your presence and the brilliance of your personality so completely dominated that gathering on last Saturday night that in the half-shadows were concealed the lurking figures of men who fought for 25 years against the principles of government you espoused. Within a few feet of the table at which you sat were members of the Power Trust, some of whom you denounced by name in 1928.

"Hoover With You in Spirit."

I'm sure Mr. Hoover was with you in spirit, his cherubic face agleam and his chubby hands applauding ecstatically as you repeated against Mr. Roosevelt the very speech which he himself delivered against you in 1928.

Yes, Gov. Smith, it was as difficult to conceive you at that Liberty League banquet as it would be to imagine George Washington waving a cheery goodby to the ragged and bleeding band at Valley Forge, while he rode forth to dine in sumptuous luxury with smug and sanctimonious Tories in nearby Philadelphia.

Perhaps in the heat of battle sometimes our commanding officer, President Roosevelt, has employed the wrong tactics. Perhaps there has been confusion and loss of energy. Those things always happen when human beings attempt mass operations in hurried formation under the pressure of adverse fate. But those things never yet have justfied a change of allegiance in the face of the enemy.

Desertion in Face of Enemy.

It rests with no soldier who approaches the battlefield under the flag of his leader to retire while the war continues. Above all things he must never go over to the enemy.

Yes, I agree with you, Gov. Smith, that the Democratic party belongs to no individual and no group. It can not be purchased by the American Liberty League. The financial angels of the league will discover they cannot buy a monopoly over the name of freedom in the same way they have purchased monopolies over oil, coal and water power.

Gov. Smith, I've read you the record. You approved NRA, you approved farm relief, you urged Federal spending and public works, you urged Congress to cut red tape and confer power on the executive, you urged autocratic power for the President, and you exposed with merciless logic the false cry of Communism and Socialism. The New Deal was the platform of the "happy warrior."

The policies of the Liberty League have become the platform of the Unhappy Warrior.

Oxford Days of Edward VIII; Young Prince Given a Special Course, "The Makers of England"

Van Loon Tells How Royal Student Lived in Rooms Once Occupied by Charles I. Who Was Beheaded.

This is the seventh of a series of 10 articles on King Edward VIII and the royal family of Great Britain.

By Hendrik Willem Van Loon.

CHAPTER 7

(Copyright, 1936.)

The English being an eminently practical people accept the fact that all men are born unequal as far as their natural abilities and their natural or acquired habits of industry are concerned.

Therefore they have arranged their universities in such a way that the bright and enthusiastic students can rush ahead as fast as they wish, while the not-quite-so-bright and the indifferent ones can amble peacefully along at the tail-end of the procession where they can do no possible harm.

Of course, when the graduates afterwards try to find employment, the picture does not look quite so pleasant. Those who did not go in for honors (which in England means that they contented themselves with mere pass-marks) find themselves almost automatically excluded from the more desirable jobs.

System Is Fair to All.

But as everybody knows all that beforehand, the whole thing is absolutely fair. It gives the poor but bright boy who gets a scholarship, every chance to make good, while it prevents the merely rich and dull from cluttering up the entire machinery of education.

Now, of course, Kings and heirs to the throne do not go in for competitive examinations. They may seem silly at first sight, but on the other hand, professors with a very royalist bent could easily turn such examinations into a farce, whereas those who feel a resentment against the monarchical form of government could easily use the occasion to show up the royal candidate as a nitwit.

Those, however, who are under the impression that the young Prince of Wales was therefore permitted to go through college as the nobility and gentry had been allowed to do 100 years before, would again be mistaken.

Prince's Curriculum Worked Out.

Neither King George nor Queen Mary was the sort who liked to leave anything to chance, and before their young hopeful had departed for Oxford his curriculum had been most carefully worked out between Hansell, his private tutor, and Dr. Herbert Warren (now Sir Herbert Warren), the head of Magdalen College, and had been submitted to the King for his approval.

At the head of the list came foreign languages. The Prince was supposed to have learned French from M. Maurice Escoffier, who had been his special instructor in Paris. But as he never seemed to have felt any particular liking for the French people, he had not got very far. German, being the hereditary domestic language of his family until the war, came much easier. The English tongue was to be a matter of serious study.

Economics Not Stressed.

Political science, or what we call "civics," was of course a matter of serious importance, but economics were not so much stressed as we would have done in America. Of course, the 20 years immediately preceding the Great War had been a veritable paradise for the professional economists. Every college student was driven through the mill of economics and no pun intended either upon that incredible bore, John Stuart Mill.

Young Edward was not exactly a bookish sort of person and within the realm of economics he has learned about everything he knows from direct and personal observation.

And then, finally, there was that particular art (for I prefer to think of history as an art, rather than a science) in which the English universities have always specialized. The English hold to the quaint notion that only those who are thoroughly familiar with the mistakes of the past, may ever hope to avoid those same mistakes within their own particular lifetime.

Over here we do not exactly share that enthusiasm for the events of a hundred or a thousand years ago. We pride ourselves upon living in the "here and now." But I suppose that when you happen to live in a country where you find a couple of Roman bricks every time you start digging a sewer and where, except for a few short interruptions, there always has been some sort of King as far back as the days of the Knights of the Round Table, you get a somewhat different view of that "here and now."

Sixtieth to Be King.

And when you are the sixtieth person to hold a certain position (in this case, the throne of England), you may even feel that it wont do you any harm to know what your predecessors had tried to do, had succeeded in doing and wherein they had failed to accomplish any direct result.

The headmaster of Magdalen arranged a special history course for benefit of the heir to the throne. It was to be called "The Makers of England," and was to begin with the days of the slightly problematic King Alfred the Great.

This course would not merely mention the rulers themselves, but it would more particularly stress the lives of the statesmen who had been in charge of England during their reign and who had been responsible for the actual conduct of affairs.

In that way a great many rulers were reduced to mere footnotes in the lives of their servants, but that, of course, is the way history should really be written.

And so Edward P., who, as far as I can find out, was the fourth Prince of Wales to be a Magdalen student (his grandfather, King Edward VII, and Arthur, the eldest brother of Henry VII, and Henry, the elder brother of Charles I, also have attended this college in their time), and so Edward P. used to go regularly to the library of the headmaster's house, which was commonly known as "The Lodgings," and he spent part of his mornings there writing essays upon the lives of his predecessors.

It was not the first time, either, that these rooms had been occupied by royalty. Just 288 years before King Charles I had occupied that same spot, pondering on his own immediate prospects and wondering whether the noble sacrifice of all of Magdalen's silver plate (melted to pay the King's soldiers) would save him from his doom.

An Example for the Prince.

It would take an almost unfathomable lack of imagination for a person not to feel somehow impressed by such a curious stage setting. Charles, after the defeat of his troops, had paid for his career of double-dealing and sly prevarications by losing his head. Yet he had been a man of parts, as young Edward must have known from his own studies. He had been good and often he had been kind, and yet, somehow or other, there had been a weak spot in that armor of virtue and industry. I shall not here try to discover what that weak spot was. I merely want to draw your attention to the fact that it was in exactly this sort of an atmosphere that King Edward VIII was placed by his parents.

Being an intelligent lad, he probably drew the correct conclusions and realized that the tragedy of Charles had lain in his complete dependence upon corrupt, malicious, cruel and short-sighted servants and ministers.

If training of the right sort may make a man careful and circumspect in the choice of his assistants, those years in Magdalen College may well have played a most helpful part in shaping the Prince's career as an independent sovereign.

For he will always remember those hours spent with the ghost of his predecessor, the unfortunate Charles I. And it is not a bad thing for a young sovereign to contemplate a royal scaffold and to see a royal personage climb painfully through a window that faces the executioner's block and to say to himself, "There, but for the grace of God" . . .

Insurance Collector Robbed.

Raymond L. Berlo, a collector for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., was held up last night near the garage at the back of his home, 4438A Margaretta avenue, by two Negroes, one of whom was armed, and robbed of $45. The money represented collections for the company. After taking the money one of the robbers struck Berlo. Both Negroes fled on foot.

NO SEPARATE BILL FOR CASH FOR RIVERFRONT WORK

3-HOUR DEBATE AT HEARING

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—After a conference at the White House Senator Clark of Missouri said today that he had been assured by President Roosevelt that the administration would take under advisement Clark's proposal to put the additional Federal appropriations needed for the Thomas Jefferson River Front Memorial in a forthcoming public works bill.

Clark said it was his understanding that the President would not ask for additional funds for the memorial in a separate bill, as had been previously announced.

The specific items in the forthcoming public works bill have not yet been determined, and Clark said that it would be desirable to have the St. Louis Memorial project grouped with other Federal projects.

MEMORIAL BILL HEARING LIVELY

The Aldermanic Ways and Means Committee had before it today a restatement of all the arguments for and against the river front Jefferson Memorial project.

These arguments were heard in a spirited three-hour debate yesterday afternoon before an audience of about 800 filling an assembly hall of the Municipal Auditorium, on the immediate question of sale of $2,250,000 city bonds to start the project, as provided in a bill under consideration by the Ways and Means Committee.

Speakers urging favorable action on the bond bill used the familiar arguments of progress, civic pride, stabilization of property values, beautification of the city's "front door," attraction of tourists and trade to St. Louis, jobs for the unemployed, and "let's get our part of the Government money."

Arguments of Opposition.

On the other side, it was denied that the supposed benefits would result and it was urged that the cost would be a burden on taxpayers and too high a price to pay for civic pride; that many of the 350 business firms in the river front district would be forced out of business and others burdened with an excessive moving cost; that many of the 5000 persons regularly employed in the district would lose their jobs, and that the Government's agreed participation at present provided only for a total expenditure of $9,000,000 although the city voted its $7,500,000 bond issue with the understanding that a $30,000,000 project would be carried out, with the Federal Government contributing $22,500,000.

A new note of the opposition was the charge made by two speakers that the city administration has "traded off" its claim on Federal funds for slum clearance and low-cost housing in return for a Federal allotment of only $6,750,000 for the memorial. August Walz, lawyer, and Paul O. Peters, representing the Citizens' Non-Partisan Committee, made this charge.

Enough for Allotment.

The bill before the Ways and Means Committee provides for sale of only enough of the $7,500,000 bonds authorized at a special election last September to meet the Federal allotment of $6,750,000 in the ratio of one dollar of the city funds for each three dollars of Federal funds. As members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, Mayor Dickmann and President William L. Mason of the Board of Aldermen have approved the bill, but Comptroller Louis Nolte, third member of the Board of Estimate, voted against it on the grounds that the project as now contemplated is not the same as that for which the people voted the bonds.

Mayor Dickmann has been urging prompt action on the bond sale bill, and it appears certain that the Board of Aldermen will finally pass it. The 12 Aldermen politically friendly to the Mayor are expected to vote for it and four of the group of 17 antagonistic to him have said they would vote for it. It requires 15 votes for passage.

Standing Vote by Audience.

Opening the hearing yesterday, Alderman Nick Reidy, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, stated the committee had an open mind on the bill and intended to

CWA MURAL IN SCHOOL UNDER FIRE AS 'COMMUNISTIC'

Legion Post Demands Board of Education Remove Work at Rockford, Ill.

By the Associated Press.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Jan. 29.—An industrial mural which has adorned the walls of Roosevelt Junior High School for more than a year was termed "communistic" yesterday by a Rockford post of the American Legion, which asked the Board of Education to remove it. A product of Artist Herbert Rosengren and the old Civil Works Administration the mural bears a brass plate which says it belongs to the United States Government.

One panel shows a workman shackled to a wheel he is turning, another a group of miners apparently trapped below the ground awaiting rescue, and a third a group of miners, women and children, separated from the mine shaft by a row of bayonets.

"I agree with the Legion that the picture is a peculiar painting," William W. Ankenbrand, City Superintendent of Schools, said today. "It isn't a painting for child life. It makes one get riled up and stirred up."

AUTO ACCIDENT INJURIES HAVE HEALED, ROOKIE PLAYER REPORTS

Lyle Judy, the 23-year-old Springfield (Mo.) second baseman, who was purchased by the Cardinals last fall after he had shattered the all-time Western Association record by stealing 107 bases, has signed his 1936 contract, according to an announcement today from the Cardinal offices.

Judy suffered a severe head injury in an automobile accident in Louisville last fall. However, both Judy and his physician report that his recovery is complete.

In addition to his base-stealing achievements in 1935, Judy led his club in hitting and was third among the batters of the Western Association with an average of .337.

Judy did not confine his pilfering efforts to second base. He stole home 16 times during the season. He led the Western Association second basemen in defensive play with a fielding percentage of .961.

When the Cardinals traded Burgess Whitehead to the Giants for Pitcher Parmelee it was with the idea that Judy was ready to take his place as an apprentice to Manager Frankie Frisch at second base, according to Vice-President Branch Rickey of the Cardinals.

Judy reported to the Cardinals following the close of the Springfield season and appeared in several games here. He was used chiefly as a pinch runner.

Hartnett Signs Contract.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—Catcher Leo (Gabby) Hartnett of the championship Chicago Cubs, voted the National League's most valuable player in 1935, effectively silenced rumors that he was a holdout yesterday by signing his contract.

The big catcher strode into the Cub offices and delivered his signed contract, which called for a good raise, making him the highest paid player on the team.

"The Cubs have been pretty good to me during the 13 years I have been with them and wonderful when my arm went out of commission a few years ago," said Hartnett. "I hope to make my fourteenth year, that's the one coming up, the best I ever had."

Eighteen Cubs already have signed 1936 contracts and not a holdout is in sight. Thirty-two players, 10 of them distinct rookies, will be taken along to the Santa Catalina Island training camp. The spring roster shows 15 pitchers, four catchers, eight infielders and five outfielders.

Dodgers Release Players.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The Brooklyn Dodgers announced yesterday that they will play Louisville at Palatka, Fla., March 29. This is in addition to the game already scheduled at Clearwater against the St. Louis Cardinals for the same date.

It also was announced that two pitchers, an infielder and an outfielder have been optioned to their New York-Pennsylvania League farm at Allentown, Pa. The players were Shortstop Raoul Dedeaux, Outfielder Nick Tremark and Pitchers Harvey Green and Ed Hassen.

Dedeaux, a University of Southern California star, was purchased from Dayton, O., last fall, together with Hassen. Green and Tremark both were with Allentown last season.

Charley Gelbert Honored.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 29. — Charley Gelbert, the St. Louis Cardinals' game infielder, was chosen last night by Philadelphia sports writers as the "most courageous" athlete of 1935.

The award was made at the thirty-second annual dinner of the Philadelphia Sporting Writers' Association, attended by more than 1000 persons.

Gelbert was named for his comeback to active diamond warfare in 1935, after being out of the game two years with a gunshot wound in the leg, suffered in a hunting accident.

Barrett in Los Angeles.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 29.—Rounding up rookies as prospective big league material, Charley Barrett, chief scout of the St. Louis Cardinal baseball team, was in Los Angeles today. Barrett was accompanied by Bill Killefer, who will manage the Cardinals' new club at Sacramento, Cal., and Ira Smith of Houston, Tex.

Former Tiger Player Dead.

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 29.—Jerald T. Sowers, 36, former Detroit Tigers second baseman, died last night, fourth victim of an auto collision Thursday night. He was a native of Middleton, O., and an employe of U. S. Veterans' Hospital at Legion near here. Surviving are widow and two children here.

Illinois Signs Tennis Coach.

By the Associated Press.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Jan. 29.—Appointment of Caspar H. Nannes, former captain and coach of the Rutgers tennis team, to coach the University of Illinois net squad this season was announced yesterday by the director of athletics, George Huff. Nannes was expected to enroll in the graduate school of Illinois. He has coached the Rutgers team since graduation in 1931.

Getting Ready for the National Championships and Olympic Games

ST. LOUIS GIRLS IN TRAINING FOR INDOOR MEET

The St. Louis A. C., with a good chance of winning the National Women's Indoor Track and Field championship will throw every available member of the team into the national meet when it is held at the Arena on Feb. 12. An advantage in the number of entrants, which the local team will enjoy, is likely to mean a great deal in the final rolling up of points. Some of the members of the team worked out yesterday afternoon at the Arena.

At present indications, the local team is likely to be represented by at least 15 members. While few of the members are conceded good chances of taking first places, track enthusiasts are hopeful that the number of second and third places which the squad can pick up will take care of a high number of points.

The 400-meter relay team, of course, is the feature attraction for the St. Louis team. This foursome drove down the stretch to take the national outdoor title at New York last fall and will make a strong bid to add the indoor title to its laurels on the Arena course.

Two members of the championship relay squad have since dropped out of the foursome, but their places have been taken by speedy newcomers, who are expected to do as well. Gertrude Webb is devoting most of her time to coaching while Jane Santschi is concentrating on field events in the current meet. They have been replaced by Jessie Crane and Edna Gustafson.

The two outstanding St. Louis sprinters, May Brady and Harriett Bland, are still members of the relay group and are expected to be in great shape for the coming meet.

In addition to the members of the relay team, other members of the St. Louis squad who are entering an intensive training grind are Esther and Ruth Beyer, Helen and Hida Huning, Dorothy Swengler, Connie Hundelt, Sara Raskas, Ruth Really, Irene Roth, Catherine Schotzman, Anne Bucich, Laura Wilke, Clara Ruth Harvey, Emmetta Haupt, Loretta Murphy and Catherine Maguire.

NATIONAL LEAGUE'S UMPIRE BUDGET TOTALS $110,000, FRICK SAYS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Umpire Dolly Stark's debut as a hold-out drew an ultimatum yesterday from Ford Frick, president of the National League.

Frick said he didn't even know of the arbiter's demand for more money until he read it in the papers. Stark conferred with Frick, the league president said, and told him simply he was dissatisfied and wanted to get into something more lucrative.

"He didn't mention money to me," said Frick. "If the thing Dolly wants is a moderate sum — a couple of hundred dollars a year more—why that's one thing. But if it involves a couple of thousand dollars then it's out of the question."

VINES THINKS TILDEN WILL QUIT NEXT YEAR

By the Associated Press.

PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 29.—Ellsworth Vines, professional tennis player, said yesterday he believes Bill Tilden will retire next year.

"He's getting pretty old, and although he still plays a bangup game, he finds that his legs do not hold up sufficiently to stand the hardships of professional touring," Vines said.

WESTERN TEAM BEATS M'BRIDE QUINTET, 20-19

Western Military Academy maintained its undefeated record in the Preparatory League last night, but it took an overtime period, and a field goal and free throw by Bruno Tschannen in that extra session, to give the Cadets a 20—19 victory over McBride, on the loser's floor. It was Western's fourth victory and McBride's second league defeat.

Leonard tied the score for McBride with a free throw near the end of the fourth quarter, the regular playing period ending 17—17. In the overtime, McKenna sank a basket for McBride, but Tschannen's field goal and a free throw by him gave the Cadets their one-point victory.

In another close game that was enlivened by more scoring than in the Western-McBride game, Collinsville scored in the last 30 seconds of play to defeat Wood River, 32—31, in a Madison-St. Clair Conference game at Wood River last night. Ed Evers, a substitute for Collinsville, scored the winning goal from near the center line.

In other games last night, St. Charles trounced Kirkwood, 32—19 on the winners' court, while Chaminade defeated Country Day, 31—15.

Wrestling at Alton Tonight.

Ray Eckert, Burlington, Ia., and Mike Anton, heavyweights, meet in one of the features of the wrestling program at the Turner Hall, Alton, Ill., tonight, while Whitey Whittler meets Gus Wisbar in the other of the finish matches. Cyclone Robinson vs. Joe Miller and Arnold Walker vs. Bill Keith are the preliminary bouts. The first match will start at 8:30 o'clock.

Yale Signs Line Coach.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 29.—Yale University announced last night the appointment of Marshall Wells, line coach at Iowa State College at Ames, Ia., as line coach of the Yale football team. Wells, a graduate of the University of Minnesota in the class of '33, played tackle on the Gopher teams of 1930, 1931 and 1932.

DR. NORMAN RATHERT.

Joe Delehanty, Former Star of Majors, Is Dead

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 29.—Joe Delahanty, 60, former star major league baseball player, died today with cerebral hemorrhage.

He played with the St. Louis Nationals, Buffalo, Toronto, Montreal and in the Southern Association. He was an outfielder and a leading hitter.

Recently he was employed in the Sheriff's office here. He was one of the six Delahanty brothers whose names were noted in baseball. Brother Ed died at the height of his career. The others, Jim, Frank, Willie and Tom survive.

S-K GIRLS TO PLAY WATERLOO (ILL.) FIVE

The S-K girls' basketball team of the Muny League will play a return game with the Waterloo (Ill.) five next Sunday afternoon at the Maplewood Senior High School gymnasium. This contest will serve as a preliminary to the Shaw-Stephens American Legion club's inter-city game with the Famous Berghoffs of Dayton, O. In their previous meeting, the S-K cagers were defeated, 24-20, at Waterloo.

Recent Developments in Tennis Lead Stars of Game to Predict Davis Cup Victory for America

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The Olympic fire isn't the only thing burning these days in the sports field. America's hope of recapturing the international tennis Davis Cup—just a flicker the last couple of years—has grown into a man-sized flame fanned by recent develpmenst.

Fred Perry, who is the backbone of Great Britain's cup-holding contingent, still is bothered by the injury he suffered when he fell in the first set of his semi-final match against Wilmer Allison in the American championship last September.

Case of Crawford.

For a couple of years experts have been singing the swan-song of Australia's Jack Crawford, and his recent defeat by Adrian Quist in the final of the Australian championship makes it seem his competitive sun is slowly and surely setting.

In themselves those developments are viewed as hopeful signs by American court enthusiasts. Perry and Crawford constitute the main barriers in Uncle Sam's path to winning the cup this year, although Germany with Von Cramm may figure more formidable and dangerous than ever.

But that's not all. Joe Wear, nonplaying captain of our 1935 team, which went down to a 5 to 0 defeat before Perry and Bunny Austin, sees an American victory without any contingency on the truth of the reports of the status of Perry and Crawford.

"Allison's straight-set victory over Perry last year wasn't a fluke," said Wear. "I'm a great admirer of Perry, but I say in all fairness that he was doomed the day he met Allison—the fall notwithstanding.

"Strange as it sounds, believe that Allison, at 31 years of age, is just arriving at his full powers. I confidently expect he'll do a great deal better at Wimbledon this year. Also, there's every reason to expect Donald Budge to continue to show improvement. I have a strong hunch Allison and Budge will turn the trick this year."

The final touch to the roseate picture is furnished by an artist. Helen Wills Moody, who should know, picks America to win next summer. She's not swayed by patriotism, either. Like Wear, she's counting heavily on Allison and Budge, with more emphasis on the young California red-head.

"I can't tell you why," said the seven time winner of the Wimbledon title, "but I think the United States will win."

Lott's Viewpoint.

Less positive, although likewise motivated by one of those "strange feelings," is George Lott, veteran of many an international campaign, now a professional.

"I look at it this way," said Lott. "This year our boys probably will meet Australia on American soil before going to England for further competition. If they beat Australia, and there's reason to believe they will, they'll embark with an encouraging victory under their collective belt and be in a much better frame of mind. Heretofore they've had no competition as a unit before sailing. I think their chances will look good if they can get past Australia."

BACHELORS, YELLOW JACKETS WIN FOURTH STRAIGHT MUNY GAMES

The Bachelor Girls, South Court leaders, and the Yellow Jackets, undefeated in the North Court, scored their fourth consecutive victories in the Girls' Municipal Basketball League last night at Sherman Park Community Center.

The Bachelor Girls trounced the Varsity squad, 27—12, while in the other South Court division contest the S-K took an 18—17 victory from the Vogues.

In North Court games, the Yellow Jackets trimmed Sherman A. C., 32—16, and the Penrose squad defeated the Alligators, 21—10.

Cunningham Will Compete in Coast Meet on Feb. 27

By the Associated Press.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Jan. 29.

GLENN CUNNINGHAM, the fast-stepping miler, said definitely last night he would race in the San Francisco meet Feb. 27, but asserted he did not know whether Ben Eastman would enter the meet.

Cunningham, busily studying for final examinations to receive a Master of Science degree from the University of Iowa Feb. 3, declared he also would compete in the National A. A. U. championships in New York Feb. 22. He will leave for the West Coast immediately after the New York meet, he said.

He said he might have to pass up the N. Y. A. C. event in New York Feb. 15, although he had reached no decision.

Dual Wrestling Meet.

The Y. M. H. A. and Jefferson Barracks westling teams will meet tonight at the Y. M. H. A. gymnasium, with the first match scheduled to start at 8 o'clock.

ROOSEVELT AND CENTRAL TEAMS IN BATTLE FOR SECOND PLACE

By Harold Tuthill.

Roosevelt will resume its City High School League campaign after a week's absence when it opposes the Central five tomorrow afternoon on Central's home floor at Bethlehem Hall. The game will start at 3:30 o'clock.

At the beginning of the season, Roosevelt was expected to make a strong bid for the championship, but the Rough Riders were turned back in the first charge, 34 to 32, by McKinley. However, Coach Walther Lorenzen's boys remained in the running by taking a 31-to-21 decision from Cleveland. Since that time they have not participated in league warfare.

McKinley was Central's Waterloo, too, for the Red and Black team lost a close 27-to-24 game to the leading Goldbugs two weeks ago. The defeat dropped Central into second place with a 2-1 record.

Judging by the showing made against McKinley, Roosevelt and Central are as evenly matched as any two schools could be. It will be a case of Roosevelt's experience against Central's familiarity with the Bethlehem court and assistance from a home crowd.

Roosevelt's starting lineup probably will be Wilbur Berg and Milton Gaebler, forwards; Karl Das, center, and Ralph Rauscher and Paul Koenig, guards. Central will lineup with Fred Moran and Herman "Red" Wulfmeyer, forwards; Reinhold Zeidler, center, and Al Batteiger and Ed Cebrzynski, guards.

McKinley will defend its hold on first place and seek its fourth victory against no defeats at Cleveland Friday. The Goldbugs are making a determined effort to win their second successive basketball title by winning from three of the best teams in the league—Roosevelt, Central and Beaumont. Unless a big upset occurs the Goldbugs should take Cleveland's measure.

In another fourth round game Friday Beaumont will entertain Blewett. The Blue Jackets, with an even break in their two contests, can still be considered championship contenders. A victory over Blewett will enable Beaumont to hang onto their opportunity.

TWO HORSEMEN ARE RULED OFF FLORIDA TRACKS FOR LIFE

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 29.—The Florida State Racing Commission at the conclusion of a hearing yesterday ruled off B. Davidson and Thomas Hurley from all Florida tracks for life. Davidson and Hurley were charged with administering caffeine to the horse Pay Rack on Jan. 11, and again on Jan. 24, the horse being scratched by the stewards on the latter date and the saliva test taken.

Davidson and Hurley were represented by counsel, and did not deny the confession both had previously made admitting their guilt in stimulating Pay Rack with caffeine. Both men were arrested following the hearing by county officials, to be held for violation of the racing law, which provides: "Any person who shall stimulate or depress a horse for the purpose of affecting the result of a race shall be guilty of a felony."

The commission granted Davidson permission to sell his horses to a bonafide purchaser, the sale to be subject to the approval of the commission.

CREIGHTON FIVE WINS FROM DRAKE U., TAKES LEAD IN VALLEY RACE

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 29.—Creighton University took the lead in the Missouri Valley basketball conference last night by defeating Drake University, 41 to 30. Creighton entered the contest with six victories and one defeat, while Drake had a record of two victories and no losses in the conference race.

Shoemaker and Brooks Play in Billiard Final

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29. — Herbert Shoemaker of New York gained a tie with E. Charles Rogers of Glen Cove, N. Y., for the lead in the national pocket billiards championship when he defeated last year's runner-up, Herbert Courtney of New York, 125 to 48, in the semifinal match of the tourney at the Strand Academy last night.

The match was completed in 19 innings. The victory put Shoemaker, 21 times winner of the title and current defending champion, on even terms with Brooks. Each has four victories and one defeat.

They will meet tonight in the deciding match.

Courtney, taking his second defeat of the day, dropped into a tie with Harry Hendrie of Chicago for fifth place, with two games won and four lost.

In an afternoon match, Courtney was beaten by Alvin Hardgrove of Detroit, 125 to 86, in a 17-inning match.

Hardgrove completed his schedule with four games won and two lost to tie Lester Brooks of Philadelphia for third place.

Van Lingle Mungo, the Dodgers' pitcher, returned his contract without one of the most classical names in baseball on the dotted line. Should Van Lingle Mungo and the corporation operating the baseball property known to the trade as the "Dodgers" not get together and settle their financial differences in an amicable manner, it might result in a revival of that old question brought up by Bill Terry several years ago, to wit: "Is Brooklyn still in the League?"

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 29. — The Kansas City Greyhounds last night took advantage of the absence of Mickey Murray, regular goalie, who is ill, to blank the St. Louis Flyers, 3-0, in a fast and furious American Hockey Association game before the smallest crowd of the season.

Earl Thompson, spare goalie of the association, substituted for Murray, who has a severe cold and was ordered to bed by his physician. Thompson performed creditably, but was unable to withstand the repeated barrages of a smooth-working Greyhound team.

After a scoreless first period of which a feature was Thompson's 10-foot dive to smother Burland's solo shot, Merrill, taking Brink's pass, scored in 2.25.

In this period Metcalfe and Carbol drew the first penalties of the game when they emerged from a collision and squared off for a fight. No blows were struck, however.

After a minute of third period, Ahlin broke free across the Flyer blue line and soloed down to score, his shot striking Thompson's hand and bounding into the net. In 12 minutes Brink, aided by Ahlin, scored the third Greyhound goal.

What appeared certain would be a fourth Greyhound tally, when Crossland soloed down close for a shot, was prevented by a remarkable "save" by Thompson.

The defeat dropped the Flyers down another notch out of first place, a position they had commanded since the start of the season until last Sunday, when St. Paul defeated them and assumed leadership.

By winning, Kansas City moved into a fourth place deadlock with Tulsa.

Wichita Beats Warriors.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 29.—The Wichita Skyhawks, cellar-dwellers of the American Hockey Association, utilized an overtime period to defeat the Oklahoma City Warriors, 1 to 0, here last night and prove that lightning can strike twice in the same place. Arena Will Be Heated.

It was announced last night by A. Frank Ruppenthal, president of the Flyers, that the Arena, as usual, will be heated comfortably for the American Association hockey match between Shrimp McPherson's sextet and the Oklahoma City Warriors Sunday night at the Arena.

The Arena, for the past two games, has been ideal for the fans to watch the attraction. The Warriors, in third place, and the St. Paul Saints are furnishing the Flyers with their toughest opposition of the season.

The Warriors, by the way, will be the Flyers' opponents tomorrow night on the Oklahoma Cityans' ice.

MEETING OF DISTRICT GOLFERS IS TONIGHT

The annual meeting and election of officers of the St. Louis District Golf Association will be held at the Coronado Hotel tonight, starting at 8 o'clock.

In addition to the election of officers, it is expected that dates and sites for early tournaments will be set by the organization.

Father vs. Son Bouts Have Nothing On The Lewis-O'Mahony Show

By Damon Kerby.

Champion Dan O'Mahony and Strangler Ed Lewis will go through a rassling routine at the Arena, tonight, with the championship of all the known world at stake, no less, and what to say about it? What to say about it?

Words that mean something have a way of eluding you when you begin to discuss these rassling affairs before they take place. In other words, the man in front of a typewriter finds himself in a tough spot in trying to whip together what is technically known as the "advance story." His thoughts, labeled conscious and subconscious for the benefit of this dialogue, engage in conversation while the well-known Kid Deadline takes a seat in the opposite corner and seems to mean business.

Conscious—This is the fourth—and last—time you are going to start this piece of deathless prose. And besides, that last lead could have been worse. Identifying Ed Lewis as the Prize Percheron of the Rassling Ring may have been new, and wasn't half bad.

It's a Horse on Ed.

Subconscious—Well, Ed personally is a great guy and he usually doesn't care what you say so long as you spell his name right, but he might feel hurt at the horsey allusion. Why not see him some time and tell him that you merely have in mind that he is big, and dapple gray, in indicating him as the Prize Percheron?

Conscious—I'll do that, and for the time being will put the phrase back in storage. Why not discuss the "Youth vs. Age" angle? Here Lewis is, more than 40 years old, trying to regain a championship that is held by a mere broth of a boy, as you believe the expression has it, of 23 years. You could point out that Lewis was an experienced rassler before Danno was born.

Subconscious — Bunk! After watching O'Mahony several times you are not convinced that he can rassle a lick. Lewis may be and probably is only the well-known hollow shell of his former self; but he could still jump in that ring tonight and flop Danno before you could get back to ringside after the intermission. At least you think so. So, why even intimate in a round-about way that competition is involved, by going into the "Youth vs. Age" idea?

Subconscious—Why?

Conscious—Because more than 10,000 people will be there, weather permitting, and as long as rassling shows draw like that they are news. Why not discuss Lewis' recent appearances here? His shows that figured in the "build up" to the championship match?

Subconscious—That may not be a bad idea. He did have the customers steaming. They like to watch the old boy in action, and he gave them quite a show when he socked Man Mountain Dean, was called out on a foul, and then stormed until the commissioner entered the ring and reversed the decision. Good old commissioner! And in Lewis' last show here, against Numa and Zaharias, boy, how the crowd went for it when Ed wound up his right and popped Zaharias for a loop-the-loop throug" the ropes!

Conscious—Hold on! That all took place weeks ago. Since then, a lot of things have happened in rassling, things that make Ed's socking act old stuff. How about that act in which one rassler set fire to his opponent's trunks? Or the one in which Chief Chewchki used a wire coathanger to try to strangle his foe. Or better still, the incident in which a spectator jumped in the ring a week or so ago and flattened the champeen?

Subconscious — Ha! An idea. That very thing happened to Dan O'Mahony, the gent who performs here tonight. You can speculate for several paragraphs as to whether the same thing will happen to night. Now you're getting somewhere—

Conscious—Not so fast. Not so fast. That incident won't be repeated so soon after the previous episode. Besides, the word is out that original performance did not get across any too well. It won't happen tonight.

Subconscious — How about the question as to the referee?

Why the Referee?

Conscious—Who cares about the referee in rassling, any more. He doesn't enforce any rules, if there still are any rules. However, if they need a referee who can use his head the selection will probably be Cholly Rentrop of Memphis.

Subconscious—Is there anything worth mentioning in the remainder of the card?

Conscious—Nary a thing, except a minor point or two. Pat O'Shocker is back in action here, after a long absence. George Zaharias can't appear because of a previously scheduled engagement, and his place against O'Shocker will be taken by George's nephew, Chris.

Champion Dan O'Mahony and Strangler Ed Lewis will go through a rassling routine at the Arena tonight with the championship of all the known world at stake, no less, and to say about it—what to say about it?

TONIGHT'S MAT CARD

Sports in Brief

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.

Baseball's hot stove league contributed plenty of heat . . . there was an abundance of baseball news.

John F. Gorman, road secretary of the Brooklyn Dodgers, was appointed business manager of the club.

The New York Yankees signed Catcher Arndt Jorgens and Pitcher Walt Brown, while the Giants were signing Harry Gumbert and Harry Danning.

Also lots of boxing news.

Hank Bath, Jack Kearns' heavyweight protege, was floored three times and whipped by Billy Treest in Chicago.

Birger Ruud, Norway's star ski jumper, hurt in practice jump in Germany and may not compete in Olympics.

Carbines Goldy finished third at Alamo Downs and paid his lone backer, who played him to show, $176.80 for a $2 bet.

JUDGE REFUSES TO ACCEPT BID OF FLYERS FOR ROCHESTER CLUB

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 29.—A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in Federal Court here late yesterday by the Rochester Cardinals hockey club. The owners hoped it would pave the way for a quick sale and a financial new deal for the team here.

Action was taken by the Flower City Sports Club, Inc., owners of the team, after Federal Judge Harlan W. Rippey announced he could not accept a bid for private sale because the deadline set for such action—Jan. 21—had been passed.

An offer to buy the club already has been made by A. Frank Ruppenthal, owner of the St. Louis Flyers of the American Hockey Association. Owners of the Cardinals hope to obtain permission of the referee in bankruptcy to speed up proceedings so that Ruppenthal's bid can be submitted formally to the receiver within the next 10 days.

If Ruppenthal obtains the club, Rabbit Maranville, former Boston Braves second baseman, will be named vice-president and general manager.

WILLMAN AND MILLS TO DRIVE IN MIDGET RACES HERE, FEB. 11

Tony Willman of Milwaukee and Curley Mills of Los Angeles have signed contracts with Promoter Earl Reflow to compete in the opening races of the 1936 indoor midget racing season at the Arena, Feb. 11.

Mills will join with Ronney Householder and Pat Warren, also from Los Angeles and previously signed by Reflow, to form the Pacific Coast team.

RAMEY DEFEATS COOL; WANTS TO BOX CANZONERI IN TITLE BOUT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29. — Tony Canzoneri may be interested to know that Wesley Ramey of Grand Rapids, Mich., is in town telling people he'll knock the champion's block off if he ever gets him in a ring.

Ramey climbed into a ring at the Broadway arena last night and gave convincing grounds for his contention as he belted out a 10-round decision over the clever Eddie Cool of Philadelphia. Ramey, weighing 134¼, showed he is improving as he overwhelmed the Philadelphian who held him to a draw three years ago. Cool weighed 135.

After the fight, Ramey, a muscular little fellow who never stops punching when within range, had a few words to say about the lightweight champion whom he outpointed in a non-title bout in 1933.

"I licked him once and I can do it again," he said. "We are both getting old, as far as fights are concerned, but I am better than I ever was and I think he is going back. I sure would like to get him in a ring. I'd take the title sure."

Pete Reilly, who has managed four champions, Andre Routis, Jack Delaney, Bat Battalino and Freddie Miller, stepped in to take a squint at Ramey's eyes, which nearly always are puffed after a joust.

"I told Wesley before he fought Canzoneri that the best policy would be to let that bout go until Canzoneri would fight with the title at stake. I knew that if he had a taste of my boy he wouldn't want to meet him for the championship. Ramey will fight Canzoneri for nothing, just as long as he lugs that crown into the pit with him."

Ramey had no picnic in there last night. Cool's spearlike left hand kept the Michigan thresher at bay for the first few rounds. Cool kept gambling for one good shot but Ramey crowded him, sending flurries of leather to his head and body.

Ramey seemed stronger than Cool and time and again wrestled hi mout of position, then sprang after him to rain blows on his head and ribs.

Hank Bath Loses But Shows Signs Of Real Ability

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—Jack Kearns may be right, after all, about the fighting ability of Hank Bath, his "white hope" candidate.

The young Fort Morgan (Colo.) heavyweight, whom Kearns insists has some of the earmarks of a second Jack Dempsey, took a pretty thorough beating from Billy Treest of Batavia, Ill., last night, in the Chicago Stadium, but left the ring on the receiving end of a rousing ovation. Treest won a hairline decision after 10 savage rounds to advance in the stadium's heavyweight tournament.

Treest, a rugged, charging battler with plenty of punching power, knocked Bath down three times, but never came close to keeping the Colorado youth on the floor. Bath was dropped for a nine count in the second round by a right to the chin. Treest let go with everything he had in an effort to finish the fight when Bath arose, but a two-handed thumping failed to put him down again.

A right to the head sent Bath down in the fifth, but he bounced up without a count and got up again in the seventh to weather another storm of punches.

The bout so completely satisfied a small crowd that the pair may be rematched. Only 7100 spectators, who paid around $8000 at the gate, saw the bristling battle.

WAGNERS AND FOUKES TO PLAY FOR LEAD IN INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE

Wagner Electric and Fouke Fur will meet in the featured game of the six scheduled tonight at the Y. M. C. A. Industrial Basketball League at the Armory, Grand boulevard and Market street. First place will be at stake in Division No. 1. The two teams are tied with four victories and one defeat each. The contest is carded for 9 p. m. on the south court. In the other game of this division, starting at 7:45, International Shoe will meet Monsanto of East St. Louis.

In Division No. 2 Wohl A. C. will meet the U. S. Engineers at 7:45, followed by Stix, Baer & Fuller playing Wabash at 9 o'clock, both games to be played on the center court.

In Division No. 3 Laclede-Christy will play Rawlings at 7:45 and Monsanto of St. Louis will meet the Alligators at 9 on the north court.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Indian Giver.

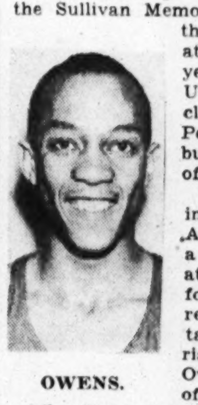
With one hand the august body slips highest honors in his field to Eulace Peacock, Temple University Negro athlete, while with the other it takes them away and gives them to Jesse Owens, Ohio State University Negro athlete.

When sending out ballots for the Sullivan Memorial award to the outstanding athlete of last year, the A. A. U. sponsors included Eulace Peacock's name, but omitted that of Owens.



OWENS.

But in naming the all-America and all-collegiate athletic teams for the A. A. U. record, Secretary Daniel Ferris awarded Owens a total of seven places, while Peacock was named for only one.

* * *

Whiter Than Snow.

OF course there's an explanation. When the Sullivan Memorial balloting was launched, Owens was being mentioned as one of the boys on the payroll of the State of Ohio. He was reported to be drawing a salary as a page in the Legislature. This is a very natural occupation for one with Owens' Mercury feet, but develops a situation frowned upon in some quarters.

One of the eligibility qualifications for the Sullivan award is "sportsmanship." Possibly the committeemen considered Owens' payroll connection as prejudicial to his sportsmanship.

But, since that time, the stigma has been removed. A Big Ten investigation of the 15 Ohio athletes on the Buckeye State payroll whitewashed them all, on the ground that such as received pay fulfilled all the duties and requirements of the jobs for which they were paid.

* * *

Too bad the investigation did not come in time for the Sullivan Memorial vote, because there isn't much doubt that Owens' performances transcended those of Peacock, even though the Temple University boy did outdo Owens late last season, when they met in sprints and jumps.

* * *

Just Around the Corner.

ON the theory that it's darkest just before dawn, the horizon ought to begin to brighten soon for Connie Mack. For not since the American League became a going concern has the outlook of the Athletics been as gloomy. The prospects could hardly be blacker, as a glimpse at the Philadelphia Filament's 1936 roster will inform anyone.

In order for the sun of success to beam on the McGillicuddy banner this season, a major calamity will have to happen to seven other teams. And so we fear an old adage is going to be shown up, before October.

Yesterday, Connie further reduced his scanty corps of veterans by parting with Blaeholder and Mahaffey, two of his best hurlers, for $15,000. This left him with a mound staff of 17 pitchers—or shall we say, throwers?

Thirteen of these, whose records were available, won only 28 games last season—an average of a little more than two victories per pitcher. They lost 62 games, for a winning percentage of .311.

ONLY one standout player remains of the galaxy of stars that lifted the Athletics' banner to the pennant pole a few years ago—Frank Higgins. And he is a holdout. The club has been stripped of its salable talent, with this exception.

Since the Athletics finished their three-year championship reign, five seasons ago, Mack, it is estimated, has sold approximately $1,000,000 worth of baseball talent. Some of the deals turned by Mack are: $200,000 for Simmons, Dykes, Haas and Earnshaw; $100,000 from Detroit for Mickey Cochrane; $150,000 from the Red Sox for Lefty Grove, Walberg and Bishop; $300,000 from Boston for Foxx, McNair and Marcum. Ten or 12 other players were sold in lesser deals.

Not even in 1916, when Connie had completely similarly denuded his club of its world title stars, did an Athletic team reach as low a level of strength.

* * *

End of the Trail?

To look over such a roster must give the Philadelphia Blues to this once important figure in baseball, now in the twilight of a career made famous by more world series triumphs than was achieved by any other manager in either league—five.

At the age of 73, beginning life all over, starting from the bottom, requires an optimism few of us possess. But Connie is tackling the impossible job apparently with no thought of quitting or that his usefulness as a leader is at an end.

What probably hurts him most is less the thought that 35 years of managing one club finds him at the bottom of the ladder than that the Philadelphia fans, in whose baseball interest he labored, quit him in the pinch and twice failed to support world championship teams.

And the worst is yet to come. The wolves were howling for Mack's scalp from the stands, at times last season. Imagine what will happen this year, when the 1936 version of the Athletics takes the field!

Royal Hearts Play Service Five In Muny Title Basket Contest

A player who is a member of a last-place team that has been unable to score a victory this season will enter tonight's Men's Municipal Basketball League games as the league's individual scoring leader. He is Johnny Corcoran of the Hellrung-Grimms, who has scored 60 points.

Tonight's schedule, a tripleheader at the Sherman Park Community Center, will offer the Y. M. H. A. against the Young Democratic Club at 7:30 o'clock, the Royal Hearts against the Uniteds at 8:30 o'clock, and the Bill Binigs against Corcoran's Hellrungs at 9:30 o'clock. There will be a 25-cent admission charge. The title winner can be decided in the Hearts-United Service game.

Corcoran has stepped one point ahead of Elmer Ackmann, Royal Hearts center, while third place is held by Bob Cochran of the Uniteds. Fourth place is in the possession of Dan Graville of the Binigs, who has 46 points, and Bob Bick of the Young Democrats is fifth with 44 points.

Ability to drop in foul shots has been prominent in putting Corcoran into the lead and advancing Graville from sixth to fourth place. Graville has 18 foul shots to lead all Muny players, two more than Marvin Edelman of the Y. M. H. A. Corcoran put in 14. Ackmann has the most field goals, 26.

Ackmann has counted only three points in the last two games as a result of favoring his right ankle, twisted shortly before the game with the "Y" that the Hearts won to take the first half season championship. Ackmann is not expected to be at top form even for tomorrow's game and this is distinctly in favor of the United Service team handing the Hearts their first Muny defeat.

The list of leading individual scorers follows:

LOUIS' ADVISERS DENY INTENT TO SIDESTEP BOUT WITH BRADDOCK

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—Julian Black, co-manager of the Brown Bomber, today repeated his denial of published reports from New York that Louis was not interested in meeting Braddock for the title this year.

The report said Black had told Mike Jacobs, promoter for the Twentieth Century Sports Club, not to bother about dickering for the Braddock-Louis fight. Jacobs was reported to be in accord with Louis' indifference toward the match.

Black said he had given no intimation that the heavyweight challenger would be indifferent toward seeking Braddock's title next September. John Roxborough, Louis' other co-pilot, also seemed surprised. Both feel that Louis should box Braddock for the championship this year, provided the match is in demand.

"It's true we are not greatly concerned over gaining the title," Black explained, "for we would be just as well off if Joe could accept fights as they come up and earn big purses, as he has been doing. I want to correct the impression that we are not interested in a Braddock fight. I never gave the hint that we weren't. We are ready for him any time there is a demand."

TRUSTEE FOR GUNNERS ASKS CLAIM AGAINST BUTLER BE DISALLOWED

A year after the demise of the St. Louis Gunners professional football club, the corpse still shows signs of life. Referee in Bankruptcy Hope yesterday listened to the plea of Rodowe H. Abeken, trustee for the bankrupt Ed Butler-Chile Walsh partnership in which Abeken asked the court to set aside a previous ruling in which claims of $14,451 were allowed against the individual estate of Butler. This represents the claim of the Cincinnati Football Club which sold its National League Franchise to St. Louis. About $7000 of the $21,000 purchase price was paid.

Abeken sought to show that the $14,451 claim should have been charged against the partnership and not against Butler alone. Walsh is not in St. Louis and it is reported that the trustee has been unable to discover any of his assets. Referee Hope took the question under advisement.

NATIONAL MATCH GAME BOWLING TOURNEY OFF

The national match game bowling tournament, scheduled to be held in Philadelphia, has been called off, Harry Feuser, president of the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America, announced yesterday. Philadelphia was awarded the event at the Louisville meeting of the B. P. A. Philadelphia bowlers were not interested in entering the event and only 75 enrolled.

As the minimum number needed for a representative to the national meet is 96, the board of governors, in a meeting at Detroit, decided that Philadelphia had forfeited its right to hold the grand finals.

The board also has suggested a plan to hold intercity matches as a substitute for the match-game event, the winners from the various cities competing in an elimination tournament with the winners to receive cash prizes.

The St. Louis meet will be decided this week-end.

DEMPSEY AT BEST COULD HAVE BEATEN LOUIS, TUNNEY SAYS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29. — Gene Tunney, while withholding any alltime rating of Joe Louis, considers the Brown Bomber the greatest 21-year-old fighter in ring history.

In an interview published in "Sports Illustrated and the American Golfer," the former heavyweight champion said he believed Jack Dempsey at his best could have beaten the Louis of today, but that if Joe continues to improve between the age of 21 and 25 as he did between 19 and 21, he does not believe any fighter in the world can stand up before him.

His choice of Dempsey over the present-day Louis was based on "Dempsey's unusual ability to unleash dynamic and destructive power in the first few seconds of a contest."

FERGUSON MEETS BAYLESS IN COUNTY TOURNEY SEMI-FINAL

BRENTWOOD AND HANCOCK BOOKED IN OTHER GAME; AFFTON BEATEN

By Reno Hahn.

What should be the best game of the Ferguson basketball tournament will take place tonight when Ferguson meets Bayless in the semifinal round at 8:45 o'clock. An hour earlier Brentwood meets Hancock in the other semifinal.

Bayless is the undefeated leader of the County League teams and has won its last eight games. Ferguson, while not having so many victories as Bayless, is a strong squad and is just now reaching its peak. That was shown in its first-round contest when it swamped Riverview Gardens, 44—17.

Easy for Bayless.

Bayless played its first game last night, defeating Affton in a second-round contest, 42—20. The tall players of Bayless had little trouble in stopping Affton from scoring, and their height made it easy for them to score setups.

There will be a chance to see two different types of teams in action when Ferguson and Bayless meet. Bayless, with the advantage of height, controls the tip-offs and works scoring plays from the start, or else takes long shots, relying on its tall players to tally on rebounds.

Ferguson, however, has no tall players and relies on speed and teamwork to score. Its attack has never appeared better than last Monday, when it scored its first-round victory. The forwards and center were passing accurately and swiftly, and the players were crossing correctly on their plays so that they worked in for numerous easy shots. What made Ferguson look so good was the fact that they were sinking their shots once they had worked into position.

Ferguson was to have played Valley Park last night in another second-round game, but Valley Park players and Coach A. Mottesheard were unable to get transportation, so they forfeited their game.

In the third game last night Brentwood had trouble with Eureka in the first half and trained, 14—11, when it ended. But in the third quarter Brentwood's taller players controlled the ball and speedily put Brentwood ahead by scoring 10 points in that session to Eureka's two.

Facchin High Scorer.

Lyno Facchin, as in other games, was Brentwood's scoring star. He made only two points in the first half and Brentwood was being beaten. But in the second half he scored four field goals and three free throws to run his point total up to 13 and help Brentwood win, 27—22.

Brentwood's opponent tonight, Hancock, reached the semifinals ahead of the other schools as it defeated Fairview, 24—22, in an overtime contest Monday.

CAVALCADE MAY RUN TOMORROW AT SANTA ANITA

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 29.—Railbirds watched patiently today for developments in the Cavalcade-Discovery "feud" going on behind the scenes at Santa Anita Park.

The two famous turf champions, Discovery, the 1935 king, and Mrs. Isobel Dodge Sloane's Cavalcade of 1934 fame, are slated to top a field of favorites Saturday in the $5000 San Carlos Handicap.

Cavalcade whipped the Vanderbilt thoroughbred seven times in 1934, and they fell out of competition with a hoof injury. Discovery emerged the next year to become one of the outstanding horses in the country.

Trainer Bud Stotler says Discovery will start in the mile and one-sixteenth event Saturday. "Whistling Bob" Smith, who handles the Brookmeade stable horses, nominated Cavalcade for the race, but rumor had it he would start him tomorrow and let the issue with Discovery remain unsettled as far as the San Carlos is concerned.

"You newspaper men want to know too much," he replied when asked if the "Chocolate Soldier" would run Saturday.

If the two horses, leading candidates in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap February 22, race, it will be a "Little Handicap." In addition to the pair, Head Play, Time Supply and other good horses are probable starters.

PADDOCK CRITICIZES A. A. U. FOR IGNORING COAST IN COMMITTEES

By the Associated Press.

LONG BEACH, Cal., Jan. 29.—Charley Paddock, erstwhile cinder track speedster, sharply criticized the Amateur Athletic Union yesterday for ignoring the Pacific Coast in selection of Olympic Games committee chairmen.

Paddock, business manager and columnist on a Long Beach newspaper, wrote:

"It is a noble list of officials, committeemen and Badgers that has just been named by Avery Brundage, new president of the A. A. U. and chairman of the Olympic Committee.

"Besides placing himself as chairman of the executive and foreign relations committee (two of the most important), he does not select a single man for chairman west of Chicago and St. Louis. There are 30 chairmen jobs, and the Pacific Coast does not rate a single one!"

Paddock, outspoken critic of the A. A. U. for many years, declared "New York still rules the A. A. U."

PAUL WANER REACHES FINAL IN SOUTHPAW GOLF TOURNAMENT

By the Associated Press.

The southpaw baseballer played a steady game, following through his long drives with an excellent short game, to eliminate the Washington club-swinger, last year's runner-up.

On the other side of the bracket, J. T. Rogerson of Miami Springs, Fla., won without swinging a club, as James J. Lewis of Chicago was forced by a hand infection to withdraw.

That and This.

JOE BECKER, a St. Louis boy who started in the Cardinal organization, but escaped as a free agent because the Redbirds gave him too many railroad tickets, bobs up this year with the Cleveland Indians, drafted from San Francisco, where he hit .372 last season. Becker welcomes the chance, because at Cleveland he'll have Steve O'Neill as his tutor. . . . Sam Breadon attended an automobile dealers' meeting the other night and admitted with a bit of a blush that he journeyed to the hotel on a street car.

Gene Karst, who pioneered with the Cardinals as director of information and who now is doing an excellent job with the Cincinnati Reds, is distributing tidbits about Puerto Rico, where Charley Dressen's team will train. For instance—did you know that there is a University of Puerto Rico, with an enrollment of 3700 students? . . . Cockfighting was legalized on the island after being outlawed for 29 years. About 73 per cent of the inhabitants are white. . . . The island population is estimated to be 1,625,000. . . . San Juan, the capital, has 120,000 . . . So many sentries disappeared from one sinister sentry box, back in the old days, that the commandant had it sealed up and the tourist guides are glad about it.

The American League's new advertising-educational film, called "Take Me Out to the Ball Game," a sequel to "Play Ball," has been approved by league officials and will be released soon. Lew Fonseca, who got himself a job through the movie vehicle, also has written a booklet, "What's What in Baseball," with illustrations, most of them of Lew, showing how it all should be done. . . .

Selling Umpires.

PRESIDENT ALVIN GARDNER of the Texas League, recently announced the sale of Umpire Lee Ballanfant to the National League, which reminds the writer of a conversation with Billy Evans during the December major league meeting at Chicago. Bill was asked about his candidacy for the presidency of the American Association.

"I have given them my terms," Bill replied. "If they want me, they will have to meet them. I came down from $15,000 to $12,500 when they pointed out that they had pensioned Tom Hickey, but that's as far as I'll go. I think I'm worth that. I feel that I could earn that much and more.

"I have several ideas that I would put into effect. For instance, I think I could show a profit for the league in developing umpires. That is a phase of baseball that always has been neglected. Umpires are highly important. The best umpire is the one that nobody notices is on the field. But he's important just the same and nobody has ever taken the trouble to train and develop them. Everybody wants experienced men and nobody gives them the experience. I would seek out good prospects, establish schools of training, and I believe that each year I could sell enough young umpires to the majors."

Evans was one of the best when he was calling balls and strikes in the American League, and the writer had a couple of pet peeves. What did Evans think of the practice of putting star ballplayers out of games?

Putting Out a Star.

"THERE come times when an umpire can't do anything else," Evans replied, "but as a rule I'm against the practice. It's comparable to a theatrical attraction. If I go to see the Four Marx brothers, and I'm informed after the first act that Heine Mueller, Hank Greenberg, Frank Frisch and Casey Stengel are going to take the parts in the second act, because the Marx boys called the stage manager a palooka, the theater hasn't done right by me. The same goes for baseball and the umpire ought to give the steaming player every chance to cool off before giving him the gate.

"Of course there are exceptions. If a player lays a hand or a foot on an umpire, or jostles him, the umpire has no alternative. He has to act and act promptly. But it seems to me unnecessary to banish a player because of something he says in the heat of the moment, something which nobody has heard, perhaps, except the umpire and another player or two."

Who was the most difficult player to handle, in Bill's experience?

"Ty Cobb was a standout, of course," and Bill didn't hesitate. "But he was all right when you knew how to handle him. We had many conversations on the field that nobody knew about except ourselves. I had a favorite way of handling him. When he began to bark about a decision I would always choose the same theme. 'The great Cobb and the poor, miserable Evans,' I would say to him. 'Thousands out here today, to see the great Cobb and not a dozen who even knew poor Evans would be here. And the great Cobb wants the poor Evans to put him out of the game.'

"That worked wonders. Time and again he would cease firing and leave the field after I put it that way. But occasionally he would persist. There was one pitcher in the league Ty didn't like to face—at least so the story went—and one day when that pitcher was working, my usual formula about the great Cobb and the miserable Evans didn't work. I called a strike on Ty the first time he went to bat and it was a good strike. But he jumped back from the plate and squawked so all the park could see that he was complaining bitterly.

"'Mr. Cobb,' I said, 'I'm going to take my time sweeping off this plate, to give you a chance to cool off. But if you're not cooled when I get through, you're going to the showers, crowd or no crowd. Great Cobb or no.' I took my time and accidentally on purpose kicked more dust on the plate to prolong the job. But he kept on squawking and when I finally finished, I had to put him out. And an inning or two later, when one of the other talkative Tigers went to bat he said to me out of the corner of his mouth, 'Well, you let him get away with it, didn't you? I knew he'd be out of there pretty quick, with that bird pitching against us.'"

What Do You Mean, Friend?

CHARLES E. STREET was talking about the same Ty Cobb in the club car, journeying back home from the December meeting.

"I never knew anybody like Cobb in my whole life," the Old Sergeant exploded. "There wasn't any such thing as friendship after a ball game started. I went out to his house for dinner one night in Detroit and we had a very pleasant evening. The next day Ty tried to score from second on a short single and I had the ball waiting for him. But he slid, spikes high, and while I tagged him, I almost lost my adam's apple doing it. I asked him what the what he was trying to do and he answered, as only Cobb could, that he was trying to kick the ball out of my hand and if he cut my gizzard out at the same time, what of it?"

Badger Officials To Hold Another Meeting, Feb. 6

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 29. — The University of Wisconsin board of regents, after hearing Dr. Walter E. Meanwell's defense of his administration as athletic director, stood adjourned today until Feb. 6.

Questioned for almost five hours last night at the first session of the board's investigation into troublous Badger athletic conditions, Dr. Meanwell defended his giving whisky to football players and his secret agreements with coaches.

Meanwell said he gave one football player whisky after the Northwestern game last season "because he was depressed over the defeat," and to another because he had a cold and the team trainer had asked for a stimulant for him.

The director explained he was medically trained and thought that if he believed a boy needed a stimulant he could give it to him without breaking any rule. When he said he couldn't recall having given a player a drink ever before in his 20 years at Wisconsin, Regent Dan Grady asked:

"Why did you pick on Spears' team?"

Meanwell admitted having secret signed agreements with three coaches, including Harold Foster of the basketball team, by which he could remove them at his pleasure without publicity.

He denied failing to co-operate wih Spears or forbidding basketball players to participate in football.

Other witnesses testified the faculty opposed hiring Spears in 1932, and that the football coach broadened the breach with the faculty by criticising scholastic standards and failing to produce winning teams.

"OLD PETE" ALEXANDER ACCEPTS RADIO JOB

NEW CHAMPIONS ARE CROWNED IN BARRACKS BOUTS

Six Jefferson Barracks soldiers were proudly wearing their new medals won last night in the boxing title tournament concluded at Atkinson Hall before a crowd of 800 persons.

The new champions are: Frank Naylor, Company B, featherweight; Manuel "Wop" Figuera, Headquarters Company, lightweight; Joe Boothman, Company B, welterweight; Jesse Cunningham, Company B, middleweight; Max Weber, Company M, light-heavyweight, and Faye Beavers, Company H, heavyweight.

Frank Naylor and Frank Salmeri, Company H, slugged their way through three rounds of their four-round featherweight bout. Salmeri was the stronger in the third session and forced the fighting, punishing Naylor severely.

Coming out for the final round, Naylor decided to stake everything on a slugging exchange. The fighters stood close to each other and slugged. Suddenly, Naylor smashed a right to Salmeri's stomach and the fight was over, Salmeri taking the count.

Jesse Cunningham, the new middleweight champion, proved that an injured right wrist was no great handicap to him as he forced the fighting against Willie Poole and won his title.

Manuel Figuera, a professional fighter, had little trouble in stopping Bill Frank in the lightweight final. Figuera was knocked down by Frank in the second round, but came right back to give Frank a boxing lesson. In the fourth round, Figuera caught Frank on the ropes and pounded him with rights and lefts until he was so helpless that Referee Lieut. Bailey stopped the fight, giving Figuera a technical knockout.

RESULTS OF FINALS.

DELANCEY, CARDINAL CATCHER, TO SEEK HEALTH IN ARIZONA

Bill DeLancey, Cardinal catcher, who has been ill for many weeks, has departed for Phoenix, Ariz., where, for the next few months, he will seek to regain his strength. DeLancey hopes to be able to rejoin the Redbirds this season, but that is considered doubtful by physicians.

3-Hour Debate at Over Riverfront

weigh all arguments before reporting it out to the board. In the course of the hearing Reidy asked for a standing vote by the audience on the proposal. The division was close, and no count was made.

Attending the hearing were bankers, industrialists, civic leaders, labor leaders and many who apparently were just average taxpaying citizens. Not many politicians and city job-holders were in evidence. Mayor Dickmann had stated he would not attend and that there would be no assembling of city employes in support of the measure. Some employes of business firms in the affected river front district were present. There were comparatively few women.

Groups For and Against.

Supporting the bill were the Chamber of Commerce, labor organizations, and various business and improvement associations. Against it were the Taxpayers' Defense Association, composed of business firms in the river front district; the Citizens' Non-Partisan Committee, and a number of neighborhood taxpayers' and improvement associations.

Proponents, opening the argument, were given an hour and a half, and the opponents had equal time for their side. Chairman Reidy frequently had to call for order to stop demonstrations and attempts at heckling.

Among the speakers for the bill were W. Scott Hancock, representing the Federation of Improvement Associations; W. C. D'Arcy, an advertising executive who was chairman of the Campaign Committee for the bond issue election; John J. Church, representing the Building Trades Council, who thought it would give jobs to union workers; former Mayor Henry W. Kiel, who described the memorial project as a great civic improvement and recalled that there had been opposition to such improvements as the Municipal Bridge and the Memorial Plaza; C. E. Williams of the Downtown Improvement Association and the Associated Retailers; W. M. Brandt, secretary of the Central Trades and Labor Union, and P. J. Morrin, head of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers.

Also speaking for it was Richard S. Hawes, vice-president of the First National Bank, representing the Chamber of Commerce. He said the Board of Directors of the Chamber had unanimously indorsed the bill. He made a plea for "nailing down" values in the downtown district, and for the memorial as an attraction to bring tourists to the city. As an attraction, former Mayor Kiel described it as equal to any world's fair.

Walthall M. Moore, Negro, former member of the State Legislature, spoke for the Urban League and said his race group was for progress. Alfred Fairbank presented the indorsement of the Clearing House Association composed of the large banks. Ray Dolan gave the committee the indorsement resolution of the Real Estate Exchange, and H. B. McCormick presented that of the Merchants' Exchange.

Says Fur Firms Won't Leave.

Nelson R. Darragh, member of a large fur company in the river front district, said his company would not leave St. Louis if it has to move, and he thought any firms that proposed to go out of business or leave the city on that account would go out of business or leave in any event.

Among others who spoke for the bill were Cyrus Crane Willmore, president of the Real Estate Exchange; Allen May, representing the General American Life Insurance Co.; Louis LaBeaume, architect, and Claude B. Ricketts, manager of the Railway Exchange Building.

G. S. Robins for Opposition.

The principal speech in opposition was made by G. S. Robins, a chemical dealer in the river front district, representing the Taxpayers' Defense Association. He said his group included 350 business firms in the district and estimated that they would have a moving expense of at least $5,000,000 for which they would not be compensated.

His chief attack on the bill was that as drawn it was "illegal and fraudulent." He compared it with the executive order of President Roosevelt allotting the $6,750,000 for the project, to be expended by the National Park Service for "acquiring historic sites" and said there were only two historic sites in the district which could be acquired and that these should not cost more than $25,000.

Robins argued that St. Louis taxpayers, as distinguished from non-taxpayers and city employes, were opposed to the project; that it was not a sound business proposition because of the uncertainty of obtaining Federal funds beyond the present allotment, and that it would displace from regular employment probably as many persons as would be given temporary employment by the project. He asked why it was there has been no bill introduced in Congress to appropriate the remainder of the expected $22,500,000.

Manuel Figuera, a professional fighter, had little trouble in stopping Bill Frank in the lightweight final. Figuera was knocked down by Frank in the second round, but came right back to give Frank a boxing lesson. In the fourth round, Figuera caught Frank on the ropes and pounded him with rights and lefts until he was so helpless that Referee Lieut. Bailey stopped the fight, giving Figuera a technical knockout.

RESULTS OF FINALS.

weigh all arguments before reporting it out to the board. In the course of the hearing Reidy asked for a standing vote by the audience on the proposal. The division was close, and no count was made.

Attending the hearing were bankers, industrialists, civic leaders, labor leaders and many who apparently were just average taxpaying citizens. Not many politicians and city job-holders were in evidence. Mayor Dickmann had stated he would not attend and that there would be no assembling of city employes in support of the measure. Some employes of business firms in the affected river front district were present. There were comparatively few women.

Groups For and Against.

Supporting the bill were the Chamber of Commerce, labor organizations, and various business and improvement associations. Against it were the Taxpayers' Defense Association, composed of business firms in the river front district; the Citizens' Non-Partisan Committee, and a number of neighborhood taxpayers' and improvement associations.

Proponents, opening the argument, were given an hour and a half, and the opponents had equal time for their side. Chairman Reidy frequently had to call for order to stop demonstrations and attempts at heckling.

Among the speakers for the bill were W. Scott Hancock, representing the Federation of Improvement Associations; W. C. D'Arcy, an advertising executive who was chairman of the Campaign Committee for the bond issue election; John J. Church, representing the Building Trades Council, who thought it would give jobs to union workers; former Mayor Henry W. Kiel, who described the memorial project as a great civic improvement and recalled that there had been opposition to such improvements as the Municipal Bridge and the Memorial Plaza; C. E. Williams of the Downtown Improvement Association and the Associated Retailers; W. M. Brandt, secretary of the Central Trades and Labor Union, and P. J. Morrin, head of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers.

Also speaking for it was Richard S. Hawes, vice-president of the First National Bank, representing the Chamber of Commerce. He said the Board of Directors of the Chamber had unanimously indorsed the bill. He made a plea for "nailing down" values in the downtown district, and for the memorial as an attraction to bring tourists to the city. As an attraction, former Mayor Kiel described it as equal to any world's fair.

Walthall M. Moore, Negro, former member of the State Legislature, spoke for the Urban League and said his race group was for progress. Alfred Fairbank presented the indorsement of the Clearing House Association composed of the large banks. Ray Dolan gave the committee the indorsement resolution of the Real Estate Exchange, and H. B. McCormick presented that of the Merchants' Exchange.

Says Fur Firms Won't Leave.

Nelson R. Darragh, member of a large fur company in the river front district, said his company would not leave St. Louis if it has to move, and he thought any firms that proposed to go out of business or leave the city on that account would go out of business or leave in any event.

Among others who spoke for the bill were Cyrus Crane Willmore, president of the Real Estate Exchange; Allen May, representing the General American Life Insurance Co.; Louis LaBeaume, architect, and Claude B. Ricketts, manager of the Railway Exchange Building.

G. S. Robins for Opposition.

The principal speech in opposition was made by G. S. Robins, a chemical dealer in the river front district, representing the Taxpayers' Defense Association. He said his group included 350 business firms in the district and estimated that they would have a moving expense of at least $5,000,000 for which they would not be compensated.

His chief attack on the bill was that as drawn it was "illegal and fraudulent." He compared it with the executive order of President Roosevelt allotting the $6,750,000 for the project, to be expended by the National Park Service for "acquiring historic sites" and said there were only two historic sites in the district which could be acquired and that these should not cost more than $25,000.

Robins argued that St. Louis taxpayers, as distinguished from non-taxpayers and city employes, were opposed to the project; that it was not a sound business proposition because of the uncertainty of obtaining Federal funds beyond the present allotment, and that it would displace from regular employment probably as many persons as would be given temporary employment by the project. He asked why it was there has been no bill introduced in Congress to appropriate the remainder of the expected $22,500,000.

Effect on Pocketbooks.

Robins frankly admitted the business firms he represented were opposed to the project because of the effect on their pocketbooks—their loss of business and the expense of moving and finding other suitable quarters. Speakers for the bill had described the opponents as enjoying low rentals, an advantage they were reluctant to give up.

Paul O. Peters, representing the Citizens' Non-Partisan Committee, denounced the project as a "real estate unloading racket," belittled its efficacy as a work-relief project, and said other river-front improvement plans could be carried out at lower cost and with greater benefit to the city. He suggested a river front boulevard for the full length of the city, and a power dam below the city to provide cheap electricity.

Both Robins and Peters referred to a suit filed yesterday in Federal Court seeking to enjoin city officials from proceeding with the project, urging it as a reason for delay by the committee. This suit was filed in behalf of Perry L. Hole of Chicago, an owner of property in the district, who sought relief in Federal Court on the grounds of diversity of citizenship. The suit challenged the validity of the bond issue. Similar suits in Circuit Court recently were dismissed.

Aldermen at Hearing.

Members of the Ways and Means Committee, besides Chairman Reidy, are Aldermen Eilert F. Gummels, Otto L. Lietchen, Charles Routledge, John R. Slay, William Warnick and Walter H. Toberman. All were at the hearing.

Aldermen Lietchen and Routledge had just returned from Florida, where they spent a vacation with three other Aldermen. Lietchen, although one of the group opposed to the Mayor, had been quoted by friends in his absence as having said he would vote for the bill, but to reporters yesterday he said he had not made up his mind. Routledge and Gummels are against the bill and Slay has indicated he was opposed to it but has not said definitely he would vote against it. Warnick and Toberman are for the bill and Chairman Reidy has not indicated his stand.

The committee will meet at 10 a. m. Friday in executive session and it is possible it will decide then whether to report the bill with or without recommendation. Chairman Reidy said he would invite Luther Ely Smith, chairman of Jefferson National Expansion Memorial Commission; Russell Murphy, secretary of the commission, and Louis La Beaume, architect, to appear before the committee and answer some of the objections raised by the opponents at the hearing. He wished to have their explanation especially of the point made by Robins that the funds in sight were little more than enough to pay for the affected property at the assessed value of more than $6,000,000, and would leave little for improvement.

CASEYVILLE MINE ORDERED CLOSED IN LABOR DISPUTE

About 480 miners, employed at 'Nigger Hollow Mine No. 2 of the St. Louis & O'Fallon Coal Co. in Caseyville Township, St. Clair County, will be out of work tomorrow as the result of a dispute between the company officers and the miners, members of the Progressive Miners' Union, over the use of a mechanical loading device.

William F. Davis, president of the company, posted a closing notice yesterday. He told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that the company wanted to determine whether "we can run our property or whether we will allow the Pit Committee to do it."

Davis said the committee, composed of three miners, complained last Friday that the loading device was being used overtime in violation of an agreement and that the committee ordered 18 men working on the machine to go home. Davis denied the machine had been used overtime.

A member of the Pit Committee said efforts were being made to effect a settlement.

94 OF 105 MAIL DRIVERS HAD NO ACCIDENTS IN '35

15 Haven't Been in Crash in 15 Years, Postmaster Tells Safety Mobilization Meeting.

Fifteen of the 105 St. Louis postal truck drivers have driven 15 years without an accident, and 10 have had no accidents in 10 years, Postmaster W. Rufus Jackson said at the first meeting of the Missouri Safety Mobilization at Hotel Kingsway last night.

Jackson also said that 94 postal truck drivers had no traffic accidents during 1935. The drivers will receive citations at a dinner of the St. Louis Safety Council Saturday evening.

The Missouri Safety Mobilization was organized recently in the interests of promoting traffic safety. Oliver T. Remmers, attorney, is chairman of the organization. Speakers at last night's meeting included Julius T. Muench, former City Counselor, who urged strict enforcement of traffic laws, and Girard C. Varnum, president of the St. Louis County Chamber of Commerce, who suggested that flagrant violators of traffic ordinances be permanently deprived of their drivers' licenses.

Owes $238,740; Has 45 Cents.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—John Jean Goldkette, orchestra leader, who used to be heard frequently on the radio, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy yesterday, listing liabilities of $238,740 and assets of 45 cents, consisting entirely of "cash on hand." Goldkette built up an organization which at one time directed the booking of some of the best known orchestras of the country.

ESCAPED FEDERAL PRISONER CAPTURED IN CALIFORNIA

Stanley R. Jones, 36-year-old former convict who escaped from a cell in the East St. Louis Federal Building while a waiting arraignment on a counterfeiting charge Sept. 8, 1933, has been captured in Los Angeles, Federal agents in St. Louis were notified yesterday.

Four other prisoners in the cell who escaped with Jones after the lock had been picked, were captured soon after their flight. Jones, who formerly lived at East St. Louis, will be returned to face the counterfeiting charge.

While serving a 10-year sentence for robbery, Jones escaped from the Missouri Penitentiary Nov. 11, 1929, when he was placed under observation for spinal meningitis in the prison hospital. He was captured a few days later. Thomas B. Brown, another patient who escaped with Jones, was shot and killed when he fled from prison guards who sought to recapture him.

FOUR OVERCOME BY FUMES

Four persons were overcome in a flat at 1445A Cass avenue, early today by fumes from a gas range, four burners of which had been left on "to burn off the grease," when the family retired.

Those affected were Francis Wieczorek, 17 years old; Mrs. Ellen Palazzolo, 21; Mrs. Plagia Houghland, 24, and Mrs. Houghland's 2-year-old son, Jesse. All were revived by policemen with inhalators. The three women are daughters of Mrs. Mary Wieczorek, of the same address, who was in another room and was not affected.

about your winter gasoline

A man pulled up to the pump and told the dealer, "I would almost use Conoco Bronze just for the way you advertise it, if nothing else. You don't get people mixed up on all kinds of things they can't tell about anyway. You just say it starts easy, and it does, no matter what weather I run into around here. I am a salesman, outside all day with this car. It is not nursed all the time, like a fire engine or something, sitting in its nice warm house. But when I've parked a long while—maybe around zero—I just come out and she goes... no foolin' around. What else would I want this weather? I don't say all the mileage isn't fine with me, and I'm up in front when the light changes, too. But the big thing is this—I can't miss calls; cold or no cold, I've got to know I can start. Fill 'er up with Bronze, please—it'll take about 12." Continental Oil Company, Established 1875

SALES TAX DEDUCTION FROM INCOME RETURN

Payer Must Have Receipts, as in Case of State and City Gasoline Taxes.

Since the time is at hand to make income tax returns the question of what to do about certain taxes, particularly the so-called nuisance levies, like the State sales tax, and the gasoline taxes, arises to puzzle the taxpayer.

The Missouri sales tax of 1 per cent on purchases and services and its possibilities for effecting a saving through deductions from Federal returns are of interest to taxpayers this year. This tax became effective Aug. 27 last. It is deductible form the Federal return only if the taxpayer is prepared to prove with invoices that he paid the tax. It is not enough that he might have kept an account of such expenditures. The taxpayer must, when and if challenged, prove up his claim with documentary evidence, invoices or receipts, otherwise the deduction will not be allowed.

By the same token, the taxpayer must show receipts or invoices to prove payment of the State tax of 2 cents a gallon on motor gasoline and the city tax of 1 cent a gallon before deductions will be allowed. Where gasoline is used for business purposes the State and city tax may be added to the cost of the gasoline and deducted as a business expense. The Federal gasoline tax of 1 cent a gallon is not deductible.

Few Deductions Expected.

But who pauses to demand a receipt or invoice for the tax he pays on gasoline or for the sales tax? Not many motorists, and fewer shoppers, if any. The cardboard disc is enough trouble in itself without holding up a line at the cashier's window to get an invoice. As a consequence, comparatively few persons are expected to seek deductions based on either tax.

Allowable deductions on automobiles also are of interest. The purchase price of a car cannot be deducted, whether it is used for business or pleasure. If used for pleasure, registration fees, driver's license cost, personal property or municipal taxes and interest on money borrowed to purchase the car may be deducted.

If used exclusively for business, deductions may be taken for the cost of gasoline, oil, repairs, garage rent and other upkeep expenses. Depreciation also is deductible.

Although the automobile or motorcycle purchaser pays a 3 per cent Federal tax on his purchases he is not allowed to deduct it in his return, as it is a manufacturer's tax added to the price and is deducted by the manufacturer. The Federal tax on trucks and chasses likewise is deducted by the manufacturer.

A professional man may deduct the cost of repair on his automobile and also expenses incurred in the practice of his profession, such as the cost of supplies, office rent, light, water, fuel and telephone. The cost of technical books is not deductable, but a dentist or a doctor may deduct the cost of current magazines and newspapers kept at his office for the benefit of patients.

March 16 Final Date.

The period for making returns expires at midnight, March 16, a day of grace being granted because March 15 this year falls on Sunday. The Bureau of Internal Revenue, as usual, urges early filing to avoid the last-minute rush and its inevitable confusion.

The vast majority of those who file returns are salaried persons and wage-earners whose incomes are derived from personal services. In that class are single persons who had net income of $1000 or more or gross income of $5000 or more, and married couples who had net income of $2500 or more or gross income of $5000 or more. Widowers, widows, divorcees and married persons living apart are treated as single persons.

The usual exemption of $1000 for single persons and $2500 for married persons living together, and for heads of families, is allowed, together with a credit of $400 for each dependent. Neither relationship nor residence is a factor in this allowance. The taxpayer and dependent may be residents of different cities.

This year, for the first time, returns must be filed in the new Federal Building at Twelfth boulevard and Market street, at the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue, second floor. Forms for filing may be obtained there by those who have not received them by mail.

To Head Orphanage at Carmi.

DU QUOIN, Ill., Jan. 29.—Former State Senator Harry Wilson, Pinckneyville, will become superintendent of the Carmi Baptist Orphanage at Carmi, Ill., one of the largest institutions of its kind in Illinois, effective Feb. 1. The orphanage is supported by the churches of the Illinois Baptist State Association. Wilson will succeed the late Joseph D. Mathias, who died recently in California.

MGR. JOHN A. RYAN WARNS AGAINST DANGER OF FASCISM

Says Business Men Haven't Learned Anything During Depression; Cites Manufacturers' Program.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—Mgr. John A. Ryan of the Catholic University of America, Washington, told the Catholic Conference of Industrial Problems last night that the United States Constitution offers no safeguards against the possible rise of Fascism in this country.

His address was an informal criticism of a paper read before the conference by Thomas J. Morton, constitutional lawyer of Chicago.

"Armies do not respect a constitution," Mgr. Ryan said. "Would a constitution have stopped Mussolini? Business men haven't learned anything during the depression. If you think they have, read the program or the National Manufacturing Association."

S. A. Baldus, managing editor of the Catholic Extension Magazine, termed Alfred E. Smith's recent attack on the administration as "eminently unfair." He said the Smith speech was "entirely lacking in Christian practice."

"To refuse to give credit where credit is due or publicly exaggerate the faults of others is a violation of God's commandment—'thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor,'" he said.

WPA WORKERS CONVENTION

To Be Held Sunday; Sponsored by Project Workers' Union.

A mass convention of WPA workers, sponsored by the Project Workers' Union, which is organizing in this district, will be held from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. Sunday at Hibernian Hall, 3619 Finney avenue.

The organization is demanding supplementary relief, fires and shelters on jobs, lower car fare rates for workers, pay for reporting in bad weather, regular pay days, elimination of abuses by job foremen and superintendents and the right to organize and bargain collectively.

HEAD OF ACCOUNTING FIRM BEFORE COUNTY GRAND JURY

First Session of Inquiry Into Handling of Funds by County Officials.

L. Ray Schuessler, head of an accounting firm engaged in audits of St. Louis County offices for the County Court, testified before the grand jury at Clayton yesterday at the first session of its inquiry into the handling of county funds by officials.

Audits of the following offices have been completed or are under way: Collector Willis W. Benson, County Clerk Walter Miller, Sheriff Philip G. Deuser and the County Hospital. The grand jury, when sworn in last Saturday, was instructed by Circuit Judge Julius R. Nolte to investigate the various offices and also conditions at County Hospital.

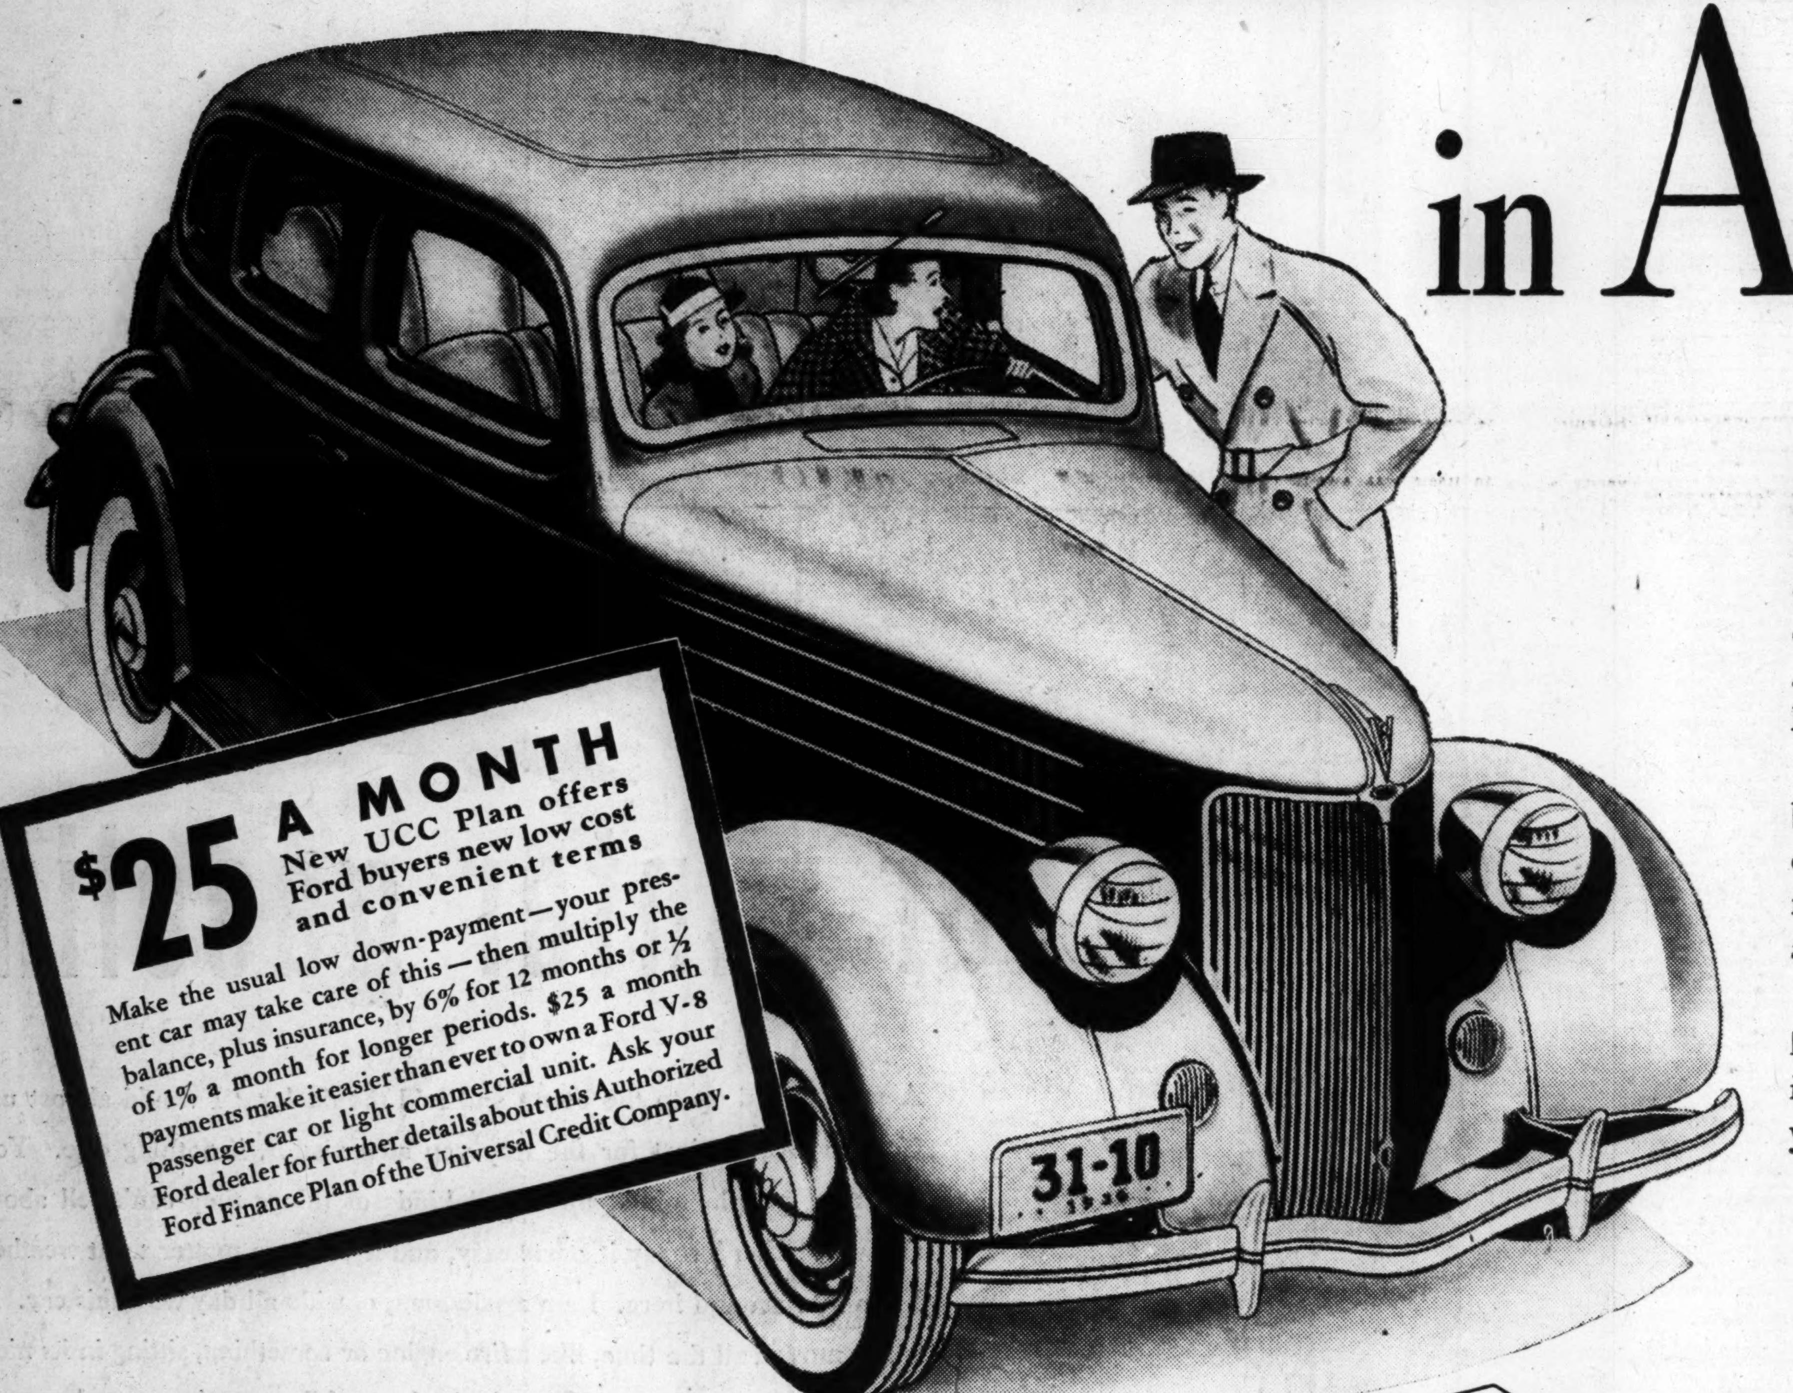
The Most UNDERPRICED CAR in AMERICA!



$25 A MONTH
New UCC Plan offers Ford buyers new low cost and convenient terms

Make the usual low down-payment—your present car may take care of this—then multiply the balance, plus insurance, by 6% for 12 months or ½ of 1% a month for longer periods. $25 a month payments make it easier than ever to own a Ford V-8 passenger car or light commercial unit. Ask your Ford dealer for further details about this Authorized Ford Finance Plan of the Universal Credit Company.

EVEN expensive cars do not have all the high-priced mechanical features listed below—not in any one make of car. To get them all, outside of the Ford V-8, you would have to combine six or seven of the best cars built today . . . Yet you can buy a 1936 Ford V-8 for as little as $510 F.O.B. Detroit.

That's why, without even considering the beauty and riding comfort of the 1936 Ford V-8 or the low cost of Ford upkeep, it remains a fact that here is the most underpriced car in America. . . judged on mechanical features alone.

Before you choose any 1936 car, learn at first hand what these features mean in performance, in comfort and in long-term economy . . . See your nearest Ford dealer.

TALMADGE BOOM FOR PRESIDENCY GETS UNDER WAY

'Grass Roots' Convention of Anti-New Dealers at Macon, Ga., Votes to Ask Him to Run.

PLATFORM ASSAILS ROOSEVELT POLICIES

Georgia Governor in Radio Speech Declares Communists Are in Control of Federal Government.

By the Associated Press.

MACON, Ga., Jan. 29.—Democrats dissatisfied with the Roosevelt administration voted by a rousing cheer at a "grass roots" convention today to ask Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia to permit the use of his name as a candidate for President in primaries throughout the country.

The request was made in a motion from Hugh Howell, chairman of the Georgia State Democratic Executive Committee.

Talmadge, who was sitting on the platform when the motion was carried, smiled and declined to comment.

"If Gov. Talmadge will permit the use of his name as a candidate to lead this country out of the morass of Communism in which we are now enmeshed," Howell said, "the flag which floats from the dome of the Capitol, instead of symbolizing the red flag of Russia, will still be the Star Spangled Banner."

Platform Adopted.

The assemblage, which was in the nature of a mass meeting, adopted unanimously a platform which charged President Roosevelt and the national Democratic administration had "repudiated" the 1932 platform on which the party rode to power.

Gov. Talmadge and John H. Kirby of Texas, head of the Southern Committee to Uphold the Constitution, were in the organized movement designed to launch a campaign to prevent the President's renomination.

Gov. Talmadge delivered a speech which was broadcast by radio. He departed from his prepared speech to say that, while his program was to "share the burden" rather than "share-the-wealth," he wanted to "take my hat off to that noble statsman—Huey Long."

Talmadge also paid tribute to the late Gov. O. K. Allen of Louisiana.

In Comparison With Landon.

Leaving his text again, Talmadge asserted "most of the press of Georgia is on the payroll of the New Deal." He said the situation was in contrast to that of Kansas, where newspapers had given publicity to the reduction of taxation and payment of debts by Gov. Landon's government.

"All know the program in Georgia has equaled and outstripped the program in Kansas," he shouted.

Gov. Talmadge was unable to leave the platform immediately after his address as men in overalls crowded about him.

Talmadge declared that "if the New Dealers can pick their own Supreme Court, the wheels of our democracy would catch fire and burn down our freedom."

"The Supreme Court has come to our rescue," he went on, in charging the Federal Government is working to "tear down states' rights."

"Let's hold up their hands," he continued. "Let's don't allow a bunch of Communists to have four more years to appoint the successors to such stalwart men as Chief Justice Hughes and Associate Justices Butler, McReynolds, Sutherland and Van Devanter.

He declared: "States' rights are in the balance more than they were in the days of 1861."

"If the present program is continued for four more years, the lines between the states will be only a shadow on paper and the Government of the separate states will be subservient to the will of a central power in Washington.

"Boards and Boards and Boards."

"Every true Democrat hangs his head in shame when he realizes that under a Democratic administration are boards, and boards, and boards—and that the President in Washington has had enacted laws where they could tell the manufacturers, storekeepers, hotels and shops what to pay their labor and how many hours they could work.

"The Democrats of the South owe it to the nation to rally to the principles of Thomas Jefferson, the founder of this party.

"You owe it to the North, and the East, and the West, to help in this fight to see that no Communist or Socialist steals the democratic nomination, and mocks you with smiles and jeers by telling you that the South is always solidly Democratic.

"Yes, the South is Democratic, true to the faith and true to the principles of Thomas Jefferson:

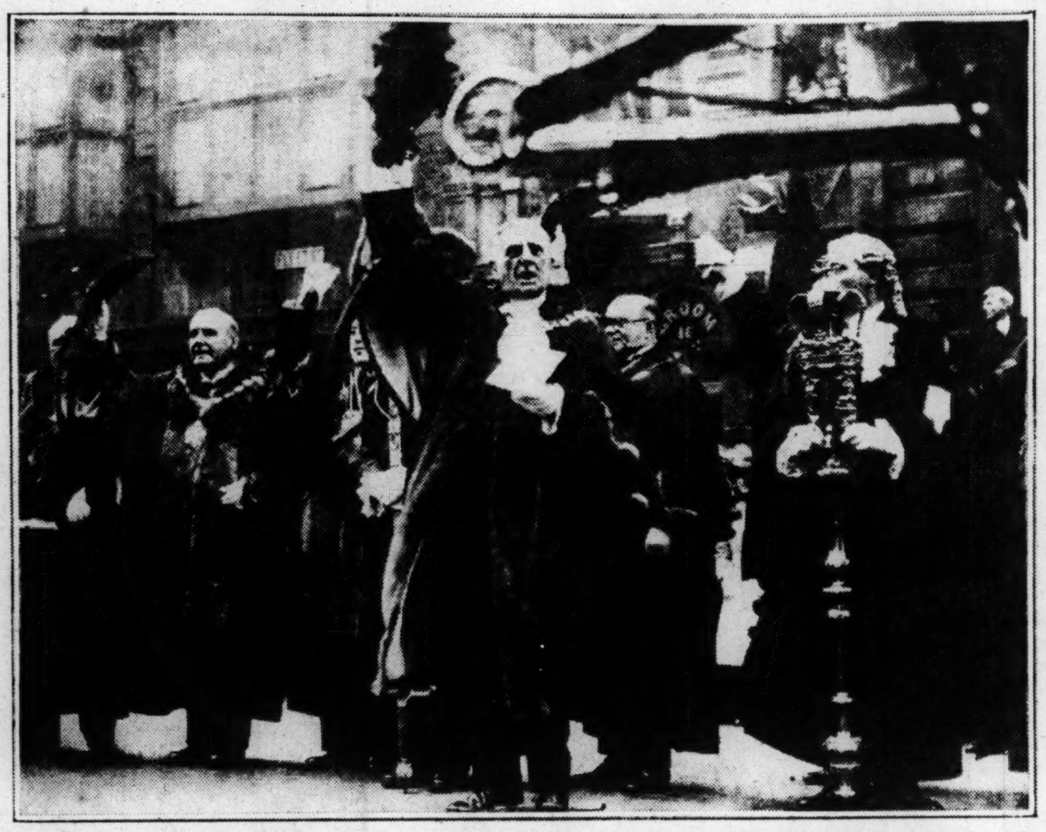
Lord Mayor of London Acclaiming New King



AFTER the Privy Council's proclamation of Edward VIII as King of England had been read at St. James's Palace it was borne by heralds in a procession to the Temple Bar, ancient barrier of the city, where the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs received the "news" and called for three cheers for the new monarch.

ROOSEVELT TO ADDRESS BIRTHDAY PARTIES BY RADIO

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—President Roosevelt will address a greeting over the radio tomorrow night to persons attending more than 7000 balls throughout the country in honor of his birthday.

As usual, the President will observe his birthday with close friends. For years he has had dinner on Jan. 30 with intimates of his service as Assistant Secretary of the Navy and as Democratic vice-presidential nominee in 1920. Mrs. Roosevelt is arranging to have a birthday cake with four candles—the President will be 54 years old.

Those who will dine with the President and Mrs. Roosevelt tomorrow night are Thomas Lynch and Stanley Prenosil, New York; James Sullivan of Boston; Kirke Simpson of Washington; Stephen T. Early and Marvin H. McIntyre, secretaries to the President; Miss Marion Dickerman and Miss Nancy Cook of New York; Mrs. Melvina Schieder, secretary to Mrs. Roosevelt; Miss Marguerite Lehand and Miss Grace Tully, personal secretaries to the President; and Miss Margaret Durand, secretary to Louis M. Howe.

Howe is in the Naval Hospital recuperating from a severe illness. The President and his "gang," as he calls his birthday guests, are counting on a visit there before dinner.

50 STUDENTS, 5 POLICEMEN INJURED IN CLASH AT CAIRO

Youths Fired on in Second Outbreak of Day in Egyptian Capital.

By the Associated Press.

CAIRO, Jan. 29.—More than 50 students and five policemen were injured today at Sheiks College. Police, belabored with stones, fired on the students. Most of the injuries were minor and none of the students or police required hospital treatment.

Earlier police fired on rioting students in the Kasr-El-Aini district, in the southwest section, wounding one. Several police were injured by stones.

The disturbances followed the funeral yesterday of one of three persons who died from wounds received in recent demonstrations.

FORMER CABINET MEMBER SUSPENDED FROM PARIS BAR

Eugene Frot's Legal Robes Torn From Him by Lawyers as He Leaves Court.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—Former Minister of the Interior Eugene Frot was suspended from the Paris bar for six months today for an undisclosed courtroom irregularity.

Frot, who was in charge of Paris police during the riots of February, 1934, has been the subject of numerous attacks and denunciations for the disturbances in which many persons were killed or injured.

Eight Killed in Fight in Mexico.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO, D. F., Jan. 29.—Newspaper dispatches from Tabasco yesterday reported that eight men were killed and six seriously wounded in a fight near the town of Emiliano Zapata. The fighting started, it was reported, when municipal authorities went to a ranch to search for contraband liquor and were fired on by ranch employes.

VANDENBERG'S SUGGESTION FOR LIQUIDATING WAR DEBTS

He Proposes to Convert Them Into "Marketable Securities" to Be Sold to Public.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Senator Vandenberg (Rep.), Michigan, asked Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau yesterday whether steps might be taken to convert overdue war debts into marketable securities to replenish the Treasury.

In a letter to the Secretary he said that $971,225,092 was already overdue from foreign nations and that $193,789,042 additional would be due July 1, 1936, of the total, $11,577,000,000 outstanding funded debt.

In the debt agreements, Vandenberg said, debtor nations were obligated, on demand, to convert the present huge lump sum bonds into bonds "suitable for sale to the public" on the same terms and at the same rates of interest. To each agreement, however, was appended a statement that such new bonds shall be issued subject to repayment of principal on terms that "shall be agreed upon."

"I desire to inquire," Vandenberg wrote, "whether it would be feasible—and whether any consideration has been given to such proposition—to ask that the provision in the refunding agreements for 'exchange for marketable agreements' be invoked to liquidate these overdue accounts.

"If 'marketable obligations' could be obtained from these countries for these sums now past due (and for any subsequent payments when due) it would clearly afford an important source of revenue for our extraordinarily hard-pressed Treasury and would obviate at least in some degree the fatal necessity of piling debt on debt and bond on bond.

"It is obvious that 'marketable obligations' of these foreign Powers would be in fact "marketable' if they stand upon a parity with other outstanding obligations of these Governments now traded in upon the markets of the world."

TOWNSEND ADVOCATES AGAIN DEMAND TRANSACTIONS TAX

Deny They Have Abandoned This Proposal for Paying Off Pensions.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Townsend headquarters repeated today the opinion that a transactions tax was the best means to finance $200-a-month pensions for everyone past 60.

Declaring opponents had circulated rumors that this "basic principle" of the pension plan had been abandoned, the organization said in a statement that financing by Government borrowing would be "as unsound ,economically as it is sociologically."

"To finance such a nation-wide individual security-after-60 program as is incompassed in the Townsend plan, America must have a tax which will fall in just proration on all citizens," the statement said. "The transactions tax proposed for the Townsend plan cannot be evaded by the rich as are some of our present forms of taxation."

Dies After Submarine Explosion.

MANILA, Jan. 29.—Libraeo Decastro, navy yard welder, died today from injuries suffered yesterday when batteries aboard the United States submarine S40 exploded. Seven other Filipino workmen were injured.

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE

By Special Cable.
(Copyright, 1936.)

LONDON, Jan. 29.—The memorial service to King George V was deeply impressive because of its stern simplicity. When one recalls the gorgeous funeral ceremonial broadcast from the great cathedral of Belgium at the obsequies of King Albert, the service today had a severity which in itself was awe-inspiring.

The weather added to the grimness of the occasion. The funeral of King Edward VII took place in the month of May, when the sun was shining, and overcoats were not required to protect us from the chill of our variable climate.

But yesterday the rain and rawness of the air, in combination, forced royalties, soldiers, Admirals, statesmen and diplomats to cover up their glittering uniforms with somber black or dull gray.

The civilian representatives of republican nations who abstained from court dress, and the representatives of the nations which still keep up the splendor of courts, were alike reduced to one dismal hue. Winter's a great leveler.

Atmosphere of Austerity.

Everything converged to produce an atmosphere of austerity suited to the greatness of the occasion and the depth of universal grief, and thus singularly moving. The sense of sadness and of mourning was accentuated by the gloom inside and outside St. George's chapel.

I felt, when the coffin was lowered out of the sight of men into the vault, that I realized for the first time that the reign of George V was really at an end and that a new reign had commenced from that moment.

I had witnessed the thrilling spectacle of the myriads who poured through Westminster Hall to pay homage to their King; endless multitudes who belong to all classes and conditions of life, and I felt that to them George V was still there, on that draped catafalque.

The symbols of his authority were there—the crown, scepter and the guards—and to the men, women and children who passed by in solemn silence, their King was still amongst them, and it was only with the ceremony that we seemed to understand that his reign was over.

Appropriate Setting.

Stately, beautiful St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle, was an appropriate setting for the last rites of farewell to the beloved monarch. The chapel was built in the wars of the Roses, before Columbus discovered America.

The simplicity and sincerity of the King's life was his most notable contribution to his generation.

Now again the cloak was thrown open and a blaze of color revealed—the golden dazzle of the Windsor uniform worn by the array of privy councillors that filed into their chapel stalls; the infinite variety

BILL PROPOSES CIVILIAN AIR RESERVE FOR ARMY

Chairman MsSwain of House Military Affairs Committee Introduces it After Hearing.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Organization of an air reserve training corps as a civilian component of the army is proposed in a bill introduced in the House today by McSwain (Dem.), South Carolina, chairman of the Military Affairs Committee.

McSwain's action followed hearings before his committee last week on a plan to provide army air corps supervision of aviation instruction at private flying schools, colleges and universities. The chairman said all persons between 17 and 24 years old with a minimum education equivalent to a full high school course would be eligible for cadetships in the corps.

Under the bill the Secretary of War is authorized to select each year 20 of the "most promising and efficient" graduates of the primary instruction and to give them instruction at any army flying field for such period as the Secretary may prescribe, for commission as reserve officers.

DICKINSON CALLS FOR END TO 'WILD ORGY OF SPENDING'

Iowa Senator at Republican Rally Says Party Wants Candidate Who Will Stop It.

By the Associated Press.

CANTON, Ill., Jan. 29.—Senator L. J. Dickinson (Rep.), Iowa, told a Republican rally here last night that "the party is looking for a candidate for the presidency who can and will end the wild orgy of spending which has put the nation in debt more than 30 billions."

He said that the "only possible way in which the Government can help the farmer is through a program of soil conservation and erosion control, for which funds shall be allocated to the states in the same manner as extension service, highway construction and land grants."

Dickinson charged that the Democratic administration "is blocking every effort to bring about a program of this type for the sole purpose of building up a vast political machine for conduct of the coming election."

Plan for Aiding Jews in Germany To Be Read at Washington Parley

Proposals Drafted by Britons and Americans to Be Made Known at Close of Conference.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Details of a plan devised by British and American Jewish leaders for removing Jews from Nazi Germany, will be made known here at the conclusion of the National Conference for Palestine, which opens Saturday and continues through Sunday evening. It will be attended by approximately 1000 Jewish leaders from all sections of the country.

Addresses will be made by Sir Herbert Samuel, Viscount Bearsted and Simon Marks, members of the British delegation, and Joseph L. Cohen, its secretary. As representatives of the Central British Fund, they will review the program on which they have agreed with the leaders of Jewish organizations in the United States.

In discussions conducted last week, a tentative figure of $15,000,000 was mentioned, of which the British delegates were authorized to pladge one-third. It is proposed to remove at least 100,000 of the 430,000 Jews residing in Germany—most of them to Palestine.

The British delegation will come here from New York where private conferences on the plan are being held. Sir Herbert discussed the problems involved, in an address at St. Louis Saturday night.

Agencies to Handle Task.

The relationship of the new plan to the work of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, recognized in the League of Nations mandate as the supreme Jewish authority in the rebuilding of Palestine, will be explained by the delegation. The United Palestine Appeal, at whose initiative scores of national Jewish organizations joined in calling the Washington conference, represents the Jewish Agency for Palestine in the United States. It is understood that the plans now being devised call for a large measure of responsibility being assumed by the United Palestine Appeal. The extent of this responsibility will be made known at the Washington conference.

The conference will begin Saturday night. Dr. Israel Goldstein, president of the Jewish National Fund of America, will preside. The speakers at the session include Marks, who will speak on "An Economic Review of the Jewish Position in Europe and Palestine." Others will be Judge Joseph A. Padway of Milwaukee and Miss Goldie Myerson of Jerusalem, one of the leaders of the women's section of the Jewish Federation of Labor in Palestine.

Second Session.

The second session will open Sunday morning, with Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, chairman of the Provisional Committee, calling the conference, presiding. Speakers will include Cohen, Felix A. Levy of Chicago, president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis; Rabbi B. L. Levinthal of Philadelphia, dean of American Orthodox Rabbis; Mrs. Edward Jacobs, president of Hadassah, and Mrs. William D. Sporborg, president of the New York State Federation of Women's Club.

Louis Lipsky, American member of the World Executive of the Jewish Agency of Palestine, will preside Sunday afternoon. Speakers will include Lord Bearsted, Dr. Abba Hillel Silver of Cleveland, Rabbi James G. Heller of Cincinnati, Judge William M. Lewis of Philadelphia, Nathan Straus of New York.

The final session will be at a banquet on Sunday evening, with Sir Herbert Samuel delivering the principal address. Other speakers will be United States Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, Federal Judge Julian W. Mack of New York and others.

DOLLAR A WORD, COST OF U. S. GUIDE BOOK

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. — With the cost of the new United States guide book, being compiled by the WPA, estimated at $2,689,000, and as the number of words is to be limited to 2,680,000, the rate will be slightly more than a dollar a word.

The work is being done by 5000 jobless writers. The copy is flowing in now at the rate of from two to three million words a week, on which editors are working with blue pencils. The guide is part of a $20,000,000 cultural program which also is providing jobs for needy artists, actors and musicians.

Only one official knows how much space each state will get and he won't tell. State jealousies would be aroused, he said. He indicated, however, that those having much historical interest, like Virginia, or with scenic attractions, like Montana, would receive more than they would on a strict population basis. The most any state will get is 175,000 words, and the least, 25,000. The District of Columbia, whose few square miles are packed with attractions like the White House and the Capitol, will have up to 50,000 words. Between 250,000 and 275,000 words is now being written about the District

Guide book officials explained, however, that all these words were not going to be wasted. The material will be assembled in the states in its complete form. Then, while the editors in Washington are carving, the full material will be brought out as state guides.

No Federal funds are available for this purpose, but most states were said to be anxious to provide for the publication in some way, perhaps by the state universities. Among the states especially interested were Virginia, New Hampshire, Oregon, Washington and Mississippi.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

A Wartime Reminiscence.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ON the morning of Sept. 18, 1918, the writer, with a detachment of United States Marines, was admitted to the courtyard of Buckingham Palace and escorted to a roped enclosure within easy hearing distance of where King George of England was to decorate war heroes of the army and navy.

It was 11 o'clock when His Majesty, accompanied by an escort of uniformed officers, approached the stand where the ceremony was to take place.

The famous Black Horse Guard, resplendent in brilliant uniforms and with drawn sabers, was at attention. In addition, there were present many representatives of the army and navy, and a limited number of civilians, men and women. It was an impressive spectacle. After all had taken places assigned them, the great gates of the courtyard were closed, locked and guarded.

Shortly after the King had taken position, officers and enlisted men to be decorated were ushered forward. Those able to do so stepped briskly up, saluted and stood at attention. Then followed those who required assistance, some on crutches and others in wheel chairs. The last two to be decorated were sightless.

The decoration selected for each recipient was taken by the King from a small dark velvet cushion held by the outstretched arms of an officer in uniform. The King then stepped forward and pinned the decoration upon the garment of the one to be honored. For each and every one of these His Majesty had a kindly word of praise and thanks, a shake of the hand, a pat on the shoulder or a gentle caress of the cheek.

During this ceremony, there was silence in the courtyard; no conversation and no applause. The spectators instinctively stood at attention, and tears dimmed the eyes of many. They were standing in the presence of men who had sacrificed their all for the Kingdom. They were in the presence of a King, a gracious and grateful monarch, and a gentleman.

Query.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

QUOTATION from speech of Alfred E. Smith before the American Liberty League in Washington:

I do speak for what I believe to be the best interests of the American people in the class in which I belong.

Need anything more be added to the record? W. H. LEMMEL.

Bryan at Baltimore.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE life and deeds of the late William Jennings Bryan need no defense by me or by anybody else. They are an open book. But when Senator Bennett Clark made the statement a few days ago that Bryan "betrayed" his father, the late Champ Clark, I could not willingly allow such a statement to go unchallenged, for the simple reason that it is not true.

At the Baltimore convention in 1912, Woodrow Wilson, Champ Clark and others were candidates for the presidential nomination. Bryan as a delegate from Nebraska was leading the fight against organized greed. In letters to Wilson and Clark, he sought to sound them as to where they stood in the fight. Wilson's answer showed that he stood squarely with Bryan in his struggle against the "90 wax figures." Clark's answer was an evasion, in other words, a straddle of the issue. Then, Bryan justly withdrew his support from Clark and gave it to Wilson, with the result that Wilson was nominated, as he deserved to be. All of which is a simple matter of fact and record.

Autocracy Abroad and at Home.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

SO long as the President reported on foreign affairs, you didn't mind, but when he proceeded to point the same lessons about the autocracy of a minority at home, then you object.

That $1500 Check.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN a recent editorial comment, entitled "Hurting the Cause of Labor," you stated that 1500 persons assembled to hear the opera "Lakme," and that the performance was delayed two hours because the musicians refused a $1500 check for their wages, insisting on cash.

This sort of comment does not help the cause, so I am asking you to be kind enough to print the other side of the matter. These musicians must have had experience with bad checks. Fly-by-night ventures have mulcted many, I know. If the check was good, why did not the management cash it and pay in cash, as they are supposed to do? If the audience was kept waiting for two hours, it was the management's fault and not that of the musicians.

Union officials can't afford to be unreasonable. If they were, we would soon put them out of office. Our intention is to give the employer the best we have, and we expect decent wages and conditions in return. O. W. HOFFMEISTER.

IN THE NEW DEAL'S OWN HOUSE.

In any impartial stock-taking of the successes and failures of the Roosevelt administration, it must be given a low rating under the head of administrative efficiency. This is said without regard to the wisdom or unwisdom of the Roosevelt policies: the criticism runs to the faulty and fumbling way in which the administrative branches of the Government, in the main, have functioned.

The present lack of efficiency at Washington is due only in part to the inherent defects in the American Government service. It is due to two other causes, either of which would be enough to bring efficiency to a low ebb. One is Farleyism; we discussed this yesterday in an editorial pointing out that the proportion of Federal employes in the classified civil service has sunk under the present administration from more than 80 per cent to the disgracefully low level of 57 per cent.

The other cause is not so obvious, but a moment's reflection will show how large it is and how significant. It consists in the fact that in the Roosevelt administration are two schools of thought, working at cross-purposes. We have seen this division exemplified in the turning of Mr. Roosevelt now to the right (as the saying goes) and now to the left. Under pressure of emergency, or in a vain effort to satisfy conflicting demands, things have been done which have canceled each other out. This lack of a clear, guiding purpose, of a purpose plain for all to see, is reflected in an indecision, a fumbling, a hesitancy, now and again a conflict of acts, on the part of those intrusted with the execution of policies. Immense confusion, as in the carrying out of the public works plans, has inevitably resulted.

We hold no brief for Republican rule, or the rule of any party, at Washington, but this much could be said for the administrative work under the Republicans: it was carried on by like-minded people, and hence had a consistency about it that is lacking today. Lest the comparison seem to reflect upon the Democrats, as such, we hasten to add that the last preceding Democratic administrations—those of Wilson—likewise had this consistency. Today's condition is manifestly the result of dissension in the inner councils of the Democrats. There can be no workmanlike execution of policies when there is no clearly defined guiding principle at the top.

In his interesting article in the Post-Dispatch last Sunday, G. K. Chesterton put his finger on a significant difference between the English and the American governing system, one that is apropos the present discussion. He said that England, more than most people realize, is "ruled by permanent officials." That is her way of balancing the difficulties of government by assembly. Our staff of Federal employes is not comparable in permanence and authority to the English administrative staff; we achieve our "balance" through presidential initiative and the Supreme Court. All this is perfectly true. Since it is true, since our staff lacks the peculiar permanence and authority of the English staff, it is all the more important that the presidential initiative shall chart a course of action in terms that none can misread or misunderstand. That kind of initiative is lacking today at the capital.

Al Smith said in his Liberty League speech that we are headed toward Moscow. That, of course, is absurd. If we were headed that way, there would at least be more of a sense of direction in the government establishment than there now is. The truth is that the Federal service is operating under conflicting sailing orders, or conflicting conceptions of orders, or insufficient orders. That, as we have said, is one large reason, perhaps the largest, for a state of administrative confusion and ineptitude that can do the Roosevelt measures more harm, ultimately, than all the Liberty League thunderbolts from without.

SIXTEEN TO SEVEN.

Sixteen Republican Senators voted for passage of the soldier bonus bill over the President's veto; only seven voted to sustain the veto. That is, about 70 per cent of the Republican party strength in the Senate was thrown in favor of the bonus.

One of those voting for the bonus was McNary of Oregon, leader of the Senate Republicans.

Among the others were such party stalwarts as Barbour of New Jersey, Carey of Wyoming, Davis of Pennsylvania, Dickinson of Iowa, Gibson of Vermont, Metcalf of Rhode Island, Steiwer of Oregon and White of Maine.

We shall await with interest the views of these gentlemen on what we had understood to be the demand of the Republican party for sharp curtailment of Federal expenditures and immediate steps toward the balancing of the budget.

Not long ago in St. Louis, Mr. Dickinson eloquently assailed the spending policies of the Roosevelt administration. Shaking a warning finger at his audience, he said: "Don't forget! It's you, and you, and you, who are backing the principal and interest on all these bonds." He was at his sarcastic best in describing the Matanuska Valley experiment.

We shall await with particular interest the development of Mr. Dickinson's views on the subject of Federal spending to benefit special groups.

A HEALTHY PRECEDENT.

If the precedent established in a New York Federal Court is followed in the future, officers of passenger ships and their employes will find it personally dangerous to fail to provide proper precautions against disaster. Chief Engineer Abbott of the Morro Castle rushed for a lifeboat when the ship caught fire, leaving the passengers behind. He got four years. Acting Captain Warms, whose incompetence was clearly demonstrated in the inquiries, was convicted of criminal negligence. He got two years. For sending out a ship with inadequate personnel, Henry E. Cabaud, vice-president of the line, got a $5000 fine and a suspended sentence of one year. The company itself received the maximum fine of $10,000.

Heretofore, when disasters occurred at sea, the practice has been to hold a more or less perfunctory hearing, whitewash the guilty persons or administer a slap on the wrist. Gross errors in navigation, failure to hold safety drills to acquaint the passengers with what to do in case of emergency, refusal to send out S. O. S. calls until peril became imminent, abandonment of ships by their crews—these and other gross offenses against primary laws of the sea have been committed with impunity. Most recent sea disasters could have been prevented or, at least, the passengers might have been saved. Yet the idea of visiting real punishment upon the persons responsible is a novelty invented in Judge Hulbert's court.

On the same day this heartening news appeared came the publication of a secret resolution of the Board of Supervising Inspectors of the Federal Bureau of Navigation and Steamboat Inspection charging that the lives of passengers on American ships are not properly safeguarded. Congress, lavish with funds for other purposes, has starved the inspection service until it finds it impossible to perform its duties. Personnel is inadequate and underpaid and many ships go out to sea without the examination provided for by law.

THE ARENA'S UNSUITABILITY.

The question of whether or not the Arena should be purchased for use as an armory is now being considered by a special aldermanic committee, appointed about two weeks ago. We said at the time that, because of previous efforts to foist upon the city what has been a white elephant in private hands, great caution should be exercised by the Aldermen.

It now develops that the weight of opinion on the part of men peculiarly qualified to pass upon the question—namely, those intimately connected with National Guard affairs—is definitely opposed to the purchase. These men prefer to build a new armory on the site adjoining Camp Jackson Plaza, just east of Grand boulevard, between Pine and Lawton.

This, for example, is the attitude taken by A. L. Shapleigh, chairman of the Citizens' Military Committee. Mr. Shapleigh says: "The advantages of this site are manifold, such as the very central location and the reasonable price at which the property can be had (about $125,000)."

Other military authorities cite serious objections to the Arena. A survey by a committee of engineers last summer disclosed that to put the Arena in proper physical condition even for its present use would cost more than $100,000, and to remodel it so it could be used as an armory would cost about $500,000. To pay $750,000 for the Arena and then to be faced with an expenditure of half a million or so more would be no bargain for the city.

For years, the 138th Infantry of the National Guard has used a leased building at the corner of Grand boulevard and Market street, which has become inadequate. The 1934 bond issue provided a $1,000,000 item for the acquisition or purchase of a new armory, and the PWA has allotted a $347,500 grant to be added to this sum. This grant is being jeopardized by the Aldermen's delay.

If the military authorities' expert opinion is to be heeded, as, of course, it should be, the Aldermen will abandon the idea of purchasing the Arena.

WILLIAM B. ITTNER.

William B. Ittner, who was buried yesterday, will be long remembered as the architect who changed the American school from the prison-like structure he disliked as a boy to the well-lighted, well-ventilated and decorative public building which is common throughout the country today. A native of St. Louis and a graduate of the pioneering Manual Training School which Calvin Milton Woodward caused to distinguish Washington University in the last century, Mr. Ittner started the transformation as soon as he became Building Commissioner for the School Board, in 1897. Sherman School, built the next year under his direction, was oblong instead of box-shaped, in order to provide more light and air, and indicated the lines he would develop.

Visits to other cities and to Europe yielded little in the way of ideas, and so he sat down at home to work out architectural design in terms of school needs. How successful he was can be judged from the fact that he leaves to keep his memory not only some 50 school buildings in and about St. Louis, but more than 500 schools ranging geographically from Washington, D. C., to Longview, Wash. William B. Ittner's name and work will find their way to the pages of American social history.

"TO BLUSH UNSEEN."

Bainbridge Colby "started something" when he criticised the administration in a speech to the Women's Patriotic Conference on National Defense. Perhaps it would be more accurate to say he stopped something. Certainly a number of speeches that were to have been made by navy and marine officers will never be delivered. The speakers have sent their regrets. In service uniform they feel officially associated with the administration and may not properly appear on a platform from which the Government has been included among the country's enemies.

The temptation is great to dwell upon those luckless speeches that were born to die unspoken, unapplauded, unreported. They moved, it must be assumed, amid the blare and glare of Mars. Roaring guns, and bursting bombs, and the "ghastly dew" which Tennyson saw fall, like a shower of death, upon the just and unjust ere plane or blimp had sought the skies—had ever floated before imagination's eyes, save those of Leonardo. But one must needs turn resolutely away from those beguiling fancies to the issue practically posed.

Philosophically, that issue is free speech. Personally, it involves the greatest of our political eclectics, Bainbridge Colby. Mr. Colby has marched under three party flags. A Republican in the "brave days of 21," a Progressive when the Bull Moose shook the continent, a Democrat under the spell of Woodrow Wilson's erudition, today a homeless wanderer, so to speak, with never a party roof to offer shelter. And now he can't talk without making the Patriotic Women feel like a bevy of Mesdames Malaprops.

Shall we call it a sad situation or a one-time comic strip?

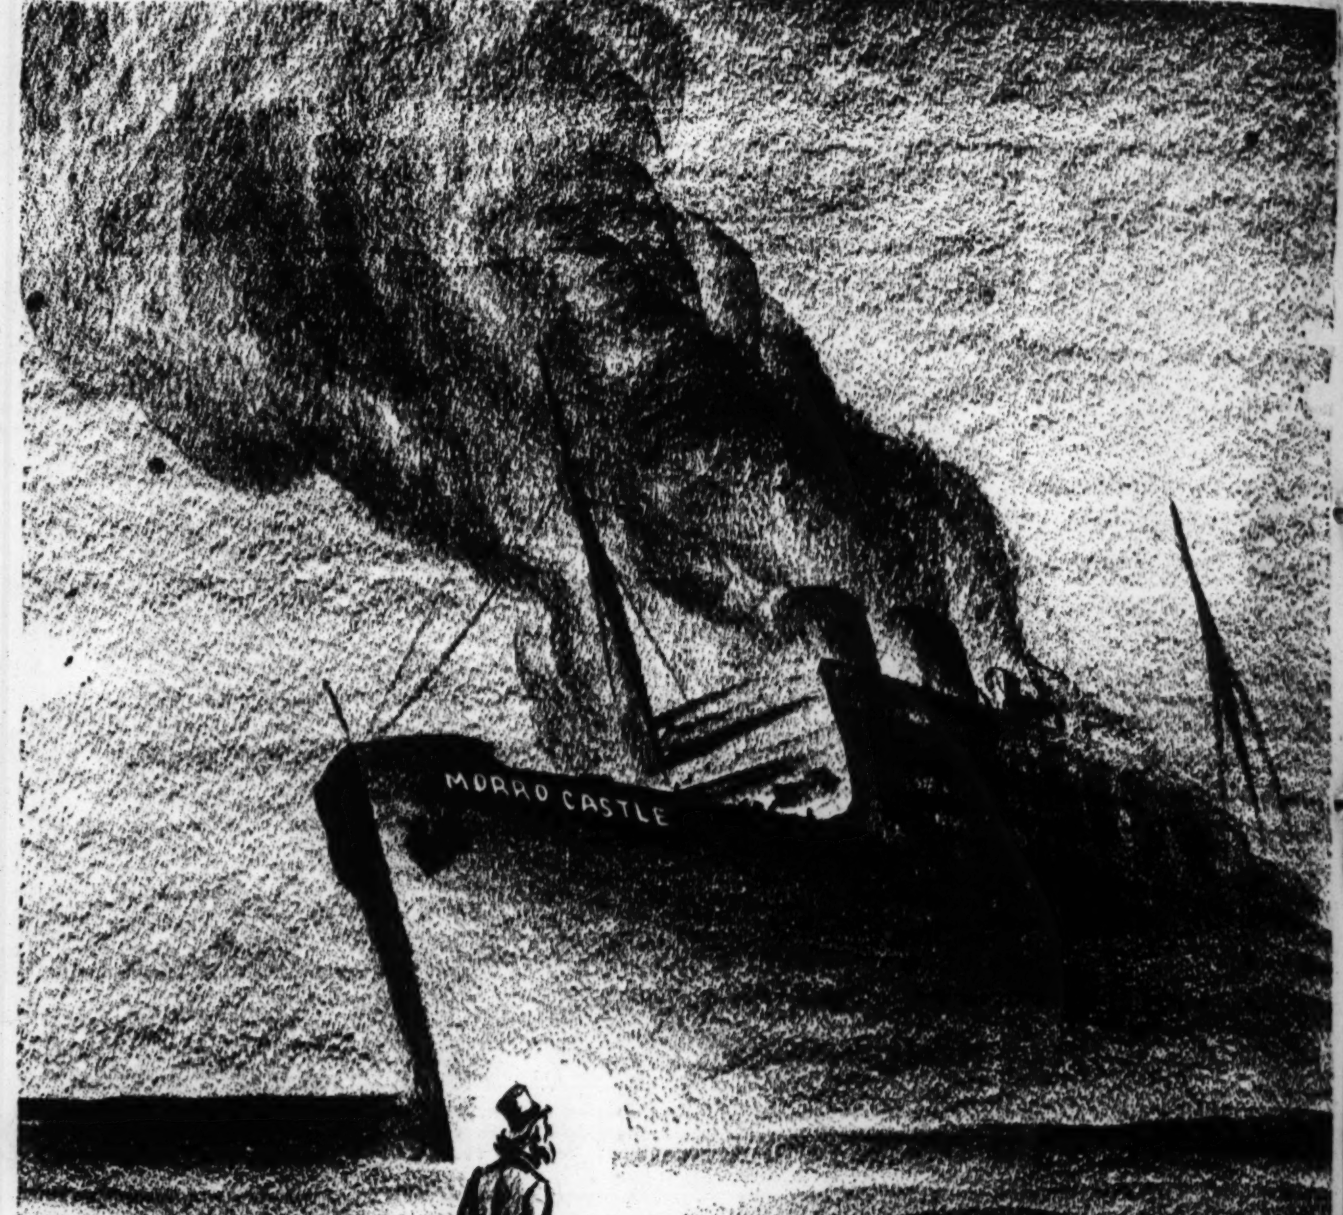
HELP THE Y. W. C. A.

"It is cheaper to build a girl than to repair an adult." There can be no denying the truth of the slogan which the Y. W. C. A. has chosen for its 1936 budget campaign. It is a truism that held good a century ago and will hold good so long as the human race dwells on this planet. But it is not only cheaper to build a girl as against repairing an adult. What is more important, it is infinitely better for mankind. For no matter how successfully the repairing is done, nothing can make up for the lost time; the years that are wasted cannot be lived again. Everything the Y. W. C. A. does—the recreational and educational and cultural classes it conducts, the work training and interest groups it sponsors, the summer camps it provides, the social affairs it holds for young folk in need of them—is based on that fundamental of life. If the budget of $80,000 is raised and as many girls and young women turn to the Y. W. C. A. this year as sought its resources last year, the average expenditure will be only $1.77. There is something wrong with the community's standard of values if it does not make that possible.



AND WHO WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR INSPECTION?

TODAY AND TOMORROW

By Walter Lippmann

Smith and Roosevelt

THE rupture of their friendship, which began, I have always understood, shortly after the election of 1928, has been a personal misfortune both for Al Smith and for Franklin D. Roosevelt. For the country, it has had serious consequences. It has brought about the retirement of Smith from public life. It deflected Roosevelt from an incomparable opportunity for national leadership into a personal and factional adventure.

If ever two men needed each other, it was these two men, and though each may now have persuaded himself that they are separated on great questions of principle, they have in fact become divided because they lacked the magnanimity to work together.

They had become estranged and embittered long before either of them had heard of the New Deal, long before Smith had discovered that he admired the Democratic platform of 1932, long before Roosevelt had discovered that it was his mission to reconstruct the Democratic party and to make of it the exclusive agency of national reconstruction. All these things are afterthoughts.

These two men have not become divided because Roosevelt has recently taken to rousing the masses against the rich and Smith has taken to declamation about Communism and the Red flag. On the contrary, it is because they have become divided and have taken divergent paths that each has ended by making his destructive and unworthy appeal to popular passion.

Although Roosevelt had a political career in the Wilson era, it was at the convention of 1924 in Madison Square Garden, when his party was so bitterly divided, that he emerged as a national leader. He was the one man who commanded the confidence of the Eastern Democrats who supported Smith and of the Western and Southern Democrats who were irreconcilably opposed to Smith.

In the four years that followed, he devoted himself wholeheartedly and effectively to the reunion of the Democratic party, and the nomination of Smith and Robinson at the Houston convention consummated that work. Through all those years, the single purpose of Roosevelt was to reconcile what might be called the Bryan Democracy with the Cleveland Democracy, having himself the clear conviction that they must and could find common ground.

In the election of 1928, it will be recalled, Smith lost New York State, his own New York, and Roosevelt by a small plurality carried the State. It was then that the relations between the two men first became poisoned. There is no need to speculate elaborately on just what it was in the way of ambition and sentiment which did the damage. The known fact is that Gov. Roosevelt proceeded at once to eliminate Smith from the political leadership of New York and to reach out for personal domination of the State. Whereas up to that time Roosevelt had worked on the theory that the Democratic factions must be reconciled by compromise, from that time forward he began to take the line that the party must be reconstructed by the conquest of the Cleveland and Smith Democracy.

This line of action he pursued ruthlessly at the Chicago convention of 1932, when he was prepared to compromise with every element of his party, Hearst, Huey Long, anyone, except the Cleveland Democrats and the followers of Smith. There was even a public purge in which Jouett Shouse, who had carried the national party organization through its lean years, was brutally dismissed from the party councils and started on the career which has made him the organizer of the American Liberty League.

During the campaign, Mr. Roosevelt, of course, welcomed the support of all Democrats. But once elected, he and Mr. Farley continued the purge. They had two political rules. One was that no man could be admitted to the high councils of the administration who had not supported Roosevelt before the convention; the other was that they would form an alliance with the Western Republican progressives. Thus they admitted to the Cabinet a Republican progressive like Mr. Ickes, but they excluded from it anyone who was closely identified with Al Smith or with the old independent Democracy of Cleveland.

• • •

But though they excluded the conservative Democrats and wooed the progressive Republicans, as a matter of fact their relations with the progressives were a liaison rather than a marriage. They adopted many progressive ideas, but the vast patronage at their disposal they used to build up a national party machine directly accountable to Mr. Roosevelt personally.

In short, they set out to do what no man has ever succeeded in doing in American politics, to make a national party, not by compromise among factions, but by personal domination. The conservative Democrats were ostracized and rendered impotent. The progressive Republicans were placated but were not permitted to share the power.

This party maneuver, though it was undertaken presumably in order to entrust the New Deal only to its completely convinced adherents, has in fact been disastrous to the New Deal. For one thing, it eliminated at a stroke a very large number of the seasoned men who could have shown Mr. Roosevelt how to translate his ideas into workable measures. It meant that Mr. Roosevelt's projects of reform, many of them admirable in their intent, were drafted by incompetent amateurs and for the most part administered by inexperienced men.

The Democrats who had been ostracized were precisely the men most fitted to devise the methods to give practical reality to Mr. Roosevelt's enthusiasms, and to assist him in commending these innovations to the country. But, by a rule that was as intolerant as it was foolish, they were treated as reactionary and impure and their influence was vigorously eliminated.

Thus, willfully, Mr. Roosevelt divided his party. Thus, instead of a national party, which was his theoretical objective, there is mere factionalism on both sides.

• • •

Mr. Roosevelt's speech to Congress, with its appeal to national disunion, and Al Smith's speech, with its appeal to suspicion, may be taken as evidence that both men are up a blind alley. They both have got themselves into a position where neither is able to function effectively as a political leader.

Al Smith, by nature a most gifted politician, incomparable in practical decision, is out of office and without responsible influence, able to do no more than to complain, lacking, it would seem, any idea or purpose as to how to deal with the situation. Roosevelt, who started out with a national purpose to be achieved by the indispensable method of reconciling factions, has been drifting rapidly into a position where he is more the agitator than the statesman.

It need not have happened if only the two men had had the capacity of mind and heart to realize that their destinies were inextricably interwoven, that each possessed qualities that supplemented and corrected the other's weaknesses, that the hearty philistinism of Smith and the buoyant imaginativeness of Roosevelt in union would have been fruitful, but that apart they are sterile.

It was such a union of diverse but complementary temperaments that Washington achieved when he held Jefferson and Hamilton together in his Cabinet, and though neither Roosevelt nor Smith diverge at the same high level of policy, they would have served their times and themselves better had they been able to realize that if Hamilton and Jefferson could work together, it was their duty and their interest to try a little harder to forget their personal feelings.

The "Nine" Are Not So Old

From the San Francisco Chronicle.

"THE nine old men" have been thrown at us so many times we have come to believe the members of the Supreme Court of the United States are ancients of days beyond the common run. However, like many another popular myth, this one does not bear examination. The statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. have arrayed the facts. They are surprising.

In the 146 years of the court, 76 men have served, including two appointed twice, John Rutledge and Charles E. Hughes. Of the 66 now dead, their average age at death was 71.4 years. Surely this was no extraordinary age, especially when the fact has to be considered that the average was raised by the three nonagenarians and nine octogenarians who have sat upon the bench.

Calculating, as nearly as it can be done, the life expectancy of those 66 Justices, the insurance statisticians find that, as a group, each of them lived about a year longer than the life expectancy of men of their ages in ordinary walks of life.

None of the present members of the court has reached what can fairly be described as a great age. Justice Brandeis, the oldest, is 79; Van Devanter, 76; Hughes, McReynolds and Sutherland, 73; Butler, 69; Cardozo, 65; Stone, 63, and Roberts, 60.

In youth the Justices compare very well with the ancients of the Senate. In that body are 11 old men rising 70 or upward. Carter Glass is 77; Fletcher is 76; Norris, 74; McAdoo and Keyes, 72; Smith and King, 71; Borah, Capper and Coolidge, 70, and Lewis—one has to look back in old books to find the coy Senator Lewis' age now—will be 70 next May.

Yet we hear no moan made about the "11 old men of the Senate." In fact, the oldest of them, Carter Glass, is considered one of the most useful of Senators. Borah feels young enough to flirt with the idea of the presidency, and Fletcher, Norris and Capper manage to get around.

The insurance statisticians find no evidence that life on the Supreme Court tends to produce longevity "or that their expectation of life at time of appointment is materially different from that of men of their age in other walks of life."

Thus fades the myth.

REMARKABLE FEAT.

From the Kansas City Star.

Jesse James' feat of remaining at large [illegible] years seems all the more remarkable to Senator Soaper when he remembers that there were no parole boards to assist.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.

YOU won't find this ad in the help wanted columns, but it is the language of President Roosevelt and Secretary Morgenthau are using mentally in looking for someone to fill the shoes of Undersecretary Thomas Jefferson Coolidge.

The Bostonian's resignation is a serious blow to the New Deal. An able, experienced banker and bond expert with a high standing in financial circles, Coolidge's departure leaves a bad hole in the Treasury.

Morganthau's dilemma is to find a banker who has the confidence of the financial world and at the same time is pro-New Deal.

It is like looking for a needle in a haystack. Treasury wags suggest that young Henry put the Secret Service on the trail.

What makes matters worse is that Coolidge is the third man who has quit this post because of disagreement with New Deal fiscal policies.

As far back as last spring word leaked out that Coolidge was at odds with his chiefs and wanted to quit. Morgenthau urged him to stay and Coolidge yielded. But his views became increasingly critical.

Climax came when the President vetoed Coolidge's suggestion that the budget message contain a recommendation to stabilize the dollar. Instead, Roosevelt issued an executive order renewing for another year his power to raise or lower the value of the dollar. A few days later Coolidge sent in his resignation.

Morgenthau is looking for his new assistant in non-Wall Street quarters. He wants a banker unsullied by the big money marts of the East, hopes to find his man in the West or South.

Mrs. Roosevelt and Edward.

Mrs. Roosevelt is accustomed to having people brag about sitting next to her, but the other day she was the one to do the bragging. At her regular press conference she was asked:

"Did you know King George V?"

"No. But the Prince of Wales was here."

"Didn't someone give a dinner for the Prince of Wales? . . ." Mrs. Roosevelt (interrupting): "At which I sat next to him."

"When did the President meet the King?"

"He met the King during the war when he went over to the front in 1918."

"What did you talk about with the Prince of Wales?"

Exit Drama.

Official reason why Jake Baker, WPA censor, killed the WPA theatrical production on Ethiopia and Italy was the State Department and fear of offending Italy.

This, of course, had something to do with it. Inside reason, however, was the fact that the next WPA theatrical project was to portray the plight of the Southern share-croppers.

This is an extremely sore point with the New Deal. The cotton curtailment program has made the plight of Southern tenant farmers worse. The last thing the administration wants is publicity—especially through its own WPA.

Italian complaints to the State Department could have been ignored. The WPA actors depicting Mussolini and Emperor Haile Selassie were using exact quotes from these two gentlemen. Sixteen unemployed newspaper men were used in checking the quotes and the State Department admitted they were O. K.

But the share-croppers offered a greater problem. It now looks as if the only thing the WPA Theatrical Project can put on the stage is murder and gang warfare. Otherwise they will step on some Diplomatic, Senatorial or Big Business toe.

NOTE: Jake Baker, WPA czar who killed the Ethiopian-Italian drama, once lived in Greenwich Village, was considered a great bohemian, follower of the stage.

Historic Struggle.

In a long, narrow, high-ceilinged room on the ground floor of the Capitol, a momentous struggle is being waged in strictest secrecy.

The room is the meeting place of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, comprising most of the Big Names of the Senate. The issue is the all-important one of permanent legislation to replace the temporary Neutrality Act expiring Feb. 29.

On the surface, the battle is two-sided, with the contestants agreed on the desirability of a new law but differing on its scope.

One group, supporting the administration, wants to give the President some discretion in enforcing neutrality. The second, deeply distrustful of executive war-time power, demands explicit restrictions as to what he shall and shall not do.

These two groups, however, are not far apart and could be reconciled were it not for a third group. This is extremely guarded in its maneuvers, screening them behind discreet objections and lofty-sounding sentiments. But the truth is that it is opposed to any kind of neutrality legislation.

Committee members say privately that Senator Hiram Johnson of California is the leading exponent of this attitude. They lay at his doorstep chief responsibility for the slow dragging out of the committee's secret deliberations. Some of his committee colleagues even go so far as to credit him with a one-man filibuster.

Johnson has repeatedly demanded that the committee withhold decision until the League of Nations has definitely declared itself on the long-pending question of an oil embargo against Italy. As a result, Senate floor leaders have told the President it may be necessary to extend the temporary Neutrality Act 30 or 60 days.

General Johnson's Article

Says Liberty League Capitalized on Great Man's Resentment—Thinks Attack Will Get Votes for Roosevelt.

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.

THE Liberty League dinner was a vicious potlatch of savage reaction.

I think I saw the Liberty League begin. It was while NIRA was being written. A delegation of big business men appeared. It was headed by Lamont du Pont. It said it was in favor of NRA—all but the labor provisions. No talk of unconstitutionality—no opposition to codes. They asked to have the bill written to encourage company unions. Congress refused. From that moment the Lamont du Pont movement against the whole New Deal started. It has never ceased. It became the Liberty League.

The truly startling aspect of the league dinner is that it was all attack. Listening millions of sufferers from depression got not one word of comfort. Nothing New Dealers ever said about Old Tories is one-tenth so eloquent as that. It was the most reactionary incident in our political history.

Now the bulk of this country is neither radical nor reactionary. It is sanely liberal. Those speeches may encourage the die-hards, but they were just not smart. They will make hundreds of thousands of votes—for Roosevelt.

Much of the criticism was justified. But much was not and some was downright falsehood. Nobody can doubt the sincerity, liberality, and high purpose of Al Smith, but a good many people doubt the sincerity of some company he keeps. To criticise the New Deal, it isn't necessary first to get in bed with the most anti-social group in America.

This column has criticised the departures of the New Deal from the Chicago platform—but on personal responsibility as a dissenting Democrat, not as spokesman for a pledged Old Guard of extreme reaction, and always with constructive suggestions.

Why hold that dinner in Washington and brag about "diners from 48 states?" Why not invite only the gangers-uppers who are the league and hold it in lower Manhattan where the league belongs? They just capitalized on the bitter and justified resentment of a great man.

(Editor's Note: "Potlatch — a ceremonial giving of gifts among the Indians of the Northwest coast of America . . .; also, a festival at which such gifts are given. The folk-ways require that an offered gift be accepted and that a larger gift be given in return. The potlatch is thus an instrument of malice, used to impoverish a disliked person . . ." No Funeral Broadcast in Ireland.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Jan. 29.—The Free State radio station did not broadcast any part of the funeral services for King George yesterday. It had a program of recorded music during the two minutes of silence in England.

PRESIDENT'S BIRTHDAY PARTY PLANS COMPLETED IN CITY

Celebrations Tomorrow Night at Auditorium and Norwood Hills Country Club.

Plans have been completed for the parties to be held here tomorrow night, in observance of President Roosevelt's fifty-fourth birthday and to raise funds for the Warm Springs Foundation at Warm Springs, Ga., for sufferers from infantile paralysis. The St. Louis celebrations will be held in conjunction with similar events throughout the country.

The parties here will be at the Convention Hall of the Municipal Auditorium and at the Norwood Hills Conutry Club. Admission will be $1. Thirty per cent of the profits will go to the Warm Springs Foundation and the remaining 70 per cent to a local fund for relief of sufferers from infantile paralysis.

At the Municipal Auditorium, a floor show, in which performers from theaters and radio stations as well as non-professional entertainers will participate, will begin at 8:30 p. m. Dancing will begin at 10:30 p. m. The celebration at Norwood Hills will consist of a bridge party and dance, beginning at 8:30 p. m.

In addition to the $1 general admission tickets, floor table seats for $2.20 each and box seats at $5 apiece may also be purchased for the party at the Auditorium. Harvey Beffa is general chairman of the committee in charge of the celebration.

ST. LOUIS OPERA COMPANY REARRANGES ITS SCHEDULE

One Performance to Be Given in Convention Hall at Lower Prices.

The St. Louis Opera Company, after conferences between Guy Golterman and opera supporters, announced today that instead of giving four performances and the opera ball in Convention Hall, Municipal Auditorium, the company will give two performances and the operatic concert and ball in the Opera House at seat prices ranging from $1 to $5, and one performance will be given in Convention Hall at more popular prices of from 50 cents to $3.

The new schedule is: April 16, in the Opera House, "La Traviata," by Verdi; April 18, an operatic concert in which the entire company will take part, followed by a reception, supper and dance in the opera house; April 20, "Lucia di Lammermoor," in Convention Hall; April 22, "La Gioconda," in the Opera House.

The company has added to its staff a teacher of languages who will instruct the chorus in the language of the opera during rehearsals, the second of which is tonight under direction of Dr. Ernest Knoch at the Opera House.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

THE bridal party to accompany Miss Jasquelin Cary Chapman and Robert Arnold Sherman to the altar of St. Peter's Church the afternoon of Feb. 19 is announced today, following the issuing of wedding invitations yesterday by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Gaines Chapman Jr., 58 Kingsbury place.

Mrs. Arthur Furber Greer of New York, the former Miss Alice Chapman, will be her sister's matron of honor, and the bridesmaids will be Mr. Sherman's sister, Mrs. Wharton Whittaker of Providence, R. I.; Miss Caro S. Holmes, Mrs. Frank Rice Sheldon, Mrs. William N. Claggett Jr., Miss Elsie White, Mrs. Herbert N. Jones, Miss Mary Bolland Taussig and Mrs. Charles S. Terry.

Henry B. Pflager will be best man, and Mr. Sherman has chosen the following ushers: James Lee Johnson, Thomas Wright Pettus, Richard Baldwin, Chadbourne Taylor, John Crago, John Kennard Wallace, John H. Hayward, Edward M. Durham III, Palmer Livingston Clarkson and Ripley Bigelow of New York.

Several out-of-town guests will come to St. Louis for the ceremony, to be performed at 5:30 o'clock by the Rev. Hulbert A. Woolfall, and for the wedding reception, to be given at the St. Louis Country Club. In addition to Mrs. Greer, who will be with her parents, Mr. Sherman's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Sherman, will arrive from Westerley, R. I.; Miss Chapman's aunt, Mrs. Julian Bowen, will come from her home in Grosse Point, Mich., as will an uncle and another aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chapman of Detroit.

After a wedding trip of several weeks, Mr. Sherman and his bride will occupy an apartment at 7507 Buckingham drive.

Wedding invitations were received yesterday from Mrs. Charles Hunt Turner Jr., for the marriage of her daughter, Miss Lucy Anne, and George McDougall Weeks Jr., to take place Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 18, at 5:30 o'clock at Christ Church Cathedral.

Cards were also received from Dr. and Mrs. William E. Jones for the wedding ceremony of their daughter, Miss Marion Hathaway Jones, and George Herbst Jr., Saturday night, Feb. 15 at the Pilgrim Congregational Church. The ceremony will be performed at 8:30 o'clock.

Miss Gladys McRee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry McRee of Warson road, will leave next week for Miami Beach, Fla., where she will visit Miss Jane Johnson at the winter home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Johnson. Late next month, Miss Johnson will entertain Miss Mary Pettus, 33 Westmoreland place, and Miss Judith Gamble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence O. Gamble, 5327 Waterman avenue.

Miss Antoinette Schlafly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Schlafly, 4474 Westminster place, is expected home the end of the week from the East where she attended the weddings of two of her cousins. Miss Antoinette Vilsack of Pittsburgh, Pa., was married Jan. 6, and Miss Sue Mulcahy of New York, who visited here last year, became a bride Jan. 11. After participating in the bridal festivities in New York, Miss Schlafly returned to Pittsburgh and is now there with her grandmother, Mrs. E. J. Frauenheim.

Miss Anne Becker, daughter of Judge and Mrs. William Dee Becker, 7374 Delmar boulevard, is entertaining Miss Kitty Hegeler of Danville, Ill., who arrived late Saturday and will be here another two weeks. Sunday Miss Becker entertained a group of friends at a buffet supper in her honor, and has invited another group to a similar party Friday evening. Miss Ruth Forcier gave an evening party for the visitor Monday night at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Forcier, 6342 Pershing avenue, and last night Charles Lane was host at dinner for her.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cooper Whiteside, 16 Hortense place, have been invited to visit Mrs. Jackson Johnson at her home in Daytona Beach, Fla., for a fortnight. They plan to leave the middle of February. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Morton Banister, 4905 Argyle place, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Whiteside, who have been on a cruise through the Panama Canal since early this month, landed Saturday in California. They spent two days with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Prince Casey (the former Miss Marie Clarkson of St. Louis) in Los Angeles, and are now in Phoenix, Ariz. They will be guests at the Westward Ho Hotel for two or three weeks.

Informal entertainment has been given in honor of Mrs. Geraldine Lefrevre of New Orleans, who is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Charles Fletcher Sparks, 6320 Wydown boulevard. Mrs. W. M. Byrne entertained a few friends at tea for her Monday at her home, 4646 Pershing avenue, and Mrs. Harry Stegall will give a small luncheon Tuesday at the Park Plaza.

Mrs. Lefrevre will motor south with Mrs. Sparks, Feb. 6, when she goes to Palm Beach, Fla., to the Sparks winter home.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Reynolds Parkhurst, who have been living at 7825 Lafon avenue, University City, are moving to New York to make their home. Mr. Parkhurst is already in the East and Mrs. Parkhurst and the two children are temporarily with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar L. Biebinger, 5251 Westminster place. Mrs. Parkhurst with the children with join Mr. Parkhurst late this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Biebinger have made tentative plans for a holiday in California next month.

Mrs. C. M. Donovan of Kansas City is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Roger Hall, 7553 Byron place, for two weeks.

G. O. P. ORGANIZATION MEETINGS IN ST. LOUIS

First of Gatherings in Three Congressional Districts Will Be Held Tonight.

Republican meetings to start organization for the State and presidential campaign will be held in the three local congressional districts tonight, tomorrow night and Friday night, under auspices of the Republican State Committee.

Tonight's gathering, for the Thirteenth District, will be at 8 o'clock at North St. Louis Turner Hall, Twentieth and Salisbury streets. The principal speaker will be Mrs. George B. Simmons of Marshall, Mo., writer and wife of a farmer, who has attacked the Agricultural Adjustment Act and other aspects of the New Deal. Cyrus Crane Willmore, president of the Real Estate Exchange, will preside. Other speakers will include Arthur M. Curtis of Springfield, Republican national committeeman for Missouri; Grover W. Dalton of Poplar Bluff, chairman of the Republican State Committee, and Mrs. M. R. Remley of Orrick, vice-chairman.

Former United States Senator Otis F. Glenn of Illinois will address the Twelfth District meeting at Tower Grove Turner Hall, Grand boulevard and Juniata street, tomorrow night.

Congressman Dewey Short of Galena, only Missouri Republican in Congress, will speak before the Eleventh District session Friday night at the 138th Infantry Armory, Grand boulevard and Market street. Curtis, Dalton and Mrs. Remley also will speak at the meetings in the Twelfth and Eleventh districts.

Similar gatherings have been held in 10 other districts.

3 PAINTINGS ON EXHIBITION BOUGHT BY ART MUSEUM

"Vermont Landscape," "Deep Water" and "Sulphurous Evening" Are Ones Purchased.

Three of the paintings in the current exhibition of American art at City Art Museum have been purchased by the museum through the Eliza McMillan Fund, the board of control announced today.

The pictures will remain with others in the American exhibition in Gallery 32 until the close of the show Feb. 16. The cost was about $3000.

LLOYD GEORGE TELLS OF STERN SIMPLICITY OF KING'S FUNERAL

of the military and naval ceremonial uniforms of the countries of the world whose "cohorts were gleaming in purple and gold."

These were only glimpses, but they relieved and lit up the general dimness.

During the last 500 years there have been buried in this famous chapel Kings whose goodness has always been and will always remain a subject of historical controversy.

Forever Firmly Established.

There will be no controversy about the monarch whose coffin I saw lowered into the vault today. His place as an essentially good King will forever be firmly established in the history of this country.

When I heard the Archbishop of Canterbury utter that great phrase, "resting from his labors," I remembered from my experience what a hard worker the King had been.

I have heard of ministers, even men in very high office, who hardly ever read their dispatches or the memoranda circulated amongst them on important issues, for adjudication, counsel and decision.

There was never a dispatch or document sent to the King which he did not peruse and annotate with greatest care.

As I sat in the stalls of St. George's, awaiting the delayed funeral cortege, I recalled the occasion when, as Prime Minister, I had to visit him at Buckingham Palace on some important business of state.

Surrounded by State Papers.

It was a hot and sultry summer afternoon in June. I found him in a tent in the garden, surrounded with state papers upon which he had been working, pencil in hand, ready to make notes on matters on which he required further elucidation.

After the ceremony yesterday, I met a man who had been in close touch with the King for years and had seen a good deal of him during the last few days of his life.

He told me the King's health had been failing for some time but that he worked up to the last three days before his death, and only gave in when he had spent the last ounce of his physical strength on his daily tasks.

When the Archbishop read those words about "resting from his labors," they had a real meaning in the case of George V.

But the most impressive thing to me in the ceremony was to recall memories I had of the last occasion when I was present at a similar ceremony—the burial of Edward VII.

There were contrasts between the two occasions which were startling and even sinister.

When the Kaiser Attended.

The then Kaiser of Germany was present as one of the chief mourners. He was head of the greatest army in the world and the second most powerful navy.

We all knew when we looked at him that, at a word of command from those lips—which had a touch of arrogance—millions of the best-trained and best-equipped warriors on this globe would spring to arms.

He is now a fugitive from the land where he was then the all-highest—not only in name but in real might.

The German Minister (Foreign Minister von Neurath) who yesterday walked up the aisle of St. George's in the funeral procession was there representing a man who was once a house painter, and who now sits in the chair of the Hohenzollerns and wields more absolute and irresistible authority than the Kaiser ever did in his most glorious days of power.

There were then five ancient and great empires represented at King Edward VII's funeral—Russia, Austria, Germany, China and Turkey. And there were two still mare ancient kingdoms, Spain and Portugal.

Glittering Uniforms Gone.

Today these countries are all republics. Their Ministers, Ambassadors and Generals walked up the aisle at King George's funeral, but the glittering uniforms of 1910 had disappeared, and the representatives of those countries were clad in simple dress.

The successor to the Czar of the Russia's (Joseph Stallin) is a cobbler's son, and the man (Foreign Minister Litvinoff) who appeared at yesterday's ceremony in his behalf was once a printer.

There was another memory of King Edward's funeral that came to my mind. Before my eyes I could see the figure of the Grand Duke Ferdinand, heir to the Austrian throne. Four years after that ceremony he was assassinated and the pistol shot which was fired at him was the signal for the unleashing of the bloodhounds of war in three continents.

One last reminiscence of King Edward's funeral I should like to mention. Among those who attended was Prince Rupprecht, heir to the throne of Bavaria. Incidentally, he is a lineal descendant of the Stuart Kings and is still hailed by the few Jacobites who remain as the legitimate King of Britain.

World Seems to Have Changed.

Who would have thought, then, that in a few years he would be at the head of a vast army of 1,000,000 men, attacking the armies of Britain in the greatest battle ever fought between warring nations? His kingdom also has disappeared.

The world seems to have changed since those days. One wondered whether it was a real change or whether it was only a new side to the same old world.

There is not yet a new earth in essentials. There is certainly not a new heaven. One is fearful that there may be awaiting us a new hell.

The underground fires have been stoked throughout the world and the flames have already broken through the crust in Northern Africa.

COLDS ARE NOW REACHING OUT FOR VICTIMS!

Be Wise—Be Careful—Adopt This Simple Precautionary Measure!

Colds are increasing. In some sections Influenza is breaking out. Don't be alarmed, but don't be careless.

A cold is much easier avoided than cured! Do the sensible thing and adopt the ounce of prevention policy. Stay out of crowds as much as you can. Avoid coughers and sneezers. Dress warmly, keep your feet dry and sleep in a well-ventilated room.

Every morning and night take one or two Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine tablets. This will keep the bowels open and combat infection.

Millions know Bromo Quinine as an excellent cold treatment, but not enough know it as an equally excellent preventive. Learn its efficacy and keep a package handy all winter long as your "safety first" measure.

If you have already caught cold there is nothing better you can take than Bromo Quinine. It doesn't merely suppress the cold—it helps drive it out of the system. At the same time, it tones the system and helps fortify against further attack.

For more than forty years, Bromo Quinine has been the largest selling cold tablet in the world. For more than forty years it has been the standby of thousands in treating a cold.

Ask for it by the full name and look for the initials L B Q stamped on every tablet. The cost is small, but the protection is large.

Sovereignty of states' rights; the least governed are the best governed; local self-government. The South is going to remain true to these fundamentals of democracy."

Talmadge charged Cabinet officers at Washington had tried to "intimidate governors and legislatures, to pass their New Deal legislation in order to centralize Government in Washington."

He said he was sad to say that some Governors had "goose-stepped" in the line and saddled on their states and counties taxes that "it will take a century to pay, giving over the freedom and sovereignty of their states to boards and bureaucrats in Washington."

Retort to Ickes.

He said that when he refused to "goose-step" he was labeled by a member of the Cabinet (Secretry of the Interior Iickes) as "his chain gang excellency, whose word is no good."

He said that he hoped Ickes was listening to his speech because he wanted to tell him: "The people of the United States are going to answer in November of this year by driving him and all of his cohorts from Washington, and never allow them to return."

Talmadge called on the Democratic party to rewrite the platform of 1932, reduce taxes, stop nine-tenths of the Federal activities, stop all competition of the Government with private industry, reduce expenses of the Federal Government by "tearing down seven-eighths of the building in Washington," and pay up the national debt.

He said the party should nominate men of the old platform "whose word is so good that the best test of it is to have the new dealers call him a liar. Then America will know that his word is good."

The main floor of the auditorium was almost filled when Chairman Howell rapped for order. There were only a few persons in the gallery. The auditorium seats about 4000 persons.

Anti-Lynching Law Assailed.

Thomas Dixon of North Carolina, author of the "Clansman," denounced the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. He said "we would not lower ourselves" to reply to a telegram which was sent by this organization last night to Talmadge and Kirby asking that the meeting today declare its attitude on lynching and other matters. Dixon denounced the proposed Federal anti-lynching law as a movement to place "bayonets at our breasts."

His remarks brought cheers and laughter.

J. H. Kirby, Texas, Denounces Government of Bureaucracy.

John Henry Kirby, wealthy Texas lumberman and an opponent of the New Deal, told the meeting that if "Franklin D. Roosevelt is a Democrat, Sherman's march to the sea was a Yankee retreat."

"I am an old-fashioned man," the white-haired Texan said, "who believes in the political institutions established by the fathers and I make no apology for opposing with all my heart and soul one unfaithful to them."

Kirby, with Gov. Talmadge, called the meeting here of "Constitutional Democrats." Seventeen Southern and border states were invited.

"I need not praise the intelligence, the patriotism, nor the fighting spirit of Gov. Talmadge," Kirby said. "He is a plumed knight on an errand for the republic who refuses to bend his knee to dictatorship or barter the sovereign rights of his State for Federal gold.

"Franklin D. Roosevelt has betrayed those principles promulgated by Thomas Jefferson and that is why I am standing here today protesting his renomination as our standard bearer. What we want Mr. Roosevelt and his crowd to do is to return the control of state and individual affairs to where the Constitution placed them.

"I don't know what you think of it but a policy that takes a processing tax out of a widow's wallet to pay a fat hog raiser to practice birth control on his herd, is unthinkable. The thing President Roosevelt is providing for us is some fashion of slavish, contemptible, all-oppressing bureaucracy. The security it may give will be no better than that found behind the walls of the Atlanta penitentiary.

"No real Democrat can or will indorse Mr. Roosevelt. His planned economy has not helped to restore prosperity, but though it had, I would still oppose him and fight the things he is doing to my country because I love liberty. I had rather die in the poorhouse, a free, independent American under the superb government, the patriotic government created for us than to have all the favors that the Soviet Union of Russia might shower upon me.

"Our party has been betrayed not only by the chief executive but by all Southerners who support him in his unconstitutional pursuits. Local self government is merely sleeping under the hypnotic influence of a showman but his smile has lost its charm; his arrows of sarcasm fall at the feet of his foes. He will not again be elected President of the United States."

CASEYVILLE GROCER, 68, DIES AFTER TRYING TO CRANK AUTO

Coroner's Verdict of Death From Dilation of Heart in Case of Herman Buck.

A few minutes after Herman Buck, 68-year-old retired grocer of Caseyville Township, became exhausted trying to crank his automobile yesterday, he returned to his house, remarked to his wife he was "tired," and fell dead. A Coroner's jury at East St. Louis today returned a verdict of death due to dilation of the heart, resulting from overexertion.

Mr. Buck, who resided on U. S. Highway 50 near East St. Louis, before his retirement six years ago, was in the grocery business at 1304 St. Clair avenue for 40 years. The store is now operated by a son, Fred J. Buck. Also surviving are another son, Dr. Walter L. Buck, East St. Louis dentist, and a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Powell.

The funeral will be at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon from Immanuel Evangelical Church, East St. Louis, to St. Clair Memorial Park Cemetery.

WOMAN GIVES HOME FOR ART

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 29.—Mrs. Russell A. Alger has offered to give her luxurious residence fronting Lake St. Clair here to the city as a branch museum to be operated by the Detroit Institute of Arts. The City Council voted to accept the offer, which was announced through Edsel Ford, a member of the city's Art Commission.

The building, which is surrounded by about 10 acres of park land, is considered an excellent example of the Italian Renaissance style of architecture. "This gift is of a value not less than $1,000,000," Ford said.

$150 Fine in Careless Driving Case.

Harry Kayman, clothing company forman, 4743 McMillan avenue, was fined $150 by Police Judge Vest today on charges of careless driving and destruction of city property. His automobile knocked another into a lamp post in a collision at Enright and Aubert avenues Christmas day. He appealed.

EX-KAISER'S FORMER BROTHER-IN-LAW DIES

Alexander Zoubkoff, Russian Commoner, Husband of Late Princess Victoria.

By the Associated Press.

LUXEMBOURG, Jan. 29.—Alexander Zoubkoff, Russian commoner, who became a brother-in-law of former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany when he married the late Princess Victoria of Shaumburg-Lippe in 1928, died yesterday. He was 35 years old.

He had worked as a dancer, acrobat, dishwasher, parachute jumper and sandwich man in local fairs.

He had been in Luxembourg since soon after he fled from Germany, asserting he had been threatened with death by monarchists or incarceration in an asylum. He went to France and was promptly expelled, and met the same fate in Belgium.

The Grand Duchess of Luxembourg allowed him to settle here on condition that he live a quiet life and abstain from referring in public to his late wife or to the German imperial family.

Zoubkoff, however, was never reticent about talking of his past and found a variety of employment. He was freely advertised as a jobless Prince, a relative of the former German Emperor and a victim of monarchist plots.

Recently he said his greatest sorrow was his inability to get a job at a big salary in the movies.

"But what can I do?" he asked. "I am barred from most countries just because I fled from Soviet Russia and married the Kaiser's sister, who had fallen in love with me. After all, I am not a criminal, but a victim."

Zoubkoff was rebuked by friends of the former Kaiser when he took a position several years ago and allowed his employer to advertise, "Here you are attended by the Kaiser's brother-in-law."

KNOX SAYS ROOSEVELT HAS SPLIT DEMOCRATS

Comments at Cleveland That Robinson's Speech Shows Administration Is On Defensive.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 29.—Col. Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, mentioned as a possible Republican candidate for the presidency, said today a "cataclysmic division" exists in the Democratic party, which he predicted "will be fatal to the Democratic success in November." Knox is to address the thirty-third annual McKinley day banquet of the Tippecanoe Club of Cleveland tonight.

Knox said Senator Robinson's reply last night to Alfred E. Smith "is striking in that in the first passage of arms the present administration is utterly on the defensive and reduced to a pitiful, weak position, trying to prove that Al Smith was inconsistent and wrong rather than that the Roosevelt administration was right in what it has done."

"The truth is, the Roosevelt policies have divided his party into two parts—the conservatives and the radicals," the publisher asserted. "Roosevelt has retained his control of the radical element, but has completely lost the conservative element."

113 PERSONS INDICTED ON LIQUOR CHARGES

Federal Grand Jury in Judge Davis' Court Names 21 Women.

Indictments charging 113 persons, including 21 women, with violations of the revenue laws against the sale, possession and transportation of illicit liquor, were among 117 true bills returned before United States District Judge Charles B. Davis yesterday by the Federal grand jury.

The indictments covered offenses alleged to have been committed in the northeastern and southeastern divisions of the district, as well as the central. Cases involving the two former divisions will be assigned later to Hannibal and Cape Girardeau for trial.

Included in the true bills were four charging six persons with violations of the Harrison anti-narcotic act; four charging six persons with forging Government obligations; four charging seven persons with counterfeiting; three charging six with interstate transportation of stolen automobiles, and nine charging 11 persons with thefts from the mails.

Simon Siegel, described in an indictment as a partner in the Lerner Fruit & Produce Co., was charged with making false claims on three railroads, the Southern Pacific, Missouri Pacific and Santa Fe, for damage alleged to have been incurred in shipments of lettuce from New Mexico and California. The indictments charged that he claimed damages totaling $272, while actual damage was $50. The charge alleges violation of the Railroad Transportation Act. The maximum penalty for violation is a $5000 fine and two years in prison.

Irving Nom and Fay Lew, Chinese, and Raymond W. White were charged with violation of the Mann act by transporting a woman from St. Louis to New York for immoral purposes last July. George Chambers and Albert Allen were charged with violation of the act in bringing a woman from Malvern, Ark., to St. Louis, and Jay H. Presslar, Dorothy Daingerfield and Aleene C. Chapman were charged with having brought a woman from Springfield to St. Louis in a similar violation.

Louis Lesinski, former Clayton High School student, was charged with sending an extortion letter, demanding $500, to E. W. Williams of the Country Club Grounds last Dec. 3. As has been told, the youth was arrested at the time, and admitted demanding the money, threatening harm to Williams' children if he refused to pay.

Leo J. Quinn, former assistant cashier of Security National Bank, was charged in an indictment of 12 counts with abstraction of money from savings accounts, misappropriation, and making false entries. Quinn, who is 43 years old and lives in Kirkwood with his wife and three children, has been held under bond since last October charged with embezzlement of $9100. United States Attorney Harry C. Blanton said to a Post-Dispatched reporter yesterday that Department of Justice operatives found his actual shortage was about $18,000. At the time of his arrest his lawyer said he would plead guilty. The bank was protected against loss by a surety bond.

WARRANTS ISSUED FOR MAN AND NURSE IN STORE ROBBERY

James J. Malone and Miss Ruth M. Craig, 31, Charged With Burglary and Larceny.

Warrants charging burglary and larceny were issued by Assistant Circuit Attorney David J. Murphy today against James J. Malone and Miss Ruth M. Craig, 31-year-old practical nurse, in connection with the burglary of a grocery at 332 North Vandeventer avenue last Wednesday.

They were arrested Monday at the home of Miss Craig's parents at Safe, Mo., after detectives learned that a cash register stolen from the store had been pawned by a man answering Malone's description. After a button picked up in the store was found to match others on Miss Craig's fur coat, Malone admitted breaking into the place and taking the register and quantities of provisions.

Malone, a chauffeur, has served a workhouse term for forgery. Miss Craig was paroled last month after receiving concurrent one-year terms for manslaughter in connection with two deaths from illegal operations. She has denied having any part in the grocery burglary.

MOTORMAN SERIOUSLY HURT

Louis E. Cooseman Crushed Between Street Car and Truck.

Louis E. Cooseman, a street car motorman, was crushed between a street car and a truck stalled in the 500 block of Pine street yesterday as he was working to get the truck off the tracks. He was taken to St. John's Hospital, suffering from internal injuries and broken ribs.

Cooseman, 49 years old, adjusted a wooden pole so that a street car could push the truck, but the pole slipped when the car started. He lives at 4165 West Fillmore street.

Labatt Kidnaping Indictment.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 29. — The grand jury today indicted Russell Knowles of Detroit on charges of kidnaping, armed robbery and attempted extortion, in connection with the kidnaping of John S. Labatt, wealthy brewer. Knowles was the fifth suspect arrested. He was captured in Illinois.

ACTION DEFERRED IN ANN HEWITT CASE

District Attorney's Office, Ready to Issue Warrants, Runs Into Technicality.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Jan. 29.—The District Attorney's office is studying an amended section of the penal code to determine if criminal charges may be placed against defendants in Miss Ann Cooper Hewitt's $500,000 sterilization suit.

I. M. Golden, a defense attorney, in Miss Hewitt's civil suit, said a recent amendment to the law made it impossible to issue warrants without signed complaints.

The proceedings involved—testimony before the committing Magistrate, who decides if warrants are justified—seldom has been used.

It was resorted to after Miss Hewitt, 21 years old, refused to sign a complaint on advice of her attorney, Russell P. Tyler, and District Attorney Matthew Brady declined to order a grand jury inquiry.

In her damage suit, Miss Hewitt charged her mother, wealthy Mrs. Maryon McCarter, conspired with Drs. Tilton E. Tillman and Samuel Boyd to deprive her of motherhood. Object of the alleged conspiracy, she said, was to enhance the mother's benefits from a large trust fund left by Miss Hewitt's father, the late Peter Cooper Hewitt. Mrs. McCarter's benefits from the trust fund would increase if her daughter died childless, the suit alleged.

Doctor's Affadavit.

Municipal Judge Sylvain J. Lazarus received an affidavit yesterday from Dr. Tillman stating he examined Miss Hewitt before the sterilization operation and found her "feeble minded, continuously unreliable, easily influenced, untruthful and dangerously oversexed."

Miss Hewitt and her attorney, Russell P. Tyler, were in court, but took no part in the proceedings and did not comment.

Last week Miss Hewitt told her story to Judge Lazarus under oath and he complimented her on her clarity in testifying.

Affidavits by Dr. Boyd and Mrs. Harriet Easton, Miss Hewitt's aunt, also were filed, setting forth their side of the story. The Court said he had found nothing in them to change his opinion the case warranted criminal action.

Dr. Tillman said he advised the sterilization operation be performed along with an appendectomy. He described the examination he performed on Miss Hewitt in the presence of Mrs. Easton, which led to his conclusion she had appendicitis.

This was corroborated by Mrs. Easton. Dr. Boyd described the operation, and said he was furnished with a written report of the girl's mentality by Mrs. Mary B. Scally, psychiatrist, who said her tests classified her as a high-grade moron."

Miss Hewitt said she was deprived on an education by her mother in explaining the low grade in the tests, and that she did not understand them at the time.

The HOME Inventory May Reveal Hidden Cash

Home inventories may not come with the annual or semi-annual regularity of business stock-taking, but when made they often disclose articles which can and should be sold. New purchases and gifts of new home appliances cause used but useful articles to be set aside. Such articles no longer needed in one home may become very serviceable to some other family and can be sold for cash. Sales of this kind are being made quickly and economically through the

ENGINEER TELLS HOW TO PREVENT SILICOSIS

Wet Drills and Safety Devices Needed, He Says at Tunnel Hearing.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. — William P. Yant, supervising engineer for the Bureau of Mines at Pittsburgh, told a House Labor Subcommittee today that silicosis could be prevented by the use of wet drills and safety equipment in tunneling and mining operations. Yant recommended adequate ventilation systems in such projects and the elimination of dust.

Testifying on the resolution of Representative Marcantonio (Rep.), New York, asking for a Federal inquiry into working conditions at the Hawk's Nest tunnel in Southern West Virginia, Yant said methods of preventing silicosis were known for many years before drilling of the tube started in 1930.

Marcantonio contends hundreds of men died of silicosis and hundreds are dying of the disease contracted by breathing dust from silica rock while boring the tunnel in 1930 and 1931. He also contends the tunnel builder, Rinehart & Dennis Co. of Charlottesville, Va., did not provide workers with safety equipment and used dry drills which produced the dust.

Yant, asserting silicosis had become widespread in mining operations in many sections of the country including Butte (Mont.) and Joplin (Mo.) districts, said the bureau was making an educational campaign to prevent silicosis and urge use of safety devices.

He added that, on the basis of testimony that dust was so thick in the Hawk's Nest tunnel that workmen could not distinguish objects 10 feet away, such a "very high concentration of dust" was certain to expose men to the dangers of silicosis.

Yant urged careful administration of state laws governing compensation for silicosis victims, saying many workers did not know they had contracted the disease until years after they had been exposed to the silica dust.

He said the Mines Bureau was seeking better methods of detecting dust conditions, preventing and controlling dust and ventilation.

The committee adjourned until next Tuesday.

O'FALLON, ILL., COUNCIL APPOINTS ACTING MAYOR

The City Council of O'Fallon, Ill., last Sunday appointed an Acting Mayor to replace Mayor John W. Budina following a dispute over gambling raids there, it was disclosed yesterday when Budina appeared in Belleville before a St. Clair County grand jury, which is investigating gambling conditions in the county.

The controversy began, it was learned, after Budina and Chief of Police Ray McCommons raided five taverns in O'Fallon on Friday and confiscated a marble machine. Two men, who said they were maintenance men for the machines, were arrested.

Following the raids Budina revoked the licenses of two of the tavern proprietors. The City Council, charging Budina had shown partiality, requested him to appear at a special meeting Sunday. When the Mayor failed to appear, the Council elected Ridge Smith, a member, Acting Mayor, and Smith then reinstated the tavern proprietors' licenses. O'Fallon is about seven miles north of Belleville.

Under Illinois statutes, Budina is still Mayor of the town. He appeared before the grand jury again today.

Bar Proprietor Says Liquor in Adjoining Room Does Not Belong to Him.

Federal agents raided a tavern at 115 North Third street, East St. Louis, yesterday and confiscated 10 gallons of untaxed whisky, which they found in a small room adjoining the barroom. The tavern is across the street from the City Hall.

The proprietor, who said he was William Schmidt, residing above the establishment, said the liquor did not belong to him. The agents, headed by F. V. Aberson, removed fixtures and stock valued at $1000 and placed them in storage. Aberson said a warrant charging possession of untaxed liquor would be sought.

EX-EDITOR CHARGED WITH LIBELING ZION CITY MAYOR

Accused Man, However, Says Typographical Error Led to Wrong Inference.

By the Associated Press.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Jan. 29.—Former Editor Edwin Baird of the magazine, Real America, was in the Lake County jail today on a criminal libel charge preferred by Mayor William H. Edwards of the nearby religious community of Zion City.

The warrant was based on an article published in the July, 1935, issue, entitled "Voila Voliva," as a result of which Mayor Edwards already had filed a $50,000 damage action.

Baird said he would retaliate with a false arrest suit against Mayor Edwards.

The article, allegedly written by Miss Lucille Hecht, formerly of Zion City, concerned Wilbur Glenn Voliva, leader of the community, and other Zion City residents, Edwards said. Baird said the inference to which Mayor Edwards objected was due to a typographical error. He said the error incorrectly joined two sentences, one referring to Edwards and the other to the alleged amorous escapades of another man, who was not named, and that later the magazine printed a correction.

FOUR WOMEN ON JURY HEARING LIGGETT MURDER TESTIMONY

Prosecution Charges Isadore Blumenfeld Fired Machine-gun That Killed Publisher.

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 29.—In its opening statement, the prosecution charged today that Isadore (Kid Cann) Blumenfeld, accused of the murder of Walter Liggett, was the man with a machine-gun, who killed the weekly newspaper publisher last Dec. 9. Assistant State's Attorney Pike admitted the identity of the driver of the killers' automobile was not known.

The first witness, Dr. Gilbert Sheashore, Hennepin County Coroner, described the scene in the alley adjacent to Liggett's apartment house when he arrived there after the killing. He said a post mortem examination disclosed five gunshot wounds.

Selection of the jury was completed yesterday after seven days devoted to examination of 103 talesmen. Four of those chosen were women, all housewives.

The defense will call 40 alibi witnesses, Blumenfeld's counsel said.

Plant at Pekin, Ill., Prepares to Resume Operations Despite Union Strike.

By the Associated Press.

PEKIN, Ill., Jan. 29.—A force of more than 20 Sheriff's deputies, policemen and plant guards, using tear gas, routed 75 strike pickets from their encampment near the American Distilling Co. plant today. The company made preparations to resume operations, halted since Jan. 22.

The attack followed a half hour conference with the union men, who refused to leave. No casualties were reported.

In the party which routed the pickets were Sheriff Ralph Goar and eight deputies, Police Chief Harry Donahue, six of his officers and eight plant guards.

Strike leaders seek observance of seniority rights and other recognition.

STENCH BOMBS THROWN INTO 9 E. ST. LOUIS KROGER STORES

Plate glass windows in the fronts of nine East St. Louis Kroger stores were broken last night when stench bombs were thrown into the establishments, located in various parts of the city.

While officers of the company withheld comment, East St. Louis police expressed the view that the vandalism was an outgrowth of the strike of the firm's warehouse employes in St. Louis, which has been in progress for several months.

LEGION AIDS BOY SCOUT DRIVE

Chairman of Commanders Conference Heads Division.

Barak T. Mattingly, chairman of the Commanders' Conference of the American Legion in St. Louis, has been appointed chairman of a special Legion division in the local drive to raise $92,495 for Boy Scout activities during 1936. The drive will start Feb. 17.

The Commanders' Conference recently adopted a resolution pledging its support to the campaign and expressing the thanks of the conference for the aid given by the scouts during the national convention of the Legion here last September.

'PRE-SCHOOL CHILD' COURSE

Former Relief Unit Head to Teach at Washington U.

Miss Christine Glass, former director of nursery school education for the Federal Emergency Relief Administration in Missouri, has been appointed to teach the Wednesday evening classes on "The Pre-School Child" at University College, evening and extension division of Washington University.

Registration for evening school classes will continue through Saturday and classes will begin Monday.

Five-Time Ex-Convict Fined $25.

Irb Hollingsworth, five-time former convict, was fined $25 by Police Judge Vest today on a plea of guilty of operating an automobile without a driver's license. While driving at Tenth and Madison streets Jan. 18, he was picked up by detectives for questioning. He gave his address as 2749 Keokuk street. The fine was the minimum.

MOVE TO BAR GREEN FROM A. F. L. MEETING

Resolution to Recall Him as Delegate Before United Mine Workers' Convention.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—A resolution to recall William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, as a delegate of the United Mine Workers to the Federation convention, is before the mine union meeting. It was offered by the Fayette (Pa.) local which cited Green's position in the fight between craft and industrial unionists.

It was said that if Green loses his status as delegate he cannot be re-elected president, but Federation officials denied there was anything in the A. F. of L. constitution requiring that to be eligible for the presidency a man must be a convention delegate.

Although he insists he is an industrial unionist at heart, Green recently has sided with the craft faction in its fight against John L. Lewis, president of the miners and leader of those who argue that mass production workers should be organized by industries rather than by trades. At the last Federation convention, Lewis' faction was defeated by a two-to-one vote.

The Resolutions Committee will pass on 3000 proposals, touching on nearly every phase of the miners' political and economic interests. Among the things they call for are: Abolition of the Supreme Court, formation of a labor party, increased wages and shorter hours, freeing Tom Mooney, freeing the Negroes in the Scottsboro case, autonomy for all "provisional" districts, a dollar contribution from every miner for President Roosevelt's campaign fund, boycotting the Olympic Games, punitive moves against Hitler and Mussolini, placing the Ford Motor Co. on an "unfair" list for alleged unfair labor practices, abolition of company score scrip, an increase in the WPA wage scale, greater benefits in the social security program, indorsement of the Townsend and Lundeen pension plans, improved sanitary plumbing in company houses and improved workmen's compensation laws.

A continued fight for Federal regulation of the soft coal industry if the Supreme Court knocks out the Guffey Act was predicted in an address to the miners today by Senator Guffey (Dem.), Pennsylvania, author of the coal-control measure.

Guffey said: "Should the Court knock out this act which contains such great humanitarian principles in behalf of labor, I pledge myself to a continuation of the efforts of your leader and I stand ready to sponsor further legislation which may accomplish the results which they and I so greatly desire."

DENIED CHILDREN'S CUSTODY ON GROUND SHE IS COMMUNIST

New Jersey Mother Loses Claim; Both She and Husband Had Sued for Divorce.

By the Associated Press.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 29.—A mother was denied custody of her two children today lest she instill Communistic ideas in them. Advisory Master Robert D. Grossman decided Warren P. Eaton of Bloomfield, should have the children, Mabel, 10 years old, and Warren Jr., 5, because he "desires them to be religiously trained . . . and brought up as Americans."

Mrs. Mabel Eaton of Montclair, the children's mother, had permitted herself, Grossman said, "to become thoroughly imbued with Communistic, atheistic and I. W. W. doctrines."

The decision was reached in a suit in which each parent sought divorce on the ground of cruelty. Grossman said Eaton was entitled to a divorce.

Commissioner and Business Bureau Receive Many Complaints of Short Weight.

Careful examination by coal purchasers of the official city weight ticket, green in color, was urged today by L. G. Waldman, Commissioner of Weights and Measures, who said he and the Better Business Bureau recently had received many complaints of short weight and substitution of inferior grades of coal.

Before accepting coal, he said, the purchaser should determine whether the ticket accurately describes the kind of coal ordered and whether there have been alterations or erasures on the ticket. Consumers were requested to report suspected law violations.

ROBBED OF $152 AND JACKET

East St. Louisan on Way to Pay Wife's Funeral Bill.

William Rekolt, automobile mechanic, 1474 Gaty avenue, East St. Louis, was held up last night at an alley near Twelfth and State streets, East St. Louis, by two men, one armed with a revolver, who took $152 and a leather jacket he was wearing.

He told police he was on his way to an undertaking establishment to pay the bill for the funeral of his wife.

Sues to Divorce Mack Gordon.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 29.—Rose Gittler, former actress, sued Mack Gordon, movie song writer, for divorce, $5000 a month alimony and $10,000 attorneys' fees yesterday. His real name is Morris Gittler. She charged he had been frequently in company of another woman on week-end trips.

H. W. RUGE, 101, YEARS OLD DIES IN ST. CHARLES COUNTY

He Was Last Member of His G. A. R. Post and in His Youth Knew Abraham Lincoln.

Henry William Ruge, 101 years old, died yesterday of infirmities of age at the home of his daughter, Mrs. William Schaaf, at Augusta, St. Charles County. He was the last surviving member of Capt. Dues Camp, Grand Army of the Republic, and was formerly mail carrier and Justice of the Peace in Augusta. He was also County Assessor of Warren County for 16 years.

He was born May 15, 1834, in Odensee, Denmark, and came to the United States with his parents when he was 4 years old, arriving in St. Louis from New Orleans by steamboat. He lived in St. Louis several years before moving to Washington, Mo. While still a young man, his family moved to a town in Illinois—now Lincoln, Ill.—where he was acquainted with Abraham Lincoln during the early 1850's.

Mr. Ruge returned to St. Louis in 1861 and joined a company of Missouri infantry and served during the Civil War as a Sergeant. His left arm was shattered by a bullet in a battle in 1863, resulting in a permanent injury. On his discharge from the army he moved to Holstein, Warren County, where he lived about 25 years before making his home at Augusta.

On his one hundredth birthday, Mr. Ruge received congratulations from the King of Denmark. He was the father of seven children, only two of whom are living. In addition to his daughter, he is survived by a son, Theodore Ruge of Los Angeles, Cal. A military funeral service will be held Friday at 2 p. m. at the residence in Augusta. He will be buried in a cemetery there.

WOMAN GETS ONE TO 14 YEARS FOR WOUNDING SISTER WITH AX

Mount Vernon (Ill.) Defendant Tells Judge She Was in "Daze" When She Struck Girl.

By the Associated Press.

MOUNT VERNON, Ill., Jan. 29.—Mrs. Ruth Laird, 34 years old, was sentenced to one to 14 years in the women's reformatory at Dwight by Circuit Judge W. Joe Hill today for wounding her sister, Margaret Cummins, 17, with an ax. Mrs. Laird, a widow, had pleaded guilty of assault with intent to murder.

A physician, Dr. S. A. Thompson, told the Court the girl, still in a hospital, "in all probability will recover." She suffered a fractured skull.

Mrs. Laird repeated in court today that she was in a "daze" at the time and could not remember details of the assault Dec. 28. She said she lost control of herself when her sister refused to accompany her to church and "made fun of me because I was going, saying that I wasn't a Christian. I don't remember hitting her, but I do remember having the ax in my hand."

'SITDOWN' AT FIRESTONE PLANT

Union Men Idle at Machines in Protest Against Suspension.

By the Associated Press.

AKRON, Jan. 29.—Production at the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. slowed up today as several hundred union tire builders sat idle at their machines in what they said was a protest against the suspension of a union committeeman.

"The "sitdown" started at noon yesterday when union workers in the truck and bus tire department refused to operate their machines. Those on the 6 p. m. shift followed suit and were joined at midnight by the third shift union men. Men from all three shifts were still in the plant today but not working. The protest resulted, union leaders said, from the suspension of Clayton Dicks for engaging in a fist fight with a non-union worker during a quarrel over wages.

WOMAN SEVERELY BURNED

Mrs. Helen Soldin Steps on Matches Which Ignite Her Clothes.

Mrs. Helen Soldin, 38 years old, 4218 Delmar boulevard, knocked a box of matches from a cupboard shelf last night, and when she stepped on the matches in getting down from a chair, they ignited, setting fire to her dress.

She extinguished the flames by rolling in bed and was taken to City Hospital for treatment of severe burns on her arms and legs.

13,917 CALLS for Women and Girls Wanted

During the Year 1935

Persons in need of women or girls in homes or offices, as salesladies and for other lines of work open to girls and women, placed 13,917 advertisements in the Post-Dispatch Help Wanted Columns last year.

This was a gain over 1934 of 1,540 advertisements of this kind, affording that many more opportunities of employment for Post-Dispatch readers.

For years employers have been placing their Help Wanted advertisements in the Post-Dispatch for quick and economical results, because of the responsive want ad reader-interest this newspaper has enjoyed.

WEATHER AFFECTS STEEL INDUSTRY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29. — "Severe weather has generally retarded the movement of iron and steel, at the same time accentuating uncertainty in the automobile industry," says the Iron Age. "Used car sales, which hold the key to the production of new motor cars, have been virtually halted. But in the face of this condition, automotive orders for sheets have improved slightly, though they were uniformly for small tonnages, reflecting the current conservatism of the motor trade.

"Meanwhile, railroad demand for steel continues to improve, and greater activity is noted among machinery builders, farm equipment makers, valve and fitting shops, washing machine manufacturers, and stove plants. Steel pipe orders have risen about 5 per cent above December volume, chiefly because of heavier oil country goods demand, and construction, though at present impeded by the elements, is on an ascending scale, both in terms of steel awards and pending inquiries.

"Steel mill operations, though showing many variations as between products and producing centers, disclose surprisingly little change in the aggregate, the national ingot rate this wek being 50½ per cent, or only one-half point below the average for the three preceding weeks. Output has risen 14 points to 60 per cent in the South, but has declined one point to 36 per cent at Pittsburgh, one-half point to 52½ per cent at Chicago, five points to 30 per cent at Buffalo, two points to 60 per cent in the Valleys and two points to 70 per cent in the Wheeling district. Operations are unchanged at 40 per cent in the Philadelphia district, 66 per cent at Cleveland, 78 per cent in the Southern Ohio River area and 100 per cent at Detroit.

The sub-zero temperatures hindered movement and accessibility of scrap metal supplies at many centers and gave a firmer tone to the price structure, the magazine said.

The Iron Age composite of No. 1 heavy melting steel, however, was unchanged at $13.58 a gross ton. Composite prices for steel and pig iron were likewise unchanged.

MOTORS AND AVIATIONS IN VANGUARD OF STOCK RISE

Weather Affects Steel Market but Aggregate Output Little Changed—Contra-Seasonal Gain in Electric Power Production.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—A brisk demand for motors and aviation shares starched up the stock market list today.

Gains of fractions to around two points appeared on a broad front at the finish, with final levels around the best of the day. Numerous new highs for several years were recorded.

The list had felt numerous cross-currents during early trading. While profit-taking whittled down the can shares and some of the blue-chip industrials in morning dealings, there were brisk buying moves at times in rails, oils, farm equipments and in utilities in the low-price brackets.

A block of 15,000 shares of Commonwealth & Southern was traded at the opening at an unchanged price, and the low-priced holding company group occupied considerable attention in the morning and in the final hour.

Cotton was irregularly lower most of the day but at the close turned slightly higher. Wheat and corn, gave ground. The dollar showed moderate net losses in the foreign exchange market at mid-afternoon.

Douglas and Chrysler gained around 3 points each. Standard Oil of N. J., U. S. Steel, U. S. Pipe, Delaware & Hudson, General Motors, Case, Boeing, United Aircraft and New York Central picked up 1 to 2 points each. Others active and a bit ahead included Yellow Truck, Deere, Southern Pacific, Electric Power & Light, United Corp and Commonwealth & Southern.

The pound sterling gained ¾ of a cent in the foreign exchange market in late dealings at $5.00⅛. French francs advanced .00⅛ of a cent at 6.66½ cents. Guilders were .07 of a cent ahead at 68.59 cents. Swiss francs lifted .05 of a cent at 32.90 cents.

News of the Day.

The more optimistic of the Wall street contingent were attributing a considerable measure of the recent business hesitation to the prevalence of severe weather all over the country, which they minimized as being a passing influence.

At the same time, those who have expressed doubts on the motor group recently noted reports that the used car problem, which has been worrying manufacturers, was accentuated by the ice and snow.

The slight recession in earnings of F. W. Woolworth to $3.20 a share last year, from $3.30 in 1934, accorded sufficiently well with informed brokerage predictions as to play little part in market prices.

Economists who have noted for some time a trend toward increased capital expenditures in the heavy industries added to their list of encouraging developments the announcement that Republic Steel planned outlay of around $1,200,000 for improvements in a dozen of its plants.

Midweek Industrial Survey.

Much satisfaction was expressed with the statement of the U. S. Steel Corporation, showing its first profit for a full year since 1931.

Other earnings reports were expected to reflect the improvement in business and industry in the final 1935 quarter.

A contra-seasonal increase in electric power output for the week ended Jan. 25, was attributed partly to severe weather conditions in many parts of the country, although the industrial use of electricity was said to have shown improvement.

"Iron Age" was not too optimistic over steel mill activities, although demand of the railroads for steel, together with orders from machinery builders, farm equipment makers and other sources, was said to presage an expansion in the operating rate. At the same time weather conditions were found to have accentuated uncertainty in the automobile field.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co. today declared a dividend of 75c on a common share and the regular quarterly dividend of 87½c a preferred share, both payable Feb. 29 to stock of record Feb. 10. The company paid 50c a common share both on Aug. 30 and Nov. 30 last year.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Directors of Anaconda Wire & Cable Co., controlled by Anaconda Copper Mining Co., resumed dividends on the capital stock by declaring 25 cents a share, payable March 16 to stock of record Feb. 14. The last previous payment was 25 cents on Aug. 10, 1931. The action followed a capital readjustment approved by stockholders at a special meeting in Wilmington, Del., several days ago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—The Chicago Mail Order Company today declared a quarterly cash dividend of 37½ cents per share payable March 2 to stock of record Feb. 10.

E. M. Schnadig, president, said business for the first weeks of 1936 is running about 20 per cent ahead of the corresponding period last year.

With the 50 cents extra dividend paid on Jan. 20, this makes a total of 87½ cents declared this year. Dividends of $2 per share were paid in 1935.

INLAND STEEL REPORT

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—Directors of the Inland Steel Co. declared a dividend of 75 cents a share on the capital stock. In each of the two preceding quarters extra payments of 25 cents a share in addition to dividends of 50 cents were declared.

The preliminary report for 1935 for the company and subsidiaries, including Joseph T. Ryerson & Son., Inc., for the last three months, showed a net income of $9,417,818. Inland acquired the Ryerson company on Oct. 1.

Purchases Company.

By the Associated Press.

YOUNGSTOWN, O. Jan. 29.—The United Engineering Co., with plants in Youngstown and Pittsburgh, announced that it had purchased the McIntosh-Hemphill Co. of Wooster, O. The deal was said to involve between $500,000 and $600,000.

United Engineering constructs heavy mill machinery.

HUSSMAN-LIGONIER CO. NETS 86C PER SHARE

The Hussmann-Ligonier Co. in its annual report shows net earnings after all charges, including provision for Federal and State income taxes, for the fiscal year ended Dec. 31, 1935, were $114,852, equivalent, after payment of preferred dividends of $43,157, to 86 cents per share of common stock outstanding. The earnings compare with $39,484.36 for the year 1934.

During the year outstanding 6 per cent convertible debentures were reduced from $89,500 to $72,500.

Capital assets valued at $51,900.18 were retired during 1935 and a corresponding amount charged against reserve for depreciation.

Sales for the period showed a substantial increase. The net increase in working capital after dividend payments exceeded net earnings.

W. B. McMillan, president, in his report to stockholders adds:

"During the year provisions were made for adequate credit lines to enable the company to carry its own instalment notes receivable and to thus eliminte the selling of such receivables to finance companies. A part of the economies resulting are reflected in 1935 earnings, but there should be a substantial additional increase in financial insome during 1936."

FINANCIAL NOTES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Approximately $475,000,000 par amount of railroad bonds mature in 1936, exclusive of Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans, short-term debt and emergency advances, Standard Statistics Co., Inc., says. Although the total is the largest for some time, no important problems are expected in connection with any issues of the solvent roads, the survey declares.

Owing to the sustained volume of business during the last quarter of the year, the bookings and shipments of fabricated structural steel in 1935 were maintained on practically the same volume as for the year previous, reports received from the industry by the American Institute of Steel Construction show.

The "Iron Age" scrap composite, an average of No. 1 heavy melting steel prices at Chicago, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, is unchanged at $13.58 a gross ton. The publication's composite prices for finished steel and pig iron are unchanged at 2.130 cents a pound and $18.84 a gross ton, respectively.

Seeking data for a statistical study of the movement of bank deposits, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, acting for the board of governors of the Reserve System, has requested information from member banks as to deposit accounts of customers which were in excess of $100,000 on Oct. 25, 1935, or on Nov. 1, 1935.

American Car and Foundry Co. announces that its subsidiary, American Car and Foundry Motors Co., has recently booked orders for 39 motor coaches. The principal order, from Southeastern Greyhound Lines, calls for 26 coaches.

Real estate conditions in the financial district, says Dow, Jones & Co., are beginning to reflect the increased activity in the stock market. The decline in rents, which started in 1930, has been halted and some increases have been made, it was stated. Demand for office space shows signs of expanding also.

The trend of sales in the chain store field as a whole, as reflected by the "Chain Store Age" index, advanced to 102.6 in December from 100.4 in November. During the like period of 1934 the composite index figure advanced from 92.9 to 93.5.

"Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering" reports that contracts awarded on current construction projects in the process industries total $794,000 and places the cumulative total of contracts for 1935 at $36,433,000.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York announced that 373 advances aggregating $31,457,000 have been approved up to Dec. 31, 1935, by the bank under the act designed to provide working capital to business concerns. Of this number, 107 were withdrawn by applicants, a large number of whom reported they had succeeded in obtaining funds through the usual credit sources.

TO SPEND $1,200,000.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 29.—Republic Steel Corporation announced that expenditure of $1,200,000 for improvements have been approved by directors.

Remodeling the plant at Warren, O., will be the largest project, at an expense of about $500,000. This will include enlargement of the strip steel cold rolling mill and tin plate finishing equipment.

GRAIN MARKET RULES LOWER WITH LIVERPOOL

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—With Liverpool showing a drop of nearly 2 cents a bushel and the Winnipeg market weak, Chicago wheat prices today receded a maximum of 1½ cents.

No wheat export business of consequence was announced at Winnipeg. Domestic flour business remained disappointing.

Wheat closed heavy ⅝@1½c under yesterday's finish, May 99½@⅝c, corn ¼@⅝c off, May 59⅝@¾c; oats unchanged to ⅛c lower, and provisions varying fro m2 cents decline to an equal advance.

Wheat tumbled early today to below $1 a bushel, May delivery, and for the first time being canceled all gains attributed to inflation talk.

The fall followed pronounced weakness at Liverpool, together with setbacks of sterling. At some stages, Chicago May contracts registered an overnight drop of more than a full cent. Selling pressure on May was heavier than in new crop months, July and September, the May being affected more by Winnipeg messages that told of dearth of export demand for Canadian.

Bears emphasized that although domestic primary receipts of wheat are small, this is largely offset by big surplus stocks in Canada. Uncertainties in regard to possible United States retroactive processing taxes were also referred to as a weight on the market, undoubtedly restricting enlargement of flour sales. A particular source of Liverpool weakness was Portuguese Government action looking to wheat exports of 11,000,000 bushels.

Corn and oats sympathised with wheat price setbacks.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 11,752,000 bushels, corn 1,340,000. Open interest in wheat was 110,101,000 bushels, and in corn, 23,350,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Jan. 29.—May wheat was offered down over a cent and July was fractionally lower on bid. May corn was lower but July held at unchanged level. Foreign prices affected the wheat trade.

Winnipeg wheat opened ⅛@½c under and early was ⅝c off. The market was 1c to more lower later in day. The close was ¾c net lower.

Liverpool reopened today at ⅜@½d decline from Monday's close and in a later cable was ⅝@⅝d off. The close was 1⅛ to 1¼d net lower.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

In the cash grain market today corn and oats were steady.

Sales made on the floor of the exchange were as follows:

OATS—No. 2 mixed oats, 34c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 30,0000 bu, compared with 25,500 a week ago and 19,500 a year ago, included 17 cars local and 3 through. Corn receipts, which were 49,500 bu, compared with 39,000 a week ago and 33,000 a year ago, included 33 cars local. Oats receipts, which were 22,000 bu, compared with 20,000 a week ago and 20,000 a year ago, included 9 cars local and 2 through.

The fall followed pronounced weakness at Liverpool, together with setbacks of sterling. At some stages, Chicago May contracts registered an overnight drop of more than a full cent. Selling pressure on May was heavier than in new crop months, July and September, the May being affected more by Winnipeg messages that told of dearth of export demand for Canadian.

Bears emphasized that although domestic primary receipts of wheat are small, this is largely offset by big surplus stocks in Canada. Uncertainties in regard to possible United States retroactive processing taxes were also referred to as a weight on the market, undoubtedly restricting enlargement of flour sales. A particular source of Liverpool weakness was Portuguese Government action looking to wheat exports of 11,000,000 bushels.

Corn and oats sympathized with wheat price setbacks.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totalec 11,752,000 bushels, corn 1,340,000. Open interest in wheat was 110,101,000 bushels, and in corn, 23,350,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Jan. 29.—May wheat was offered down over a cent and July was fractionally lower on bid, May corn was lower but July held at unchanged level. Foreign prices affected the wheat trade.

Winnipeg wheat opened ⅛@½c under and early was ⅝c off. The market was 1c to more lower later in day. The close was ⅞c net lower.

Liverpool reopened today at ⅜@½d decline from Monday's close and in a later cable was ⅝@¾d off. The close was 1⅛ to 1¼d net lower.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

In the cash grain market today corn and oats were steady.

Sales made on the floor of the exchange were as follows:

OATS—No. 2 mixed oats, 34c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 30,0000 bu, compared with 25,500 a week ago and 19,500 a year ago, included 17 cars local and 3 through. Corn receipts, which were 49,500 bu, compared with 39,000 a week ago and 33,000 a year ago, included 33 cars local. Oats receipts, which were 22,000 bu, compared with 20,000 a week ago and 20,000 a year ago, included 9 cars local and 2 through.

U. S. GOVERNMENT BONDS ARE STRONG

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Strength in U. S. Government issues was the bond market's principal feature today.

Reflecting improved support from the start of trading, Treasury issues moved consistently higher to register final gains ranging from 3-32ds to 9-32ds of a point. Most of the Federal Farm Mortgage and Home Loan Corporation obligations also closed higher.

Corporate classes generally were steady to firm. Loans showing sizeable advances included Baltimore & Ohio 4½s, Chesapeake Corp. collateral 5s, Alleghany Corp. 5s, American Rolling Mill 4¼s, Lehigh Valley 4½s, Frisco 5s, Studebaker 6s and Warner Quinlan 6s.

Foreign bonds remained in a narrow trend.

STEEL ISSUE ON MARKET.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—A banking syndicate composed of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and Field, Glore & Co. offers today $45,000,000 of Republic Steel Corporation general mortgage 4½ per cent bonds at par.

The offering is in connection with Republic's comprehensive plan of refinancing, which eliminates practically the balance of the underlying debot of the corporation's subsidiaries.

COTTON MARKET CLOSES 4 TO 12 POINTS HIGHER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Cotton was irregular today, with near months relatively easy under liquidation attributed to uncertainty concerning the disposition of Government-financed cotton.

There was buying of later months on the reported progress of proposed farm legislation. May cotton was selling around 11.02, or 3 points net lower, in the midafternoon market, while October, at 10.40, was 7 points net higher.

The market rallied on covering and trade and spot house buying, futures closing very steady, 4@12 higher. March 11.35@37, May 11.13@14, July 10.84@89, Oct. 10.45, Dec. 10.42, Jan. 10.41n. Spot steady. Middling 11.85.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Leading foreign exchanges continued to back up in terms of the dollar in forenoon today, apparently reflecting a further fading of inflation psychology so far as the American unit is concerned.

In London the dollar closed higher at 4.98 9-16 to the pound, while sterling in New York was off ⅜ of a cent at $4.99.

The dollar also showed considerable improvement in Paris where it finished at the equivalent of 6.643 cents to the franc. The French currency in New York was off .01⅜ of a cent at 6.65 cents.

Other gold funds were also heavy in New York dealings.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Foreign Exchange easy; Great Britain in dollars, others in cents. Great Britain demand, 4.99½; cables, 4.99½; 60 day bills, 4.98½; France demand, 6.65¾; cables, 6.65¾; Italy demand, 8.04; cables, 8.04.

New York Sugar.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Raw sugar was quiet and unchanged early today. No sales were reported but there were additional offerings at last paid prices of 3.38 for spots and 3.40 to 3.45 for forward shipments.

Futures opened unchanged to 1 point lower and later showed net losses of 2 to 3 points under scattered selling.

May declined from 2.37 to 2.35 and Sept. from 2.43 to 2.41, but around these levels there was a little better demand and partial rallies followed. At mid-day May was ruling around 2.36 and Sept. 2.42, or 1 to 2 points net lower.

Refined was still unsettled and selling prices ranged from 4.65 to 4.75 for prompt shipment with demand only of limited proportions.

London Wool Auction.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—Offerings at the wool auction Wednesday amounted to 10,380 bales of which 9564 were sold. A moderate selection was offered, the bulk of which was sold owing to active demand from continental buyers. Prices remained firm and withdrawals were few. This series of auctions will close tomorrow.

OUTPUT OF ELECTRIC POWER SHOWS GAIN

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The Associated Press index of electric power production, with 1929-30 taken as 100, advanced for the week ended Jan. 25 to 105.2 from 104.3 the week previous, indicating a contra-seasonal gain.

	1935-36	1934	1933
High	105.5	97.4	91.9
Low	94.1	31.9	80.2

The Edison Electric Institute reported an output of 1,955,507,000 kilowatt hours for the week ended Jan. 25, an increase .2 of 1 per cent as compared with the previous week and an increase of 9.8 per cent over the corresponding period of last year.

For the week ended Jan. 18 the output was 9.6 per cent ahead of the like period a year ago.

All the major geographic regions showed gains over the same week last year. Percentage advances were. New England, 5.7; Middle Atlantic, 7.5; Central industrial, 8.3; West Central, 11.7; Southern states 12.3; Rocky Mountain, 22.4 and Pacific Coast 12.2.

In the Matter of
FIRST REAL ESTATE MORTGAGE GOLD NOTES OF MAYO HOTEL COMPANY
Dated February 1, 1924

To holders of First Real Estate Mortgage Gold Notes of Mayo Hotel Company, dated February 1, 1924:

NOTICE

The Plan of Reorganization as amended of Mayo Hotel Company and of Mayos' Incorporated, both of Tulsa, Oklahoma, relating to the First Real Estate Mortgage Gold Notes of Mayo Hotel Company, Cass A. Mayo and John D. Mayo, dated February 1, 1924, and to the Second Mortgage Gold Bonds of Mayo Hotel Company, has been approved and confirmed by the District Court of the United States for the Northern District of Oklahoma, and the Judge thereof, in proceedings instituted under Section 77B of the Bankruptcy Act of the United States, for the reorganization of said Mayo Hotel Company and of said Mayos' Incorporated, and the said Plan of Reorganization as amended is now in effect.

The Supplemental First Real Estate Mortgage Deed of Trust from Mayo Hotel Company, Mayos' Incorporated, Cass A. Mayo and John D. Mayo to the undersigned, Mississippi Valley Trust Company and Benjamin F. Frick, Jr., as Trustees, provided for in and by the said Plan of Reorganization as amended, and the securities to be issued thereunder, have been submitted to and approved by the said Court and the Judge thereof. The said Supplemental Deed of Trust has been executed and recorded and the securities delivered to the Trustees for transmission to the holders of first mortgage notes.

Holders of First Real Estate Mortgage Gold Notes should now present, at the office of Mississippi Valley Trust Company, 225 North Broadway, St. Louis, Missouri, their notes, together with all unpaid interest coupons appertaining thereto.

Upon such presentation, the unpaid interest coupons will be detached, notice of extension will be stamped upon the notes, and there will be attached thereto the scrip, extension interest coupons and contingent interest warrants provided for in and by the Plan of Reorganization as amended.

In addition there will be paid, in cash, interest at the rate of 3% per annum for the period August 1, 1934, to August 1, 1935.

Scrip will be attached to the notes in the amount of $180.00 for each $1000.00 note, $90.00 for each $500.00 note and $18.00 for each $100.00 note; and cash will be paid in the amount of $30.00 for each $1000.00 note, $15.00 for each $500.00 note and $3.00 for each $100.00 note.

Further details in respect to the Plan of Reorganization as amended will be supplied by the undersigned upon request.

Holders of notes which have been deposited with the Noteholders' Protective Committee, upon the presentation and surrender of certificates of deposit, representing the said notes, to the depositary issuing the same, may obtain their notes, the scrip, extension interest coupons and contingent interest warrants appertaining thereto, and the cash payments thereon.

Dated at St. Louis, Missouri, this 27th day of January, 1936.

MEDICAL SOCIETY JOINS FIGHT AGAINST SMOKE

Accepts Report of Committee for Sponsorship of Permanent Civic Organization.

A report of the Smoke Committee of the St. Louis Medical Society, urging the society to sponsor a permanent civic organization on smoke abatement, was accepted by the society last night.

The committee, headed by Dr. John S. Young, reported, after working on a study of the smoke nuisance since last spring, that the problem was national in scope.

For the civic organization the committee suggested representatives of the Medical Society, soft coal producers, American Society of Civil Engineers, St. Louis Chemical Society, some chemical company, the electric, gas, oil and coke industries; Real Estate Exchange, medical schools, banking, and any other industry or occupation concerned with health and prosperity of the community. This group, it was proposed, should work with the universities, civic organizations, clubs, engineering societies and other agencies.

Other recommendations of the committee included:

Establishment of a chair of industrial hygiene in a medical school, to study municipal dusts and their effect on public health, and occupational diseases.

Connection of the civic group with the industrial hygiene work sponsored by the United States Public Health Service.

Freedom of the movement from partisan connections.

Indorsement of the work by the Missouri State Medical Society and the American Medical Association.

Studies of dust and its effect on health, smoke and its effect on health, and the engineering changes in combustion of soft coal desirable to obtain cleaner heat.

Arrangements for co-operation of local medical societies, health departments and other agencies with the United States Public Health Service in fighting smoke.

Refraining from offering ways of eliminating smoke, the committee declared smoke here was definitely injurious to health, with the humidity perhaps contributing to the graveness of the smoke problem. Smoke, said the report, obstructed the sun's ultraviolet rays, with possible detrimental effects on health, and produced the following physical effects: Irritation of the upper respiratory tract, contributing to production of rhinitis, sinusitis, tracheitis and bronchitis; pneumonoconiosis; aggravation of the cough of patients with chronic lung ailments, indirectly aggravating the primary lesions; conjunctivitis; increased eye disturbances among school children; malnutrition. Smoke also probably was a factor in many cases of melancholy and, due to poor visibility, caused many automobile accidents, the report added.

The Citizens' Smoke Abatement League, a civic group formed in 1926, was dissolved last spring for lack of funds.

NO CHANGE IN POLICY, SAYS NEW LOUISIANA GOVERNOR

Doubt About Selection of Senate Nominee After Death of O. K. Allen.

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 29.—Former Lieutenant-Governor James A. Noe, who became the Chief Executive of Louisiana after Gov. O. K. Allen died yesterday of cerebral hemorrhage, announced there would be no change in policy in any way in the governing of the State. Noe will fill out Allen's term of office, expiring May 11.

In the confusion following the fatal shooting of United States Senator Huey P. Long last autumn, Noe, prosperous oil men from Monroe, led a revolt against Allen's leadership of the Long faction by announcing for the governorship in opposition to the adminstration's candidate.

The bolt was short-lived, however, as he soon withdrew from the race and worked with the Long men in their successful campaign for retention of the State's chief political offices.

Observers today were interested in the disposition of the unfilled Senate term of Senator Long. Allen had been nominated for this in the recent primary. There was some doubt on the course to be taken, some holding that the Democratic Executive Committee was empowered to pick a new nominee.

KILLED BY TWO AUTOMOBILES

WPA Worker Struck by One, Is Thrown in Path of Other.

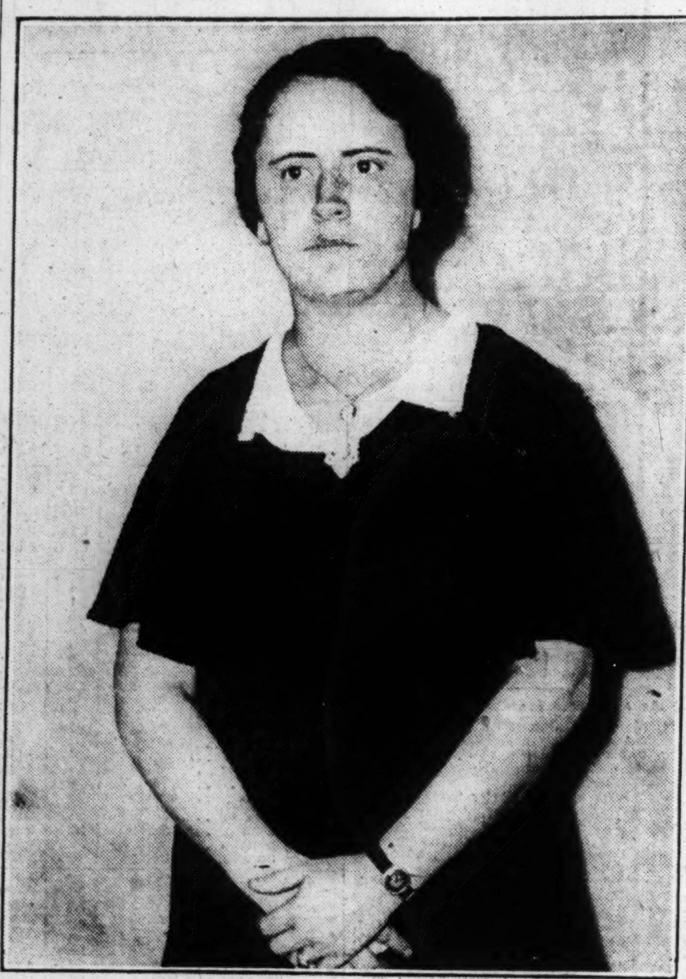
William Hammons, 58 years old, a PWA worker of Barnhart, Mo., died yesterday at St. Anthony's Hospital of a fractured skull suffered Friday, when he was hit by two automobiles while walking on Highway No. 61, between Barnhart and Herculaneum.

He was employed in Herculaneum and was returning to his home at the time of the accident. The first automobile which struck him threw him into the path of the other.

The Rev. Luther E. Todd Hurt.

The Rev. Luther E. Todd, secretary of the board of finance, Methodist Episcopal Church, South, suffered injuries to his left knee and left wrist, when the automobile he was driving collided with a service car in the 4100 block of Delmar boulevard at 8:40 a. m. today. He was treated at City Hospital and sent home.

Awaits Retrial for Husband's Murder



MRS. MARGUERITE FOX DOLBOW,

CHARGED at Salem, N. J., with conspiracy with her childhood sweetheart, Norman Driscoll, to kill her husband, Harry Dolbow, who was found beaten to death last Aug. 2. A mistrial was ordered at her first appearance in court because the wife of one of the jurors tried to pass him a note.

ST. LOUISAN FORECASTS RISE IN REAL ESTATE VALUES

Roy Wenzlick in New York Address Cites Deferred Marriages and Reduced Skilled Workers.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Roy Wenzlick, St. Louis real estate statistician, told the Northeastern Retail Lumbermen's Association yesterday that his studies indicated: Rising real estate values and an acute housing shortage within the next year, a building boom, but not in 1936, and residential rents soaring to 1929 levels by 1938 "or shortly thereafter."

Wenzlick said St. Louis, with an estimated reservoir of 32,000 depression-deferred marriages, was typical of the entire country. These new families to be formed, plus the re-expansion of families which combined under one roof during the depression, he said, would quickly absorb present vacancies.

"In practically every city," he said. "you're developing a housing shortage which I believe within the next year will become the greatest housing shortage we've ever had.

"I'm of the opinion that the vacancies in the United States are due almost entirely to contraction of space requirements and not to overbuilding during the last boom."

When launching new homes becomes profitable, he continued, "you won't need Government stimulation and you won't worry about credit."

The building industry will find itself handicapped by lack of skilled mechanics because of the long time since there was work for them, he said. Many have died or become old, and there has not been an incentive to learn the trades in recent years. This, he predicted, will lead to high wages and tend somewhat to retard new building.

RULING COAL CODE COMPLIERS HAVE ADEQUATE LEGAL REMEDY

Federal Judge in Virginia Refuses Writs; Has Doubts as to Constitutionality of Act.

By the Associated Press.

ROANOKE, Va., Jan. 29.—Holding that code compliers under the Guffey Act, have adequate remedy at law, Judge John Paul, in United States District Court here yesterday refused to grant temporary injunctions restraining the collection of a tax of 1½ per cent imposed on compliers.

The ruling was contained in a memorandum handed down in the case of the Jewell Ridge Coal Corporation against N. B. Early Jr., Collector of Internal Revenue, and in which Judge Paul made known that preliminary restraining orders granted at Lynchburg on Dec. 31 would be dissolved.

Expressing "serious doubts as to the constitutionality of the Guffey Act," Judge Paul held in the case of code members that Section 7 of the Guffey Act provided an adequate remedy for taxes which might be illegally collected.

Children Hurt as Sled Hits Car.

By the Associated Press.

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., Jan. 29.—Marion Ware, 8 years old, and Marshall Scott, 15, were injured severely Monday night when a sled they were riding struck a parked motor car. Marion was still unconscious Tuesday and it was believed her skull was fractured. Scott was able to go home after receiving hospital treatment.

WOMAN'S FEET, HANDS FROZEN

Slept in Vacant House After Being Evicted From Another.

Mrs. Stella Dunkin, 35-year-old widow, is at City Hospital after suffering severely frozen feet and hands Saturday and Sunday night when she slept on the floor of a vacant house. She had been evicted from an Olive street rooming house because she was a week behind in her rent.

Physicians said she may suffer loss of several fingers and toes.

Heiress to Be Bride Instead of Nun.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Natalie Elliott Carr, heiress, who two years ago ran away from Vassar to become a nun, has decided not to be a nun and will be a bride, her mother today said. Miss Carr, daughter of Mrs. Joseph Bradford Carr, will marry Walter Burke Coll of Stamford, Conn., son of Mrs. Arthur P. Coll and the late Dr. Coll of New York.

FOUR ON TRIAL FOR FRAUD IN HENRY COUNTY ELECTION

Defendants Charged With Falsely Counting Ballots and Manipulation of Returns.

By the Associated Press.

BUTLER, Mo., Jan. 29.—Trial of four Henry County election officials on charges of fraud in the general primary election in August, 1934, was under way in Circuit Court here yesterday. One hundred and two State witnesses were called to testify before jurors selected the day before.

Facing 11 indictments returned by the Henry County grand jury were John E. Clary, R. C. Todd, Earl L. Kimball, C. W. Elges and W. J. Livingston. Prosecutor Mark Wilson chose to try the case brought to the Bates County Circuit Court on a change of venue, on indictment No. 10.

The indictment asserted the defendants were judges in the Fourth Precinct of Clinton Township in Henry County. It charged they changed or attempted to change the true and lawful result of the election in which Vance Julian and C. C. Jones were Democratic candidates for Henry County Probate Judge and Ray E. Dooley and E. L. Renfro were candidates for County Clerk. The defendants were charged with falsely counting the ballots and manipulation of the returns in favor of Julian and Dooley. Livingston was not on trial as he did not seek a change of venue.

Gentlemen:
Last Sunday night, after the Eddie Cantor broadcast, I bought a package of those Double-Mellow Old Golds you advertised here in Hollywood. Your double money back offer tempted me. But I must say, after smoking half a pack, the cigarette hasn't won me.
So will you please send me double the price I paid for the pack, plus postage.
Yours very truly,
Jimmy Wallington

Dear Mr. Wallington:
Enclosed please find our check for double your money back, plus postage, in accordance with our offer.
Your experience is rare. Double-Mellow Old Golds have made thousands of converts in Hollywood.
But then . . . even a home-run champion sometimes strikes out.
May we express our thanks for your courtesy in trying Double-Mellow Old Golds?

Gentlemen:
You are certainly game sports. After receiving your check I felt the least I could do was to try Double-Mellow Old Golds again. I have done so, and discovered that it was I . . . not the cigarette that was wrong the other day. Double-Mellow Old Golds have won me over, completely.
So I feel it is only right to return your check to you herewith.
Yours very truly,

BEHIND the gray walls of Windsor Castle, on the hill above the Eton School, where young England learns discipline and cricket, King George's coffin was lowered into the vault to lie beside his father, King Edward VII, and his grandmother, Queen Victoria.

The magnificent crown of England was taken from the coffin before it disappeared and placed before the altar. Kings go, the crown remains.

The services were broadcast, new feature of a royal funeral; the simple Church of England burial service read by the Archbishop of Canterbury was heard far over the earth, wherever Britain's 400,000,000 subjects live. It was heard near the gold and diamond mines in South Africa; beside the holy Ganges, with its floating corpses, in India; heard in Australia, around, under the earth, and by the intelligent Canadians who, with their great North America empire, may some day be the real "England."

The body of the mild King was carried from Westminster Hall on a gun carriage, drawn by sailors. Thus ended, picturesquely, one chapter in England's history.

Veterans, having successfully climbed the long, long road, the Government yesterday began the biggest "pay off" job in history, the printing of $2,400,000,000 worth of bonds to be distributed among 3,518,191 World War veterans. The mere distributing cost alone will be $7,000,000.

Now, Government wonders what new taxes can be invented to pay the two and one-half billions.

Interesting news from Ethiopia sent by an American correspondent says the residence of Haile Selassie's son has on the roof a large red cross, although it has nothing to do with the Red Cross. The "field hospital" automobiles contained, in addition, 27 cases of munitions. In modern war, the safe plan seems to be bomb everything. The war drums of the Ethiopian hero, Ras Desta Demtu, were captured. He will miss them.

The Losing Finesse

By
Ely Culbertson

I HAVE written a great deal on the iniquity of the finesse—perhaps too much. I should certainly not like my readers to get the impression that all finesses are unwise and should be shunned. It must be ever borne in mind that generalities, in bridge especially, never can be as effective as specific analysis.

Ely Culbertson

Today's hand was submitted to me by an expert. He shame-facedly admitted that he had achieved the remarkable result of down two on a four heart contract where no less than 12 tricks would have rewarded proper play.

North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

North: ♠K Q 10 8 5 ♥J 8 5 ♦A K ♣A K 9
West: ♠J 9 7 4 2 ♥9 ♦Q J 7 6 ♣Q J 10
East: ♠A ♥Q 6 4 2 ♦10 9 3 2 ♣7 5 4 3
South: ♠6 3 ♥A K 10 7 3 ♦8 5 4 ♣8 6 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1♠	Pass	2♥	Pass
4♣*	Pass	4♥ (final bid)

*North's four club bid was an attempt to show the great strength of the hand and to give a slam-try at a safe stage in the bidding. When South made the minimum response of four hearts, North decided not to experiment further.

* * *

WEST suspected that North's club bid was made for the purpose of stopping a lead in the suit, and therefore he opened the club queen. Dummy's ace won and the low trump was led to declarer's ace. A spade to the king lost to East's ace and a club was returned, dummy winning the trick. At this point declarer had a brainstorm—he jumped to the totally unsound conclusion that a "safety play" would be to draw another round of trumps, disdaining the finesse for the queen. It was quite to the contrary, as he soon discovered. West showed out when the king of trumps was played and declarer was in a jam. He tried to establish spades for discarding purposes, but East ruffed the lead to the king, cashed his queen of hearts, and led a club for the fourth defensive trick. With no trumps left in dummy, declarer later had to lose a diamond.

Careful analysis would have shown a heart finesse as the safest line of play. Moreover, after it was taken, automatically a squeeze would have developed against West. The ace and king of diamonds, followed by the rest of the trumps, would have reduced all hands to three cards. West's, to guard the spade suit, would have to be three spades, which would promote South's club eight to winning rank. A four trick "swing" because of a miscalculation of the true safety factor!

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: My partner, first hand vulnerable, bid one no trump. Next hand passed. What should I bid, holding ♠AQJ62, ♥54, ♦632, ♣973?

Apple Sauce Cake

Cream one cup sugar and one-half cup butter. Add one-half teaspoon cloves, one teaspoon cinnamon, a pinch of salt, one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg. Dissolve one teaspoon soda in warm water and add it to one cup unsweetened apple sauce, which is then added to the batter. Add one cup chopped raisins. Beat all together, adding one and three-fourths cups sifted flour last. Bake in a loaf for 45 minutes. A nice week-end cake.

Warm the Knife

When slicing ice cream bricks, frozen puddings or salads, warm the knife before slicing. It will make a much neater slice.

Some Old-Time Dishes Which Still Appeal

Boston Baked Beans and Brown Bread Continue Favored Combinations.

By Margaret N. Pierce

WE SWOOP upon old pin corner cupboards, Windsor chairs, and sandwich glass from ancestral New England with great anticipation. They are valuable in money and in memories. So it is with the dishes familiar to that section of the country. Saturday-night baked beans and brown bread, a New England boiled dinner, suet pudding and many other old-time dishes are timely now and are good for cold weather dinners.

Here they are:

Boston Brown Bread

One cup cornmeal
One cup rye flour
One teaspoon salt
One and one-half teaspoons baking soda
One cup graham flour
Three-quarters cup molasses
Two cups very sour milk

Mix the dry ingredients, except graham flour, by sifting. Then add the graham flour. Mix liquids and combine with dry ingredients. Fill well greased molds two-thirds full, cover with greased covers and steam three hours. The covers may then be removed, and the bread baked in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) to dry it a bit. If you have no sour milk, use instead one and three-quarters cups sweet, and use only one-half teaspoon of baking soda with four teaspoons baking powder. Graham flour may be substituted for the rye.

Boston Baked Beans

Two cups California pea beans
One-half teaspoon soda
One-quarter cup molasses
One onion.
One teaspoon salt
One-quarter teaspoon mustard
One-quarter teaspoon ginger
One-third pound fat salt pork

Soak beans overnight in cold water. In morning, drain, rinse well, add soda, and put in a saucepan with cold water, bring to the boiling point and simmer until tender. (To test when they are done, take out a few on a spoon, blow upon them, and if the skins break and curl back they are cooked.) Skim the beans occasionally while cooking. Drain, place in a bean pot and add the remaining ingredients, except salt pork. Cover with boiling water, stir well and press down into the beans the salt pork, from which the rind has been removed. Let the fat come even with the beans on the surface or a little above, and score the top deeply with a sharp knife in squares. Cover the bean pot closely and bake in a slow oven (250 degrees F.) about 7 or 8 hours. Uncover for the last hour to brown. Replenish the water when necessary, and do not let the beans get really dry. When done there should be no excess of water liquid, but a rich moisture, due to the pork, seasonings and water.

New England Boiled Dinner

Six pounds corned beef
Six medium-sized onions
Four potatoes
Six carrots
Two small white turnips
One medium-sized cabbage
Six small beets

Soak the beef one hour in cold water, then cover with fresh, cold water and bring rapidly to boiling in a covered kettle. Simmer three hours or until tender. About one hour before serving, transfer part of the liquid, from which the fat has been skimmed, to another large kettle. Put in this the pared onions, and the potatoes, carrots and turnips, pared or scraped, and cut into uniform pieces. On top place the cabbage cut into sections suitable for serving. Add hot meat juice or water to cover vegetables and boil in open kettle until tender. The beets should be cooked whole, in a separate kettle. Place corned beef on a large platter and serve surrounded by vegetables. Johnny cake, apple pie and cheese complete the meal.

Real Cream Pie

Two tablespoons all-purpose flour.
Three tablespoons granulated sugar.
One beaten egg.
One and a half cups sweet cream.
One recipe plain pastry.
Grated nutmeg.

Combine flour and sugar. Stir in egg and cream gradually until well blended. Put into a pastry-lined pie plate. Sprinkle grated nutmeg over the top of the filling. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) until browned. This recipe makes one (seven-inch) pie.

Suet Pudding

One cup suet, chopped fine.
One cup molasses.
One cup raisins.
One cup currants.
Three cups cake flour.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
One teaspoon cloves.
One teaspon cinnamon.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One and a half cups milk.

Put suet through food chopper. Then combine with molasses, raisins and currants. Sift dry ingredients together and add to first mixture, alternately with the milk. Combine thoroughly. Pour into greased molds and steam five hours. Serve with nutmeg sauce.

BACHELOR KING - Biography of New Monarch - By Frazier Hunt

The War Department Failed to Keep the Future King From the Front

● As the Prince of Wales, Edward VIII learned early that being heir to the throne was to be no bed of roses. His boyhood dream of a naval career was rudely interrupted after a few months as midshipman, so his education might be completed at Oxford and in the army. Then the Word War terminated his orderly training. In this installment of "The Bachelor Prince Who Became King," biographer Frazier Hunt tells how the Prince of Wales overcame objections to his joining the British forces in France.

PART THREE.

FRUITFUL were these two Oxford years. He learned how to rub elbows with the man on the street. He played football with the second elevation and learned teamwork and companionship. Another man, too, left his indelible impression on his sensitive mind—Major Cadogan.

From this gallant soldier he learned the finest tenets of true sportsmanship. He learned polo and cross-country riding. With him he played golf and tennis. More than by any single individual, excepting his tutor, the Prince was to have his youthful character molded and inspired by this valiant gentleman. Within a month after war was declared he was to die in the great retreat from Mons.

PRINCE OF WALES . . . who wants to be a royal mollycoddle?

During the spring and summer of 1913 the Prince made two visits as the Earl of Chester to Germany. During the first he visited the industrial centers at Duseldorf and Coblenz, with a short stay at the lovely old university town of Heidelberg. At Stuttgart he stayed with the King of Wurttemberg and rode much in the Black Forest.

In July of this same year of 1913 the Prince again visited Germany, staying with the Kaiser, and later visiting Dresden, Leipzig and Prague. The next time he entered Germany was in November, 1918, when he crossed the border with the victorious Canadian Corps.

Back in Oxford, the even tenor of his college life flowed on. Now and again he went to dances and little parties, but he cared little about either of them. Girls had small place in his life at this time. Like his position, they were a sort of necessary evil. However, he did enjoy being with a group of boys and girls around a piano and singing old songs.

But he was far more interested in his weekly drills in the Oxford University Officers' Training Corps. The first year he had sweated and worked as a private and now he proudly wore the stripes of a Corporal. For several weeks each summer he went to training camp, and revelled in the fact that he was just one of the gang, abused by crusty old Sergeant-Majors and training officers.

He had scarcely returned from a visit to Denmark during that second summer when, on June 28, a fanatical Serb patriot fired a shot that was to ring around the world.

If that shot had not been fired Edward, Prince of Wales, would have continued for another year or two at Oxford, then spent a year or more in the British army, probably dutifully married some foreign Princess, toured the British Empire as a slightly bored and cautious Prince, settled back and raised a large family of Princelings and carried on the grand tradition that the heir of a constitutional monarchy should at all times move well within the confines of tradition.

* * *

THE world has never been told the full story of the great personal bravery shown by the Prince of Wales during the war days, or of the many times he escaped disaster only by the narrowest margin.

On the third day after war was declared he won his right to fight. On Aug. 7 there appeared a single line in the official war bulletin: "The Prince of Wales has been commissioned a Second Lieutenant in the Grenadier Guards."

Under the August sun he drilled and sweated, snapped to the orders of deep-throated old Sergeant-Majors, and carried out the score and one precise duties of a young officer in training. One morning in the middle of September word passed through the barracks that orders had come to proceed to France.

Eagerly the Prince scanned the list. His name was missing.

He hurried to his Colonel. The senior officer knew nothing except that his name had not been included. The Prince asked for a day's leave, and securing a car, bolted for the War Office in London.

The Prince demanded that he be allowed to see the great Lord Kitchener, Secretary of War.

The young Prince, in the uniform of a Second Lieutenant, his eyes flashing with excitement and determination, clicked his heels and saluted.

"Why can't I go to France with my battalion, sir?" he stubbornly demanded.

"What difference does it make if I get killed? I have four brothers. Any one of them is just as fit as I to fill my place."

The young officer was burning with anger and resentment. These men in the War Office were doing their best to make a royal mollycoddle out of him.

Kitchener rose slowly to his feet.

"It isn't a question of your being killed," he answered in his deep voice. "If that were the only consideration I might think that I had no right to oppose you. But you might be taken prisoner. And we've got enough to fight about without that. . . . Go back to your regiment and learn some more about soldiering."

For the moment there was no higher court of appeal.

But the Prince kept the road hot between the training camp and the War Office and Buckingham Palace.

Finally he at least partly won. He was to go, but as a staff officer and not as a platoon commander of a regiment in the line.

He had only been in France a few weeks when one evening his absence from headquarters' mess was noted. A hurry-up call was sent out to locate him. An hour or two later he was found. He had "borrowed" a dispatch rider's motorcycle, wrecked it when he ran into a shell hole and was now happily ensconced in a dugout, playing cards with French poilus, smoking cigarettes and taking a pull now and then at a French canteen of the sour red wine, the pinard, of the French ration.

* * *

ALREADY he was finding his way into the hearts of common men.

At a bombing school the Prince had heldon to his hand-grenade a second too long and it had burst dangerously near.

At each cot he stopped, shook hands with the Tommy and spoke words of sympathy and encouragement. After more than an hour he was led toward the exit.

Suddenly he turned to the head nurse: "I understand you had 36 patients here—but I've seen only 29."

It was explained that the others were so hideously disfigured that he was not taken into their particular ward.

KITCHENER . . . he was stubborn.

"Is it for my sake or theirs that you're not taking me there?" he asked quietly.

"For yours, sir."

"Then I insist you show me in," the Prince demanded.

He was led into the room. At each bed he stopped long enough to thank the wounded veteran for the sacrifice he had made and to assure him that neither he nor England would ever forget what they had done.

When he had finished he turned again to his guide.

"But I've seen only six men. Where is the seventh?"

The head nurse explained that no one was permitted to see him. Blind, maimed, hideously disfigured he was kept alone in a room which he would never leave alive.

"Please do not ask to see him, sir," the nurse pleaded.

The Prince walked firmly to the bed. His face was white and his lips were drawn. In the dim light he looked down on what had once been a man, but was now only a horrible and unforgettable wreck from the monstrous war.

Tears came to his eyes. Then impulsively he bent down and kissed the cheeks of the broken hero.

In a short time the Prince started back to his car. It was no longer there. A high explosive shell had made a direct hit on it, and his old chauffeur, Private Green, who had been with him his two years at Oxford, and had been his driver in the war, had been blown almost to bits. Deeply shocked, the Prince insisted on gathering up what few personal effects of his dead comrade he could find. He sent them back himself to Green's people with a personal letter of condolence. In all the years that have followed he has always kept in touch with this family.

Some months earlier he had had another close call. Near the front lines was a small stone building that had been partially destroyed by shell fire. On an inspection trip with Gen. Wardrop, the Prince had turned into this partial shelter in order to use his field glasses unobserved.

* * *

APPARENTLY the enemy observer had spotted the little group of staff officers when they had ducked into the building. At once they began dropping shells on and around the old house. When the first one burst Gen. Wardrop shouted for the Prince to flatten himself on the floor. The Prince did not move quickly enough to suit the General. A third or fourth shell burst just as the General threw himself at the Prince and bearing him to the floor lay squarely upon him until the shelling ceased.

A week or two after his experience in the shell-torn cottage the Prince and a companion officer, while making their way to an observation post on a hill, crossed a field under artillery fire. The high officers at the post were speculating on the danger the Prince was risking, when a heavy shell burst on the hillside and for the moment the Prince was out of sight.

"Great God! It's got him!" a Colonel shouted.

But a few moments later, when the smoke and muck had settled down, the Prince could be seen "legging it" for a recently captured German machine-gun pill box.

In the spring of 1916 the Prince was sent off to Egypt and Sudan on a double mission. Ostensibly he was to make a report on the defenses of the Suez Canal, but of even more importance he was to bring his cheery smile and encouraging word to the Anzacs and Diggers, the Australian and New Zealand troops, who had recently been withdrawn from the ghastly failure of Gallipoli.

No one could have passed through these tragic, yet in many ways magnificent, war years without coming out pretty much a fatalist. The Prince unquestionably became one. Lone shells, inexplicable bursts of machine-gun fire, even single rifle shots, had a way or searching out some one man—a shell that "had his number on it."

In 1917 on the Somme a Colonel whose battalion was taking over a particularly hot sector strode into a brigade headquarters. A young Captain jumped to his feet and saluted. The Colonel demanded to know the why and wherefore of this particular stretch of front.

The Colonel fairly barked his indignation. "Do you know to whom you're speaking? I'm Colonel —— I've got to have this information at once. Where's your General?"

The Colonel became sarcastic. "And did they leave you all alone here to run this brigade?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, no wonder this bloody war has lasted three years." Swearing and cursing, the Colonel stomped out of the headquarters to his car.

His chauffeur waited until he was some miles away before he told the Colonel that it was the Prince of Wales to whom he had been talking.

My DAY

Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.

BACK in the White House this morning a little late, but a rather hurried bath got me to breakfast at 9 o'clock. At 11 I was at the Cathedral for services held in memory of Knig George of England. Every seat was taken. The diplomatic corps was, of course, in deep mourning. It was really a beautiful service and genuine feeling seemed to pervade the church.

I talked this afternoon for an hour with a group of 33 supervisors of worker's education in various states. I was impressed by the bright and intelligent faces of many of these young men and women, and how sympathetic they were in the interpretation of the various communities that they had touched.

It has always seemed to me that this particular phase of education is important, especially at this time, when so many people seem to be beset by fears of Socialism and Communism. It seems particularly vital that the workers of our country should have an opportunity to study the labor movement and the economic problems of the day.

Only through understanding can they be expected to look at questions in a comprehensive way. Our great difficulty in the past has always been that individual groups see only their own point of view and cannot understand the situation as a whole.

I am often surprised that we have been able to have so good a meeting of minds on many subjects considering how little different groups know about each other. Those who are interested in the future development of this country must be interested in the education of the workers.

* * *

A large company is now gathering for the dinner to the Justices of the Supreme Court tonight. I must say that I have to smile as I think of all the pomp and ceremony at the White House Tuesday night contrasted with Monday night's square dancing in Arthurdale to a community orchestra—a piano, fiddle, banjo and mandolin. Of such contrasts is our country made.

Dainty Handkerchiefs

If you find you have a great many plain white handkerchiefs and not many dainty colored ones to go with your various costumes, why not dip some of the white ones in the tinting water next time you tint your underwear? You will have some attractive pastel hankies instead of the plainer white ones.

Silent Periods In Lessons Aid Understanding

By Angelo Patri

ALL of us do too much talking. Teachers are the worst offenders. If the pupils seem not to understand, the teacher says the same thing over again, only louder; and with failure to drive home the point the noise is louder.

Angelo Patri

Some teachers talk so much at the start of a lesson that they fail to reach the lesson and the period passes with nothing done. The pupils are fatigued and bothered. Listening to talk is one of the most fatiguing things they have to do and they vaguely resent it. Something is wrong with the teacher, but they are not quite sure what, for talking often is accepted as teaching. It is not always so. Many times it is the very opposite.

Mothers are guilty, too. When something bothersome arises mother talks over it, under it, all around it, fills the air with sound, never realizing that the children have long ceased to listen. After the first statement they knew that the rest was to be the same and turned their attention elsewhere. Minds have that characteristic and act upon it always. Attacked by words that have no more force they close down and open in another direction, far away from the din of sound.

In all nature there are pauses to allow relief. The night follows the activity of the day; fall and winter are the pauses of growing time; silence is the pause that offers relief to all who are weary. Silence is healing. It brings rest, restores power and creates spiritual energy. Silence ought to break speech. It should always follow speech to allow time for the listening mind to take in the ideas and examine them. Too much talk leaves no room for the perfect work that silence stands waiting to perform.

Listen attentively to the talk that goes on about you. Consider how much of it is unnecessary. Watch the next time you find yourself in a group, or in a classroom, or walking along the streets, and see how little attention the listeners are paying to those who are talking. Much of the talking that goes on is automatic and without force. The energy that is consumed is enormous.

Teachers ought to be concerned about this overtalking. They should try to reduce the number of their words to the powerful essential ones. Waste no time at the start of the lesson by telling the class what the lesson is about, telling them there is to be no nonsense, that nobody is going to stand for it, and the like.

Start to work the moment you hear the signal. If the lesson was well set the day before, and it should have been, the class knows what it is about, they are ready for it. Say nothing about order. Assume that there is no disorder possible. Make work the important thing, sacred against interruption, against useless talk.

Everybody concerned with children can well afford to cut down the talking and increase the understanding pauses, the valuable silences of their intercourse.

Angelo Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing a 3 cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Celery Au Gratin

A nice vegetable to serve with the winter roasts. Clean celery and cut into inch lengths. Cook in boiling water until tender. Drain and pour into a buttered casserole. Pour over the celery one and one-half cups white sauce. Over the top spread a generous amount of chipped sharp cheese. Then a layer of buttered breadcrumbs. Bake in a moderate oven for one-half hour.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By Martha Carr

My dear Mrs. Carr:

THE boys of my acquaintance are all so conceited that they think they have no faults and are always picking at the girls. You'd think these boys were Beau Brummels and Saints. I wish somebody would tell them a few things. It seems they don't mind what we say at all and we don't mince matters either. They are hopeless.

A YOUNG GIRL.

EVIDENTLY you haven't happened to see an article published lately, entitled "Thirty Reasons Why George May Be Annoying." A psychologist (not a bunch of girls) has formulated a test of 30 questions: "Is he a gusher? Is he too tight with money? Does he get too familiar on slight acquaintance? Is he always trying to be funny? Does he laugh too much at his own jokes? Is he a goody-goody person? Dos he brag about his love affairs? Is he fussy about having things just right? Are his feelings easily hurt? Does he consider himself superior to others? Does he make fun of people behind their backs? Is he too bold in correcting the mistakes of others? Is he a grouch? Does he talk too much? Does he flatter others unnecessarily? Is he artificially dignified? Does he borrow too often? Does he boast of his accomplishments? Does he monopolize the conversation and pose to try to make an impression? Does he keep himself neat? Does he brood over personal grievances? Is he callous to the troubles of others? Is he ready to boo the success of others? Does he talk glibly on matters on which he is not informed? Can he be depended upon to do what he promises? Does he go out of his way to help others? Does he return promptly what he borrows? Does he keep his nose out of other people's business? And can he see a joke on himself?"

Here is a yardstick which you and the other girls might hold up to the boys; and I wish you luck.

* * *

My dear Mrs. Carr:

THE other night we had a little family gathering. We drifted onto the subject of marriage and got into an argument about the word "trousseau." One said it was the bride's wedding gown and clothes she wore on her honeymoon and the other said it was her household goods, such as linens and fabrics. Will you let us know who might be right?—L. B. P.

A plain Webster's dictionary would have settled the argument immediately. Trousseau means, literally, a bundle. It is a bride's personal outfit, clothes, jewelry, etc.

If this does not quite satisfy you, look up the French dictionary by F. E. A. Gasc. You will find the same definition: A bride's wedding outfit.

* * *

My dear Mrs. Carr:

CAN you tell me if there are any hospitals in St. Louis that will train a girl to be a nurse even if she didn't have a high school education?

HOPEFUL.

There is no St. Louis hospital that I know of, which does not require a prior four years of high school. If you have this preparation you can then work for part of your expenses. This will answer "Midge," who should make all other inquiries of the superintendent of nurses at any of the hospitals or the Washington University School of Nurses.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM a boy 18 years old preparing to graduate from high school. Ever since I entered high school I have been dating and getting along without being extravagant. Of course I don't mind a splurge if it isn't too often. But lately I have been with a girl who I like very much and who says she likes me. The trouble is that she makes me feel I must take her to expensive places because she is always telling me about the swell places other fellows take her. Do you think this girl really likes me or does she just go with me for the good time?

Please try to answer this before I graduate if at all possible.

SCOTTIE.

The girl who, knowing you cannot and should not afford more than you offer her, constantly brags about what others do, is not worth your time wasted. This is, not only very bad taste, but shows a silly, shallow nature. There are a good many boys who make a swell gesture of spending money on the girls who, later, are not worth their salt or get into trouble through this extravagance.

Men and women with good judgment know how futile it is to try to spend more than they can afford, in order to impress those around them with the "good fellow," lavish-spending, braggadocio idea of popularity.

Find a girl with some common sense.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. The Futility Of Worrying Over The Past

A Talk on "Broken Records" and New Songs of the Future.

By Elsie Robinson

(Copyright, 1936.)

ONE of those moldy midnights—you know the kind. Ashes dying. Lost wind crying. Rain like a fumbling hand. And you sitting there, staring at memories.

Remembering—forgetting. Most futile form of indoor sport. The whole gibbering crew of Might-Have-Beens stalking before you, leering, jeering. Shouldn't waste your time over them? Of course you shouldn't. But you always do!

Elsie Robinson

So there was I, making faces at my past, wondering how and why, and whether there was any use in going on. Until something about the radio—

The thing had been running on for an hour without my noticing. Now, suddenly, it seemed to have developed a weeping jag—hung there hiccoughing the same phrase over and over. Remember the scratched records in the old talking machines? I'm no electrician, but maybe—

The announcer's voice solved the riddle, however, before I was out of my seat. There wasn't any trouble. It was just that sort of a tune. Called, aptly, "The Broken Record." Clever stunt, I thought to myself—making music out of discord. Pity we all couldn't do as much.

For wasn't that the way things went with human lives, as well as records? So smooth at first in baby years . . . carefree as a meadowlark, whistling his bubbling delight from a brier bush. Deepening, then, in the 'teens. The dawning of ecstasy . . . the first ringing chord of ambition. All the swoop and dip of madcap emotion. Such a brave tune, that marching song of youth—so filled with stars and sunrise and fresh fire.

So on, and on. With the song rising, swelling—growing richer daily—yet with little change from that first simple melody. Until abruptly comes the first cruel impact with shock or grief. Crash! Discord instead of rhythm! Midflight, the bright song flutters, falters—hangs like a crippled thing. The song is ended.

Ended, we're sure, forever. Fire cooled, young faith broken, dreams turned into mocking memories. But Time, they say, will heal. Perhaps. But never wholly. And who wants such healing; such shabby compromise? Better to sit by a fire—remembering.

Another "broken record." Never yet was there a human who didn't come to such a pass—and think his song was over for good. Dead days, when the spirit hangs listless, rasping broken bars. Days when one moves, senseless and blind, through the old routine, wondering how . . . why . . . where. Will life ever again make music?

Yes—if we have the ear to hear it and the heart to follow!

Always there is music—but that music moves with life! And when we are young, that is hard to believe. There is a music of laughter, dancing feet and young passion. But there is also a music of tears, blind noons, black midnights and empty hours in between. The bubbling song of a lark atilt on a brier bush—the wailing cry of a gull above the storm-racked wreck—there is song in them both. Always a song—for those who will hear it.

The old tunes? They pass and life passes. But that does not mean that the song is ended. Each passage in our growth has its own melody. Always life moves through tears or laughter to larger, lovelier harmony.

And even now a new song is forming for you in the dreary monotone of these monotonous days. Out of the thumping roar of the machine shop . . . the clatter and slop of dishpan and mop . . . the dusty rustle of card files and ledgers . . . the snip and squawk of bargain counter sales or the tragic thud and shuffle of the city streets . . . out of it all comes a new song for YOU.

Feebly at first—twanging its vague, harsh chords over and over like a scratched record—now lost, now swelling faintly into richer voice—but never quite gone.

Now, for YOU, out of it all, ugliness without bitterness within, a new song shapes. Turn from your "broken record"—your hopeless regret and bitter resentment—turn from it all. And listen. AND DARE TO SING.

In Furnishing

Too many pictures of uncertain value. Too many overstuffed pieces of furniture. Too many heavy draperies in small rooms. Too many things of no value on the mantel. Too many periods of furniture in the same room. Too many articles of furniture placed on the bias across corners of the room. Too little evidence of the individual living in the home and expression of their own taste.

Millinery New spring hats will look like spring according to those who create them. Flowers, feathers and veils are the chief forms of trimming for the new season. There is too, a strong tendency toward the Chinese styling in more youthful models—such as shallow coolie shapes and chin-chin turbans.

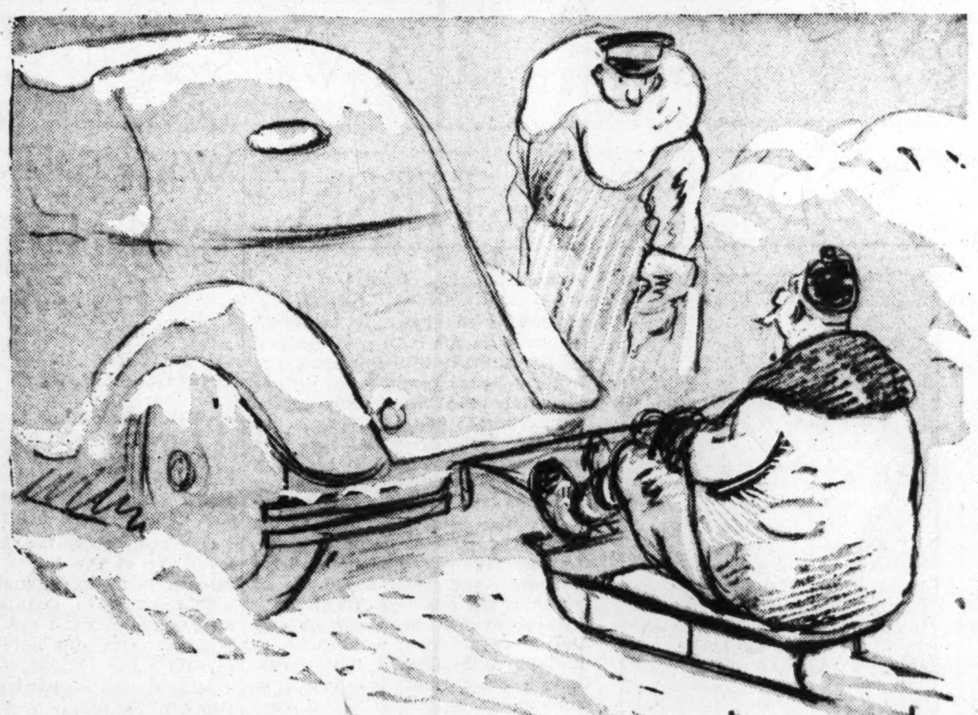
by PAUL WEBB

Thrills In Winter



"Drive as fast as you like, James—I'm no sissy y'know."

"But Junior—only the other day Papa paid out fifteen dollars for that hat!"

"I forgot to tell ya, Pop—she don't steer extra good."

"Please—dear—please—I'll never throw snowballs at you again—I promise."

The Gesture Of Drinking With Toasts

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post:

Is it very discourteous not to drink a toast to someone? I never touch a drop of anything strong to drink, which is why I am asking this. Also, if tomato juice cocktails are offered, is it improper to drink the toast with tomato juice?

Emily Post

Answer: Certainly it is not improper to drink a tomato juice toast. But it is considered very discourteous to the person whose health is drunk not to make a gesture of drinking to him, or her. But to do this it is merely necessary to raise the glass—of no matter what—to your lips. Ordinarily you need not take even a mouthful unless you choose. If it is a bottoms-up toast, like the one to the bride at the bridegroom's dinner, and you have a serious excuse such as having made a vow—if you know that even a little is a danger to your health—then you must, as inconspicuously as you can, lift an empty glass (you can half cover it with your hand) and break it with the rest.

Dear Mrs. Post: Has the word "escort" been admitted to good social usage? I know that there used to be an objection to it but I haven't heard much about it lately. Why was it ever outcast?

Answer: The word escort was never used because the person it described was unknown in best society—and therefore the word had no meaning. "The man I was with" or "The man who took me out" or most likely "boy friend" are on the other hand met everywhere.

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it in good taste to give a photograph of myself to a man I know? And are such photographs usually autographed?

Answer: If there is any question in your mind as to whether you should or shouldn't, the answer is don't. To a lifelong friend, to a classmate on leaving college, to the man who loves you, it would probably be all right. But to a man in whom you are interested but about whose interest in you you have doubts—better not! Sign a picture to a man only if you are willing to have picture and signature published in a newspaper—should he be involved in the news.

Dear Mrs. Post: Is eggnog appropriate to serve only at Christmas and New Year parties? My husband and I like it and would prefer to serve it at evening parties many times if it were not for my impression that it would not be suitable.

Answer: It is true that eggnog is rather especially set apart as particularly suitable for New Year's day, but I don't see why it could not just as well be served at other times. In fact, in many communities it is served at Christmas and in others at Easter.

Menu With Baked Halibut

By Gladys T. Lang

Emergency Soup.
Baker Halibut.
Creoled Okra. Cucumber Salad.
Kentucky Graham Bread.
Graham Cracker Pie.

Emergency Soup.

One cup water.
Two tablespoons of cooked barley.
One teaspoon sugar.
Two cloves.
One tablespoon of butter.
Salt and pepper.

Melt the butter in a double boiler, add the pea soup and heat. Gradually add the consomme mixed with the water, the cooked barley, salt, pepper, sugar and cloves. Bring to the boiling point and remove the cloves. Top each serving with a spoonful of crisp chopped bacon.

Baked Halibut.

Poach three halibut steaks in salted, acidulated water with a small bayleaf for five minutes. Drain and cut out the bones. Place on a fireproof platter and cover with a wine glass of port or sherry wine. Pour over a highly seasoned thick cream sauce and bake in a moderate over about 15 minutes.

Creoled Okra.

One pound of okra.
Two tablespoons of drippings.
One cup diced, raw potatoes.
One minced onion.
One minced green pepper.
One small minced clove of garlic.
One tablespoon minced parsley.
Three tablespoons tomato puree.
One cup of water.

Slice the okra and fry in drippings until soft and colored. Add all the ingredients except the water and tomato puree and cook, stirring constantly, for 15 minutes. Add the water and puree and season highly. Cover and let cook from 15 to 20 minutes longer.

Cucumber Salad.

Take small cucumbers, peel and slice very thin without cutting all the way through. Between each slice place a thin slice of unpeeled radish. Soak in salted ice water. Drain and wipe dry, then marinate in French dressing for at least an hour before serving.

Kentucky Pumpkin Bread.

Two-thirds cup of yellow and white cornmeal mixed.
Two eggs, separated and beaten.
Two teaspoons of baking powder.
One cup of milk.
One heaping tablespoon butter.
Salt.

Beat the egg yolks and mix with the pumpkin and milk. Sift the cornmeal and baking powder together. Combine and add the melted butter. Fold in the egg whites beaten stiff, with a pinch of salt. Pour into heated buttered muffin tins or pans and bake about 20 to 30 minutes.

Graham Cracker Pie.

One-half cup nut meats chopped fine.
One cup sugar.
One teaspoon baking powder.
Three eggs.

Beat the three egg yolks light with the sugar. Add the dry ingredients. Beat the egg whites stiff with a pinch of salt and fold into the other mixture. Bake in a greased pie plate for 20 minutes in a slow oven. Serve with sweetened and flavored whipped cream.

Nutmeg Sauce

Two-thirds cup granulated sugar.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.
One tablespoon cornstarch.
One cup boiling water.
One tablespoon butter.
One-quarter cup lemon juice.
Few gratings nutmeg.

Mix the first three ingredients together and add the boiling water gradually, stirring all the time. Cook, stirring constantly, until the mixture boils and let cook for five minutes longer. Add the butter, lemon juice and nutmeg and serve.

Invisible Mending

When hemming table linen, save the ravelings. They are the best material obtainable for darning holes and thin places in worn table linen.

Lemon Tapioca

One cup sugar, one and one-half cups boiling water, one-quarter cup instantaneous tapioca, one-half cup lemon juice, two egg whites. Cook tapioca in the boiling water until transparent. Add sugar and lemon juice and cool. Fold in stiffly whipped egg whites. Chill and serve with custard sauce.

Scotch Eggs

One pound sausage meat, six eggs, one beaten egg and breadcrumbs. Boil six eggs until hard, remove shells and cover all over with the sausage meat. Dip in egg and crumbs and fry in hot fat until nicely browned all over. Cut in halves, garnish with parsley and serve immediately. Another unusual luncheon suggestion.

A DOCTOR TALKS OF HEALTH

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

IN SPEAKING of the fundamental requirements of a natural diet, we have emphasized the tissue-replacing qualities and the energy-furnishing qualities, but there are some other things that a diet must do which lie outside the range of these fundamental requirements. One is that it must furnish bulk, or roughage.

Dr. Clendening

A concentrated diet, or a diet in which all the food elements are in such simple forms as they are in milk, would leave in the intestines substances which ferment and possibly intoxicate the body. I say "possibly intoxicate" because it is not certain that they will, and a great deal too much has been made of this by food faddists, whose only aim has been to keep the bowels open. But good health and well being do depend upon a regular evacuation of the intestinal contents, and this is best accomplished by those parts of foods which are not broken down in the process of digestion and are not absorbed. They act as a foreign body in the intestinal tube and stimulate its muscles to rhythmic movements, which result in evacuation.

Roughage in Diet.

The principal form in which this bulk or roughage occurs in the food is in the fiber, or cellulose, of vegetables and fruits. It is for this reason that these substances form such a desirable part and such a large part of the average dietary.

It is quite easy for anybody to estimate the percentage of bulk in his foods. Anybody can see that milk or candy contains none of it and that an apple, or cabbage, or sauerkraut contain good quantities. Celery, radishes and carrots, as is evident by the way they feel against the teeth, contain a large amount of indigestible substance. When I say "indigestible," this is the opposite of meaning that they cause indigestion. Although these are the elements which frequently aggravate a case of acid dyspepsia.

Besides the actual bulk, a great many fruits and vegetables contain in their juices chemical elements which have a slight cathartic effect. Sauerkraut juice has been proved by Gerlen to be decidedly laxative in character. The fats, by promoting the flow of bile, may act somewhat in the same way, although they contain no roughage in themselves. Probably the juices of apple and cranberry have this same sort of action.

The other element which is required in foods is freshness. No one can subsist on completely cooked or preserved foods indefinitely. This, of course, means essentially that foods must contain the vitamins, those substances which seem to promote, by their chemical action, a great many processes which keep the body in a state of well being and good health.

Come in Handy

One or two asbestos mats are convenient in the kitchen to put under the saucepans containing food liable to burn. They are a joy when heating articles such as canned corn or things containing thickening.

PATHS of GLORY

A War Story

By HUMPHREY COBB

Zero Hour Arrives and the Men Try to Leave the Trenches---But the Attack Becomes a Holocaust.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN.

THE front-line trench was crowded, more crowded, so it seemed, than when it had been filled with the double congestion of the relief two nights earlier, crowded with men whose uniforms were slate-gray with moisture and whose thoughts were slate-gray with apprehension. They stood in the jumping-off positions quite silently and almost motionlessly, staring in front of them. Each man carried two extra packages of rifle ammunition and a small bag of bombs. Here and there a man would be fairly well loaded with what looked like satchels, giving him the appearance of a traveler waiting for a train. His satchels were explosive charges for use on the galleries and dugouts of the Pimple. He looked rather taller than the rest, but this was a deception caused by the dwarfing effect of the other men's rifles, elongated as they were by the disproportionately long bayonet.

SYNOPSIS:

Zero hour is near. It is dawn and a lashing, slanting rain drenches the 181st Regiment, crowded in the front trenches, as it is about to jump off for an almost hopeless attack on The Pimple, a German strong point, erroneously reported captured in a Western Front communique, a few days before. French GHQ (General Headquarters) wants this error corrected and General Assolant, though admitting The Pimple to be "a miniature Gibraltar," has promised it to the Army Commander "for lunch" that day. Col. Dax, commanding the gallant 181st; Capt. Charpentier, of its No. 2 Company; Lieut. Roget, recovering from the nervous shock of a recent, ill-fated patrol; Private Didier, who despises Roget; Private Langlois, who yearns for his wife and their child to come; Private Duval, still ambitious for a medal, and the rest of this famous regiment are awaiting the over-the-top whistles. General Assolant and Capt. Nicolas, of the artillery, were watching from a well-protected observation post . . .

A cruel-looking thing, a bayonet, Langlois thought. And the cruelest-looking of all, the French one. Perhaps because it was the most slender, the purity of its lines the most perfect, its intrinsic proportions the nicest. Or, perhaps, because it had the reputation of making the wickedest wound, the quadrangular wound that was so difficult to heal. Langlois had never used his bayonet, and he never would unless he was caught with an empty magazine in front of an oncoming German. He asked the time of Lieut. Bonnier, who was standing right beside him.

"Zero minus 20 minutes," the Lieutenant said. He was in command of the company and he was feeling a slight nausea in the pit of his stomach.

Langlois looked at the men around him. Some of them were condemned to be dead within the half-hour. Perhaps he was one of them. The thought passed through his head, a strangely impersonal one, as if it had not been a thought of his at all, but some story he was reading. He noted the unusual self-possession of these men, but he had seen it before and accepted it as granted. The thought kept returning: this one, or this one, or that one, would actually, inevitably be dead in a few minutes. He tried, half-heartedly, to guess which. Then: a number of lives right there next to him, within touching distance, some of which he had been on intimate terms with, were rushing with incredible speed (yet a stationary one, too) toward their ends. No, the ends were rushing toward the lives. Thirty minutes more to live, and then the totally unknown, apotheosis. The idea had a force so poignant at that time and place that it suffocated and extinguished itself.

His mind, having been emptied of a thought the power of which it was no longer capable of bearing, reverted to the more commonplace and personal subject of his own flesh. There were three wounds that Langlois dreaded: in the eyes, in the groin, and in the feet. When he thought about this, as he did now and then, in places of safety, it was the wounding of his groin which he abhorred the most. Night made him wish that his eyes might be spared above all else. But now, on the eve of a hand-to-hand encounter with the enemy, it was his feet which obsessed him, the feet without which he would be helpless to move. That was the way he felt, and that was all there was to it. Yes, his feet would not be of much use to him if his eyes were gone, but still he would rather have it so. If he had his feet he could move, grope, he would manage. Above all, he could move, move, move. . . .

"Zero minus 15," said Bonnier, without anyone having asked him.

* * *

"I'LL get it this time," Didier said to himself. He did not actually picture himself as dead, for that would have been beyond him. "Seventh time over the top without a scratch, that's too much to expect." What he would have said, had it been in him to reason about the signs he was so good at reading, was: "I ought to get it this time." He felt that his run of luck had built up a cumulative weight of probability against him. The weight oppressed him, and he felt vaguely that there was something unfair about it, that he was now handicapped. Langlois would have been able to tell him that his chances, whatever they were, say 50-50, were the same for each attack no matter how often he had previously benefited from those chances. Didier would have followed the reasoning easily, once it was made for him, but he would have none the less gone over convinced that he was a marked man.

He looked at his watch and saw that it was a certain time. The man next to him asked for the time and Didier had to look at his watch again.

"Fifteen minutes to go," he said.

Capt. Charpentier had developed a blister on his heel which was so sore that it made him limp. It was sore enough, too, to have taken almost complete possession of his mind. He stood in the trench and cursed it endlessly and repetitively. He cursed the weather, too, for having added to the difficulty of walking just at the time when he wanted the greatest bodily ease, when he wanted, in fact, to be as unconscious of having a body as it was possible to be.

He looked at his wrist watch for the twentieth time, but what he saw on the dial was the raw spot on his heel, that exasperating blister which obtruded itself upon everything. Charpentier was in a rage.

At zero minus six minutes it began to rain again, a slanting hostile rain, maddening and penetrating.

"That settles it," Dax reflected with some bitterness. "The weather's always on the side of the Boche. It's going to be bad." He yawned a nervous uncompleted little yawn.

Gen. Assolant was fidgety. His wristwatch seemed to have stopped. He compared it with the artillery officer's and found that it hadn't. The powerful binoculars pulled at his eyeballs, and yet he could not lay them aside for more than a few seconds at a time, so great was his eagerness for his victory to begin. That was the way he was now thinking of it, his mind frankly supplying the word victory instead of attack.

Nicolas did not keep looking at his watch. He had learned to let time alone. He knew that the moment it felt itself to be under observation, it began to show off. It slowed up, played tricks on you.

"Zero minus one minute," said the Corporal, still quoting the information which came over the wire.

Assolant picked up his glasses, but he had to take them away again almost at once as they had clouded with the moisture of his brow. He wiped them on a handkerchief and this time held them just clear of his face. The view jiggled, but it was better than seeing nothing, and he could fit them to his sockets by a motion of his wrist as soon as things started. Nicolas, who wanted to spare his eyes from the pull of the lenses, let three-quarters of a minute go by, counting it off on his pulse beats, before picking up his.

The concentration of both men had become so intensely focused on what they would see that they never heard the thunderclap of the first discharge. A wall of dark smoke shaped itself suddenly in the lenses of their glasses, and it startled them. Nicolas laughed out loud at himself for being surprised by something which he had done nothing but plan and work for during the last 36 hours.

"There it is . . ." he said.

"There it is," said Capt. Charpentier as the sky behind him filled with the piercing whine of countless shells. The roar of the discharge, like that of a huge, longpent force which has burst its bonds, blotted all thought from his mind. Silence behind him, for a moment, while the guns were being reloaded, in front of him the crash of the barrage as it struck the ground and burst 200 meters from the trench. The earth trembled with the shock of the impact. Clouds of dark smoke leapt upwards, then bowed before the wind. The pungent smell of explosives was everywhere, all at once. Shovelfuls of mud were hurled into the air, then fell back again, scattered. The place buzzed and sang with flying metal. Men crouched a little and moved closer to one another.

Charpentier looked at his watch. It was already zero plus 40 seconds.

The earthquake continued. The barrage seemed like an elemental upheaval, terrifying alike to those it was meant to protect and to those it was meant to destroy. S O S rockets were bursting all along the enemy line, rising, bursting, and falling with their absurd deliberateness, aloof from the turmoil below.

Machine-gun bullets began to clip the French parapet and to splash mud around.

At zero plus three minutes the German counter-barrage was adding to the chaos, tearing up the French wire, moving back and forth across the front line. Already there were cries for stretcher-bearers in the trenches, but nobody could hear them. At the same time the enemy's heavy machine guns were coming into action along the whole sector and the parapets were under a steady spray of bullets.

At zero plus five there was a momentary lull while the French guns were being re-aimed for the rolling barrage.

Whistles sounded along the jumping-off line.

Charpentier climbed onto the smoking parapet, shouting and waving to his men to follow. He stood there, waving and shouting, an heroic-looking figure, fit for any recruiting poster. He did not feel heroic, though. All he felt was the blister on his heel and the intoxication of the vibration all about him.

Men started to scramble over the parapet, slipping, clawing, panting. Charpentier turned to lead the way. The next instant his decapitated body fell into his own trench.

Four other bodies followed right after his, knocking over some of the men who were trying to get out. Three times the men of Number 2 Company attempted to advance, and each time the parapet was swept clean by the deadly machine-gun fire. It couldn't be done, that was all. The men, with one accord, decided to wait.

Number 1 Company got as far as its own wire, but it was driven to earth there by the German barrage. Unable to advance, the men crept back, one by one, to the less meager protection of their trench. Capt. Renouart was the last to go. He had given up ordering his men forward. It was useless.

The two companies on the left made a bit better showing to begin with. About 50 men of Number 4 Company managed to get beyond their wire, but only a half dozen survived, among them Meyer and Ferol.

Number 3 Company, Lieut. Bonnier leading them, got away from their jumping-off position with less trouble than the other had had. But they missed some of the lanes and got tangled up in their own wire, and it was there that the sweeping German machine-gun fire caught them. Everybody was shouting, unheard by anyone else. They seemed to be dancing a crazy dance in their efforts to disentangle themselves. . . .

His shouts turned to gurgles. Blood sputtered in his mouth. His legs gave way under him. The din faded out of his ears with astonishing speed. Silence. Darkness. Lieut. Bonnier sat down in the wire. He sat there as if he were attentively reading a book. He had taken a burst of machine-gun bullets full in the chest.

By zero plus 35 minutes the third attack on the Pimple was all over, stopped in its tracks, smothered.

Adjutant Herbillon's paper work on the ration requisition had been estimated with some accuracy.

What Science Will Never Do For Mankind

By The Rev. J. F. Newton

THE president of the American Association of Chemists tell us that science will make the earth a paradise in the next hundred years. It is interesting, but what sort of a paradise will it be?

One remembers the Aldous Huxley story of the brave new world science is to build, and how the hero, unable to endure its noise and ugliness, went out and hung himself. One did not blame him at all.

Most things, says the great chemist, will be bigger and better in every way. What things and to what end? We want details, if there is any blueprint. Some things we do not want to be any bigger.

There will be many improvements, he assures us, including the elimination of dirt, disease and destitution. And of death, too, apparently, if we can ever find out what death is. Today it utterly baffles us.

So far so good. How wonderful it will be to have a world free from dirt, disease and want. Man will have fewer ills to face, he will be free to live longer—but to what end? What will he live for?

The great chemist sums it up in one sentence: "The new order will be—long life, little to do, and plenty of time and money for amusements." Is that all? Is that that science thinks we need?

For a little while, as a holiday, it would be fine to be free from work and worry and want. But to live in a world where there is nothing to do but amuse ourselves would be the final boredom.

No art, no poetry, no music, no religion, no adventure? Just the glorious gospel of a good timec Amusement means turning away from the muses, but if we leave the muses out how can we have amusement?

Of course, the great chemist did not mean to leave all the higher human life out of account. But his description of the new paradise does reflect the kind of world we dream about in our weary moods.

No, science has its limits. There are needs and hungers and dreams it can never satisfy, unless man ceases to be man. But if it can make a cleaner, more joyous world, my God speed its labor.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

» by WYNN «

For Thursday, Jan. 30.

FIRST of three days for attending to matters of estate, relations with parents and conditions in the home; be constructive. Today: occupational items at top of list; be good to boss and tactful with opposing sex.

Mystery Schools.

In the ancient mystery schools, of which Pythagoras, Plato, and other true masters of wisdom were taught, the neophyte was taken through degrees representing the planets' virtues. They became more and more difficult as the work progressed, symbolizing actual life—the more we are capable of understanding, the more we must take on the responsibilities of doing it.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead will probably rouse unwonted ambition of financial nature, even possibly hoarding and tendency to enter nebulous ventures—watch. Friends involved. Danger: April 7 to May 17, and Aug. 12 to Oct. 7.

Friday.

Fish Chowder

Two pounds haddock or cod, in one piece.

One quart potatoes, diced.
Two cups boiling water.
One cup thin cream, scalded.
One tablespoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon pepper.
Eight common crackers.
Two tablespoons butter.

Wash the fish, and put on to cook in cold, salted water to cover. Bring slowly to boiling point, then simmer for 5 minutes. Take from water and remove bones and skin, reserving the stock. Cut salt pork in small pieces and fry in kettle. Remove scraps to absorbent paper to be served with, but not in, the chowder. Add onion to fat and fry four or five minutes. Add potatoes and boiling water and cook five minutes. Add fish and stock, cover and simmer ten to 15 minutes. Add milk, cream, seasonings, crackers split and butter. This recipe makes six portions.

A Dry House

The Lamb Is Hit By a Snowball Thrown by Rip

By Mary Graham Bonner

"YOU did mean to hit me in the eye," repeated Sweet Face, as he drew up one little hoof and tried to see if his eye was still in its proper place.

"It may have been a harder snowball than some of the others," barked Rip. "But I didn't try to hit you in the eye. Besides, Top Notch hit me hard the last time and I didn't cry and moan about it."

At which all the Puddle Muddlers started shouting:

"Cry baby, cry baby! Sweet Face is a cry baby."

"Then be a good sport," said Willy Nilly. "I saw Rip. He didn't mean to hit you other than fairly. We're all playing a game. I'm ashamed of you, Sweet Face."

Sweet Face put his hoof down from his eye and began playing again. But he packed as hard a snowball as he could and threw it toward Rip. It hit Rip very hard, but Rip did not whimper. And then it was that Sweet Face felt ashamed of himself. Rip had certainly been a good sport.

And now Sweet Face played as the others did.

Toward dark they went indoors, but as Sweet Face went to sleep that night he said to himself:

"I have been a poor sport at times. Willy Nilly was right. I love Puddle Muddle and I'm not going to be so helpless and frightened any more."

But as he made this fine resolution, he heard a long howl—followed by another and another.

Let's EXPLORE Your MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.

See Whether His Opinions Agree With Your Own

1. —Prof. Ellsworth Huntington of Yale, in his new book, "After Three Centuries" — a fascinating study of the heredity and achievements of some of our old Colonial families compared with that of of families who have arrived later—brings out the remarkable fact that people's minds are the most active, neither in hot nor cold weather, but "in cool weather when the temperature is just low enough so there are occasional frosts at night." He concludes this from students' marks; civil service examinations and the number of patents issued—more things being invented in cool weather than in either hot or cold.

2. —According to a study made by Fortune Magazine, men would not change to men secretaries at any price. They find men are just as competent secretaries, even neater and more careful as to details. They argue, however, that when the old upper-class mid-Victorian home vanished, wherein man ruled his wife and daughters, he set about "recreating this lost paradise in his office." Women supply a "daytime wife" for the man and fulfill his desire for the old sense of comfort and rulership he formerly had in his home and which he now gets as the head of a sort of business household.

1 ARE PEOPLE REALLY MORE ACTIVE MENTALLY IN COOL WEATHER THAN IN WARM?
YES OR NO ____
3 WHEN A NATION CONQUERS NEW TERRITORY DOES ITS AVERAGE CITIZEN PROFIT ENOUGH TO COMPENSATE HIM FOR HIS SACRIFICES?
YES OR NO ____
RAYMOND FLANAGAN
2 WOULD BUSINESS MEN CHANGE TO MEN SECRETARIES IF THEY WERE EQUALLY TRAINED AND THE WAGES THE SAME?
YES OR NO ____
COPYRIGHT 1936 JOHN DILLE CO

3. —It seems beyond belief that people can still be propagandized into thinking they will get anything out of a war conquest. The average Italian would make over a thousand per cent on his money if he would today sell all his prospective profits in Ethiopia for 10 cents. But Mussolini is shrewd enough to appeal to his desire not for profits, but "to be another Caesar." Whether being another Caesar is worth burdening himself with debt or being buried in Ethiopian mud—well, at present we shall have to let him and Mussolini figure that out.

Quarry's End

By Glenn Reilly

WITH a fellow guard Officer Perry stood upon a small mound of crushed stone, watching the long file of men in prison garb mounting the endless vertical steps from the depths of the stone quarry and shuffling along the path toward the watch tower, their bent figures silhouetted against the bleak background of the high gray wall.

Perry counted as the men emerged from the gigantic, grim hole which an endless chain of prisoners had painfully hewn from the solid rock, a hole which gaped yawningly in the earth like the composite grave of countless ambitions. The convict straw boss approached Perry as the last man appeared at the top of the stairway.

"Hundred and seventy," he reported sullenly. Perry consulted the tally he had been keeping.

"One seventy is correct, including yourself," he affirmed. "You can take them in to the cell house now." The man moved off obediently, tight lipped. "And double time them to the dining room so they won't have to wait for the other lines," Perry called after him.

The convict stopped, turned around and snapped tersely, "Right," and immediately the long line broke into a dog trot as he shouted a command. Perry's companion watched in admiration.

"Wish I had a straw boss like that for my crew," he envied. "Maybe I could get more done! By the way, who is he?"

"Name's Johnson. And he certainly can manage things down in the quarry and on top on the crusher, too! Queer, though!"

"He doesn't seem to be wasting any brotherly love on anyone around here, judging by appearances!" Perry nodded.

"I've noticed that. There's something about that lad I can't figure out." The two moved off toward the warden's office.

"You know," pursued Perry, after they had thrown off their coats, "that fellow is a queer one. He's smart . . . I couldn't want a better straw boss. But for some peculiar reason he persisted in raising trouble until he got himself punished by being assigned to the quarry, the worst spot in the prison. That seems to be what he wanted!"

In his cell Johnson sat on the lower half of the double bunk reading a book by the dim light of the small bulb which threw griddled beams through the barred door. On the upper bunk his cellmate listened to the discordant, blaring sounds of the radio loudspeaker hung on the wall opposite the cell block.

"Say, Johnson, I heard you talking back to the screw today," he began, "Better watch your step or you'll be doing some time in the hole. It's bad enough in this dirty cell, but at least you get fed . . .!"

Johnson snapped his book shut and stood up belligerently. "Listen, mug," he grated, "it won't be long before I won't be here to spend any time in the hole, or anywhere else!"

"You still got 14 months to do," pointed out the other. Johnson nudged him and lowered his voice.

"Says you! Why do you suppose I gave up a good job in the prison office to work in that filthy quarry with a lot of bums and junkers and spend my time in a place like this? Because I like it?" He laughed mirthlessly, hatred in his eyes. "I'm going to make a break from this joint, just wait and see!"

Malicious amusement tinged his wintry smile. "He needs his dough and he'll lose his job sure when I scram out of here!" His cellmate scratched his head.

"His brother's the Judge that gave me two years on a bum rap," he gritted with unreasoning hate. "I swore I'd get back some way!" He scowled and sat on his bunk, consumed with impotent rage.

"O K with me, Houdini," was the only comment. "Send me a postcard some time, will you?"

• • •

AS another evening began to drop its deepening pall over the gloomy prison grounds a dramatic pause came as Perry awaited Johnson's coming with the evening tally. A wave of excitement ran up and down the line of men as he failed to appear and they were sent in with a deputy guard.

The count whistle failed to blow. Instead through the grounds screamed the siren that wailed its message of an escape. On the walls the guards watched grimly while every inch of the prison grounds was searched under the rays of the sweeping searchlights. No trace was discovered of the missing man. Lines of worry etched themselves on Perry's forehead as it appeared that Johnson had made good his scheme of roundabout revenge. A suspension was certain, with dire results.

Reward notices of $1000 were posted for the discovery of Johnson, dead or alive. The quarry men remained in their cells for a week under investigation, but to no avail.

On the eighth day they were ordered back to work, loading the cars with rock for the crusher on the rim of the quarry. Perry, while momentarily expecting the dreaded suspension order from the board, for the hundredth time inspected the crusher premises for a clew.

For the first time, however, he noticed protruding from the edge of the huge hoppers a heavy plank. Distinctly no plank should have been there. Removing several tons of rock from the hopper, the men under Perry's direction uncovered the crushed figure of the man he sought.

In attempting to hide Johnson had precipitated a rock slide which cost him his life, inadvertently gaining a reward for Perry. Perry was genuinely sorry. He never suspected that his trusted helper in the act of vindictively ruining the life of an innocent guard had lost his own, and in the losing had won for his intended victim a tidy sum of money. Which, perhaps, is just as well.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

"LITTLE SURE SHOT"—Annie Oakley, christened Phoebe Anne Oakley Mozee, was born Aug. 13, 1860, in a log cabin in Ohio. As soon as she was old enough to hold a gun, Annie found out that she got a great kick out of shooting the big firearms her father kept around the house, but her enthusiasm was not diminished. She played with guns instead of dolls. Her reputation as a markswoman circulated fast and when still very young, she was on a vaudeville stage. Records of marksmanship were heaped upon her shoulders. She got a perfect score with 50 live birds—split a card in two sidewise at 30 paces—burst 4772 balls out of 5000 in 10 hours of continuous shooting—shot a 984 out of 1000—and other records too numerous to mention. Miss Oakley died Nov. 3, 1926, at the age of 67.

TONIGHT'S STORY IN
"The Cavalcade of America"
SPIRIT OF ENTERPRISE
The first episode, set in 1805, is about an American who had a "wild scheme" of shipping ice to the West Indies—and how he made a success of this idea. This is followed by the epic of the transpacific air route . . . how the far-flung island bases were made ready for the historic flight of the China Clipper.

Gambling's Always Expensive

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

NEW YORK STATE collected an air-cooled forty-three million dollars from its motorists in 1935. That's a fortune in bent license plates.

Mannattan, the city of broken hearts and busted fenders, contributed most of this bonus for plowing under the pedestrian crop.

This money was spent for driving licenses and plates. It does not include fines for passing a cow on the wrong side. It does not include an assessment for parking on two wheels while skidding to the scene of an accident.

It does not include the taxes on gasoline nor does it include meals for your wife's relatives. It does not include the original price of the car nor the upkeep.

It merely entitles you to a number in a raffle which you cannot win. It also gives you a card to show traffic policemen who believe that a summons is the shortest distance between two points.

The money is spent for white-washing telegraph poles, painting detour arrows and other tribal customs of improving State roads. This paragraph was procured from us under duress. The real truth is that less than half the money goes for good roads.

* * *

We can say the same thing about the motor industry that we can say about a three-legged stool. It may rock a bit but it's self-supporting.

ITALIAN FLYERS BOMB ETHIOPIANS ON TWO FRONTS

Troop Concentrations Attacked South of Makale, in North, and at Daga Medo, in South.

TEMBIEN POSITION IS STRENGTHENED

Rome Communique Says New Information Confirms That Enemy Lost 5000 in Recent Battle.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Jan. 30.—Marshal Pietro Badoglio reported today that his air forces were bombing Ethiopian troop concentrations south of Makale on the Northern Ethiopian front and at Daga Medo on the Southern front.

The communique follows:

"Further information confirms that during the bitter fight of Jan. 20 to 24 the Ethiopians lost more than 5000 men, including many chiefs and lesser chieftains. There were many wounded, although the exact number has not been established.

Ethiopians Report Killing of 35 Italians Northwest of Makale.

By the Associated Press.

ADDIS ABABA, Jan. 30.—An official Ethiopian communique from the northern front reports 19 sharpshooters under Dedjazmatch (General) Shale surprise an Italian contingent northwest of Makale, killed 35 Italian soldiers and captured four trucks.

Later details of intensive fighting around Makale, the Government says, show 23 cannons and 25 machine guns were taken by the Ethiopian warriors.

One Italian plane was shot down, according to the chieftain, and its three occupants were killed in the crash.

The alleged withdrawal is said to have been caused by fear on the part of Gen. Rodolfo Graziani, commander of the Southern Italian forces, that he would suffer a rear flank attack by Ethiopian forces moving in from the west.

Fifteen thousand Italian native troops are said to be on the road south of Wadara, moving toward Neghelli. The rest of the column is said to be composed of 15,000 whites, all of whom are reported to be staying in comparative safety at least 40 miles southeast of Neghelli.

British Deny Purported Rome Radio Reports About Ethiopia.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—British officials vigorously denied yesterday that they called radio reports broadcast from Rome and picked up in Ethiopia.

Referring to a report said to have been broadcast Tuesday night to the effect that two schools at Jijiga used by the Egyptian Red Cross as hospitals were actually barracks, the British said their observer at Harar reported the schools were genuine hospitals and that not an armed man was in either of them.

According to the British, another Rome report stated a Swedish Red Cross mission at Harar was really an Egyptian wireless station, at which all operators wore Red Cross insignia. This was vigorously denied.

Both broadcasts, it is alleged, were sent out from Rome in English.

ITALY PROTESTS TO EGYPT ON USE OF LEAGUE SANCTIONS

Fascist Note Reserves Right to Demand Indemnity in Case of Material Damage.

By the Associated Press.

CAIRO, Jan. 30.—The Egyptian Government received a note from Italy today, protesting against application by Egypt of League of Nations sanctions for Italy's war in Ethiopia.
